ROOSEVELT PLANS LEGALIZING POOLS

President Almost Certain to Urge Congress to Permit Such Move as Aid to Railroads.

IDEA LONG IN HIS MIND.

Harriman Seeking Interview at White House, Where He Probably Will Learn of New Aims.

BY RAYMOND.

Washington, D. C., March 8.—[Special.]—What will Roosevelt do next?

This rather irreverent query as to the purposes of the president in the future is heard more often than any other. Even discussion of the third term idea has waned rapidly because most of the people understand that the president has meant what he said when he declined so repeatedly to permit himself to be considered as a candidate for reelection.

But his term of office is only half over. He has accomplished some great things, and yet even his enemies know that he is not a man to rest on his oars and drift idly downstream, satisfied with the reputation he already has made.

The railroad rate bill was not the end of his administrative ambition. It was a step, and a great step, toward a series of reforms the president has hoped to achieve with the assistance of the people. His purpose is to progress, evidently, and it is this fact which has made the Harrimans, the Rogerses, the Morgans, the Rockefellers, and others so nervous of late. They realize that the president has two years more of active executive life, and he has the people behind him more than ever and that he is certain to be on the move. So it is these people who are constantly asking:

"What will Roosevelt do next?"

Harriman Seeking an Interview.

Since he returned to New York, Mr. Harriman has made light of the possibility of a personal interview between him and the president. Nevertheless, such an interview has been solicited. The request for the talk did not come from the president, but from Mr. Harriman, and the chances are that the conference will be held some time next week at the White house.

If there is such a talk, the wizard of railroad finance will learn a few things. One of these is that while the president believes in proper governmental regulations, not only of railroads, but of all corporations doing interstate business, he is by no means an anarchist or a socialist. He has constantly preached the doctrine that great captains of industry and men in charge of large corporations should be wise enough to accept reasonable government control at this time as the best possible means of warding off inconsiderate and hostile legislation in the future. Mr. Harriman and other people who have been opposing the administration in its corporate policy will find out before long that the railroad rate bill was one great step in a general program.

Roosevelt to Help Railroads.

The next step may easily be, and probably will be, something of a surprise to the railroad men, because it will be a concession to their interests. President Roosevelt has made this fact clear in his own writing, but it seems to have been overlooked by the magnates, who have become possessed of an unreasoning fear that he is determined to attack their property interests in every possible way.

On the contrary, President Roosevelt now has become committed to the principle that the law forbidding pooling by competitive railroads should be repealed. He evidently believes that with the law giving the government commission the right to supervise rates, and with a stringent law forbidding discriminations and rebates, the railroads have the right to make such traffic agreements among themselves as they shall find to be necessary for the conduct of their business.

The railroad men can hardly believe this, but it is a fact. The president is already in favor of the repeal of the pooling prohibition, and if Mr. Harriman and others make proper inquiries at the White house, they will become convinced of this beyond the possibility of a doubt.

More Curbing of Interstate Trade.

On the other hand, the answer to the question, "What will Roosevelt do next?" involves a step forward, and that step will be in the direction of federal regulation of all corporations doing an interstate business.

The president is a man tenacious of ideas, he is apt to fight for only one thing at a time, but he does not lost sight of his general purpose. He has constantly treated corporations as a necessary development of modern commercial enterprise, but at the same time he has insisted that a commercial corporation must be regulated just as a railroad is regulated, and that the government must assume control of production as well as of transportation.

In some way there seems to have been conveyed to Wall street people an intimation that the president is proposing to urge government control of corporations, and they have therefore jumped to the conclusion that he is antagonistic to all vested interests. They have lost sight of the fact that he is advocating permission of pooling by railroads, which means the creation of the greatest trust in our history, and at the same time proposes to extend to great corporations the same measure of governmental control that has been thrown about the railroads.

Roosevelt's Eye Long on Future.

Those who want to know "what Roosevelt is going to do next" can find an answer to the question if they will consult the speech the president made nearly a year ago at the laying of the corner stone of the office building of the house of representatives. This was just before the passage of the railroad rate bill, but the president at that time outlined the policy which almost certainly will mark the closing half of his administration as follows:

"Again, the national government must in some form exercise supervision over corporations engaged in interstate business—and all large corporations are engaged in interstate business—whether by license or other-

GOVERNOR FLAYS BLIND LOBBYIST.

HIS DESK THERE YEARS.

Scorching Invective Against the Paid Agent of Corporation, Who Rules Legislature Like a Master.

Providence, R. I., March 8.—[Special.]—Gov. Higgins today made a sensational move in his fight to drive Gen. Charles R. Brayton, the "blind republican boss" and the paid lobbyist of the corporations, out of the statehouse.

The governor denounces Brayton as a "nuisance," a "scandal," a "degenerate," and says, in so many words, that he "misappropriated public funds of the United States."

For years Brayton has occupied an office in the statehouse in the rooms alloted to the high sheriff.

From this office the blind boss dictates legislation, issues orders to members of the house and senate, packs primaries, controls conventions, and "runs" the republican party.

Gov Higgins, known as the "boy governor"—he is only 30 years old—has repeatedly denounced Brayton as the paid agent of the corporations.

Governor Forces a Crisis.

Ever since his election Gov. Higgins has tried to drive Brayton from the capitol. So far he has been defied. Today he addressed a stinging letter to Hunter C. White, high sheriff, demanding in the name of the people of Rhode Island that the blind boss be compelled to vacate his quarters in the sheriff's office. The letter is as follows:

"The people of Rhode Island have tolerated Boss Brayton and his brazen arrogance as long as they should. The time at last has arrived when patience no longer is a virtue, and when in deference to an aroused and indignant sentiment throughout the state this man should be expelled from the capitol.

"To none is his conduct know better than to you. Year in, year out he has occupied and used your office for his vile purposes with your knowledge and consent.

"Nuisance and a Degenerate."

"Another reason for my demand is that you have no right to encourage a common nuisance on state property. Brayton unquestionably is a common nuisance. You know the man's degenerate character better than I do. You know that he is unfit to hold public office, or to be entrusted with any honorable duty. You know the last federal office he held was surrendered by him in disgrace and by compulsion. You know he misappropriated public funds of the United States while postmaster of the city of Providence. You know also the disgraceful scandals attached to his administration of the office of chief of the state police. Yet you daily parade him in the statehouse in the eyes of the public as master of your room there.

"You know further it is matter of common knowledge that Brayton's scandalous lobbying has been practically his only business for the last quarter of a century, and that, although nominally a lawyer, he never was engaged in the real practice of his profession, but has been content to acquire a lucrative existence from the fees he has wheedled and whipped out of seekers for legislation and office."

Picks Up the Gauntlet.

After scoring the sheriff for his inactivity in the matter, he continues:

"The gauntlet has been thrown down to me by both you and Brayton with a spirit of insolent defiance, but I shall not hesitate to pick it up, not in a spirit of pugnacity, but with a firm determination that the right of our people to have their public places kept for proper purposes, free from scandals and nuisances, moral, political, and otherwise, shall be vindicated once for all.

"In the name, therefore, of the decent citizenship of this commonwealth, I demand that you clean this moral and political pest of your office. In the name of common civilized virtue I demand that you no longer persist in allowing a part of this capitol to be used as headquarters for a notorious lobbyist.

JAMES H. HIGGINS,
"Governor."

Sheriff White had nothing to say when questioned concerning the matter tonight, and Brayton pleaded indisposition when a reporter called.

Career of the Blind Boss.

Ever since the civil war Brayton has been the controlling influence in Rhode Island politics. He is blind, is 67 years old, and was born of a distinguished Rhode Island family. He had finished two years of a college course at Brown university when the civil war began. He entered the union army as a lieutenant of artillery, was promoted to a captaincy, and later brevetted a brigadier general.

After the war Brayton was postmaster of Providence from 1874 to 1880. During those years he developed his genius for political management. Gradually he became the boss of the republican party of Rhode Island, and until Gov. Higgins began his campaign to drive him from the statehouse his rule was never challenged. His blindness is the result of a cataract.

Has Office in Capitol.

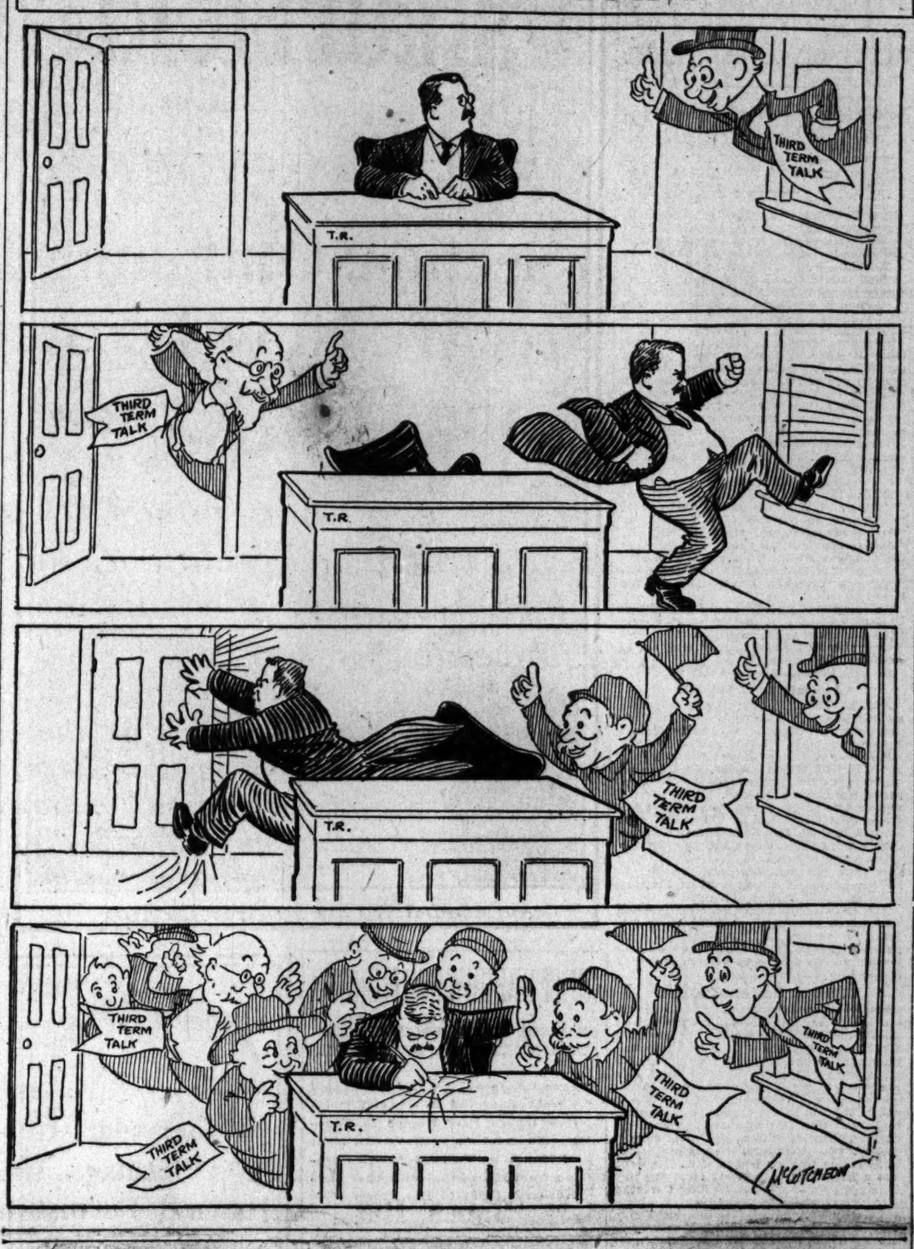

Since the completion of the new statehouse Brayton has had a desk in the office allotted to the high sheriff of Providence county. From the office he has controlled republican politics in Rhode Island—manipulated conventions, traded delegates, named candidates, and dictated platforms.

When the legislature has been in session Brayton has directed legislation, decided what bills should pass and what bills should be killed.

Few members of the legislature dreamed of disobeying Brayton's orders or questioning his authority. The few who dared to disobey were swiftly punished.

Brayton made his job pay. Ostensibly he is a lawyer. His sole income, however, is his retainers from big corporations who are interested in having bills passed or killed, as the case may be.

HARD TO KEEP DOWN.

PARIS IN DARKNESS; STRIKE

ENTIRE CITY IS TIED UP.

Theaters and Stores Close, and President Suffers, Too.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

[Copyright: 1907: By the New York Herald.]

PARIS, March 8.—Paris is in almost utter darkness tonight as the result of a strike by employés of all the electrical plants. Cafés, hotels, apartment houses, the homes of the rich, and the abodes of the poor are illuminated only by the flickering light of candles and lamps. It is the most complete tieup the French capital ever has known, used, though it is, to stubborn labor conflicts.

Almost all the theaters, including the opera and other of the subsidized houses, were compelled to put up announcements that there would be no performances and that the money would be refunded at the doors. Only four of the minor variety halls were open.

Department Stores in Darkness.

The big department stores were hurriedly emptied of shoppers and employés. Most of them, especially those in the center of Paris, are without gas service. Candles and lamps hurriedly procured served to light employés and patrons out of the shops.

The prefecture of police, the buildings of the various ministries, and the public institutions also were without light. Even the Elysée palace was temporarily thrown into darkness. The senate and the chamber of deputies are provided with gas pipes, so their work went on.

A delegation, including a number of deputies, called on Premier Clemenceau at a late hour. The premier promised to bring in a regiment of soldiers from Versailles to replace the strikers, but it would appear that he later decided not to take this step, for no orders were sent to Versailles. On the contrary, Premier Clemenceau expressed his determination to use every effort to overcome the strike by conciliatory means. He probably will have an interview with the strikers' delegates during tonight or early tomorrow morning.

M. O. Plan Responsible.

The causes of the strike are two—better hours and wages and the extension of the pension system partly established when Paris recently began to municipalize the lighting plants.

The failure of municipal ownership is directly responsible for the state of affairs.

The strikers tonight showed themselves as strongly in favor of taking over the electric lighting plants by the various municipalities. This feeling is a direct outcome of the socialistic tendencies generally prevalent among the electrical workers.

When at half past 5 o'clock the arc lamps on the boulevard failed to spring into life there was a moment of astonishment among the thousands gathered in the great artery of Paris. When the Temps and the Intransigeant appeared a rush was made to obtain definite news, but all that these papers contained was a short note to the effect that the employés at all Paris stations had decided to go on strike at 5 o'clock if their demands were not granted. When darkness fell, the boulevard was filled with cabs and omnibuses, which had to move cautiously, in semi-obscurity.

Everybody waited for the second edition of the evening papers, and hawkers were asked for such late journals as the Presse and La Liberte, but they failed to appear, as both illuminating and motive power were unobtainable.

Rush to Buy Candles.

Then came a wild rush from all the cafes and restaurants to the nearest stores where candles and petroleum could be procured. The Grand Hotel alone bought candles by the thousands. By half past 6 o'clock the cafés were filled with the usual crowds, for l'heure de l'appertif dimly lighted with candles stuck in bottles.

At first the Parisians accepted the situation with their usual lightness of heart. All kinds of jokes were cracked. The favorite jest seemed to be that the capital had lost its name of "ville lumiere," but under the influence of the dismal illumination a feeling of depression arose. The Parisians wandered disconsolatey around the dark streets or sat moodily in the cafés, till one proprietor secured a lot of Chinese lanterns. Others followed suit. Soon the boulevard was alight with strings of gaudy lanterns. Then Parisian gayety revived.

Strike Surprises Employers.

A correspondent made a tour of Paris at 9 o'clock. The first visit was to the Edison company office in the Rue de Valois. Not even the electric bell at the door was working. The manager and a few employés were found in the office lighted by a candle.

"The strike has come as a complete surprise," said the manager. "The existence of the station at Halles is the cause of all the trouble. The men there have pensions, a weekly day of rest, and all the advantages enjoyed by city officials. The present strike is not directed against the companies, but against the municipality."

At the offices of the Echo de Paris in the Place de l'Opera, the large editorial room was feebly lighted by half a dozen lamps and a score of candles. The editor said:

"We are in search of a sixty horse power automobile to give the necessary power. If we find one we can get the paper out, but we don't know at what hour in the morning."

Figaro Deluged with Requests.

The Matin was scouring the city to find accumulators in the hope of being able to fill the cellar with them and get the linotypes in motion. The Figaro, which is in possession of its own power plant, was inundated with requests for help from other papers, but all these requests Gaston Calmette was compelled to refuse.

The Petit Temps, the late edition of the Temps, appeared as usual. At all the public offices oil lamps of antique type were brought out from recesses, but it took time to induce them to work. At the Elysée similar conditions prevailed. The president himself was no better off than common mortals.

The electricians intended to hold a general meeting at 9 o'clock, but were unable to because of the lack of light.

The strike resulted in a serious inundation in the tunnel of the Paris subway system in course of construction on the south side of the Seine. The electric pumps ceased working. More than twelve feet of water is in the subway. It is feared that the sides and roof of the tunnel will fall in.

JUDGE FINES; MAYOR PHONES

CITY EMPLOYES BREAK LAW.

Dump Refuse in River Despite Ordinance and Sanitary Board.

Discarding ordinary methods of caring for political friends as too slow when a mayoralty election is pending, Mayor Dunne had recourse to the telephone yesterday to rescue two incumbents of the administration's pay roll from fines which a municipal judge insisted upon imposing.

The procedure, which occupied something less than ten minutes, is said to have established an entirely new record for rapid fire pardons—a department of activity in which the present administration already has shown some prowess. Municipal Judge Frank P. Sadler, before whom the case of the city employés was heard, showed clearly what he thought of the proceeding.

"When the mayor pardons men within ten minutes after sentence has been pronounced," he said, "comment is unnecessary!"

Sanitary District Pushing Case.

The case is one in which representatives of the sanitary district have fought for two weeks in the Municipal court to secure the enforcement of a city ordinance against dumping rubbish into the river. At each successive hearing of the case representatives of the corporation counsel's office opposed the prosecution on technicalities and secured delay.

John Wallace and Barney Fay, teamsters in the employ of the street cleaning department, were arrested by police of the sanitary district for dumping refuse into the river from the approach to the Madison street bridge.

When the case originally came up for hearing before Judge Sadler Assistant Corporation Counsel James Dooley announced that the city "did not care to prosecute." Frank Pait, a representative of the drainage board, was in court, however, with a power of attorney from City Prosecutor Howard Taylor and insisted that the case be heard.

The case was continued on the plea of the city's representative and the situation was considered by Chief Justice Harry Olson.

Fine of $2 on Each Defendant.

Yesterday morning, when the case was called, neither of the defendants was in court. The representative of the corporation counsel's office, however, was on hand promptly, and Judge Sadler informed him that he intended to fine the men $2 each and costs.

On receiving this information the representative of the corporation counsel's office left the courtroom hurriedly. Shortly afterward the defendants appeared and the sentence was pronounced, the men having waived a jury.

Something less than ten minutes later the telephone at the "desk" of the Desplaines street station rang briskly. The desk sergeant grabbed the receiver.

"This is th' chief," he heard. "Collins. The mayor has entered an order for the pardon of Wallace and Fay and they are to be released immediately."

ENGLISH WOMEN ANGRY IN DEFEAT

SING 'RED' SONG AND HISS.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

LONDON, March 8.—The suffragettes are fighting mad at the fate of the woman suffrage bill, which was literally talked to death in the house of commons today.

Tonight 2,000 of them gathered at Exeter hall, sang the "Marseillaise," and denounced the government.

They sprinkled vituperation upon the head of Premier Campbell-Bannerman because he would not commit the bill to woman suffrage.

The speeches were as fiery as angry, earnest women could make them. They declared that the divine right of kings and aristocrats had been broken down. Now they proposed to break down the divine right of man.

Zangwill in Merry Mood.

Israel Zangwill, the novelist, lent a less sanguinary glow to the tempestuous proceedings by making a speech which kept the meeting rippling with laughter. He pointed out that women officially were classed as infants, lunatics, and paupers. The women who wanted to vote, he said, were regarded as a kind of lower creatures, who chewed a quid and wore a divided skirt. It was ridiculous, he said, to say that women should always remain what they were. If that was so Eve might as well have remained a rib instead of becoming a woman. The anti-suffragettes, he declared, were traitors to their sex.

The Rev. Mr. Aked, the new pastor of the Fifth avenue (New York) Baptist church, who listened to the debate in the house, said that he had come away with a sense of defeat, dismay, and disgust. "Nothing," he added, "since the coming of Christ would do more for humanity than the enfranchisement of women."

Two Notable Dissenters.

Of course there are dissenters. One of them is Mrs. Humphry Ward. She writes as follows:

"In asking for the vote women are grasping at direct political power with the possibility of combining with it direct political responsibility, and this is impossible, simply because they are women."

Another dissenter is Marie Corelli, who concurs with Mrs. Ward as to woman's unfitness to exercise the franchise. She says:

"Of all the rights which women may or should claim, the right to vote, it seems to me, would be the most useless, the most unnecessary, the one most likely to involve a loss of all true womanly power, reserve, and dignity."

Miss Corelli deplores the "sad but incontestable fact that brilliant, intellectual women are distinctly in the minority, and always likely to remain so. "A great majority to whom suffrage would apply," she adds, "are of that happy disposition which has no time to think, and which throws down a book readily for the more fascinating contemplation of a new hat or gown."

Bill Has No Chance.

The suffrage bill which the speaker permitted to be talked to death in the house of commons today was introduced by Willoughby Dickinson. The bill simply provides that women shall have the franchise on the same terms upon which it is now granted to men.

When the commons met its members apparently feared an invasion by the militant suffragists, and from the number of police on hand one would have imagined the czar of Russia was in parliament house expecting an attack from an army of terrorists.

A double cordon of police surrounded the building and another force occupied the corridors inside. A special detachment was held in reserve in the neighborhood.

The house of commons was crowded when the debate on the proposed measure began, but only women whose good behavior was guaranteed by members of parliament were permitted to enter the gallery. All those who were connected with the recent disorders within the precincts of the house of parliament were specifically excluded.

Members Spurred to Vote.

The suffrage societies were active throughout the morning, trying to insure the attendance of all true supporters of the bill. All members who were considered to be in the least lukewarm in the matter were admonished by telephone or telegraph this morning that their seats would be endangered if they failed to fulfill their pledges.

It is admitted that many promises to support the bill were given by liberals on the supposition that the women if enfranchised would vote for liberal candidates, but the return of the large conservative majority at the municipal elections in London Saturday last, in which the women voted, tended to dispel this illusion, and since Saturday many members of parliament who nominally sympathized with the bill have been stricken with mysterious illnesses which did not permit them to attend today's session of the house of commons.

Soon after the house assembled a stir was created by Samuel Thomas Evans, member for the middle division of Glamorganshire, who entered struggling under the weight of a great roll of paper which proved to be a petition signed by 21,000 women who are opposed to the bill. He was greeted with ironical cheers, which were redoubled when John Redmond shouted:

Debate on the Bill.

Mr. Dickinson made the opening speech in favor of the bill and was followed by the premier, Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, who announced that it was the intention of the government to leave the question to the free decision of the house. Personally, he favored the general principle of the inclusion of women in the suffrage. The matter had assumed more importance of late years owing to the larger part which women had taken in wage earning and in the professions.

Is the Most Beautiful Woman in Chicago the Most Beautiful Woman in America? See Sunday's Tribune

On many questions, continued the premier, the opinion of women was equal to if not greater than that of men. He frankly stated that he was not enamored with the present bill, because it would not enfranchise to the necessary degree the mass of the working class women and workmen's wives. He would vote for the bill, however, as a declaration of his opinion that the exclusion of women from the franchise was not expedient, justifiable, or politically right.

Sixteen Hostile Motions.

The debate on the bill then became general. During the day no fewer than sixteen hostile motions were made.

Samuel Howard Whitehead, the member from Huntingtonshire, liberal, moved the rejection of the bill, declaring that there was no public demand for it. With regard to what he called the "physical force" group, who went on their merry pilgrimage to Holloway jail, he declared their action a big game of bluff.

Philip Snowden, socialist, member for Blackburn, said the bill would enfranchise a million and a quarter of women. He believed the women who would be enfranchised were women of the working class to the extent of 82 per cent. Supposing it were true that a majority of women did not want to vote, he said, that was the best reason why the right to vote should be given them. The slave who hugged his chains must be set free.

Julius Bertram, who is in the greatest disrepute among the suffragettes, in dealing with the plea that women are taxed and not allowed to vote, said:

"Well, we tax lunatics and aliens, but do not allow them to vote."

He pleaded pathetically that women ought not to be brought into contact with the immorality of politics, "where sincerity of purpose is impossible, the calls of party loyalty and the security of one's seat compel men to shirk issues and tell only half the truth.

"Don't," he pleaded, "let us bring women into such an arena as this."

Woman to Command Fleet.

John Massie contended that if women were enfranchised they soon would claim ministerial office. They might not, perhaps, see a woman commanding the Channel squadron, but what was to prevent there being a "first lady of the admiralty," sending out squadrons. Women, he declared, were not fitted to command.

William Cremer protested that inasmuch as woman already ruled the world by rocking the cradle, she ought not to want more.

The possibilities of the extension of the franchise thus opened caused the members of the house to shout with hilarity.

Finally Talked to Death.

At 4:55 o'clock W. Dickinson moved the closure, but the speaker called upon John David Rees, member from Montgomery, liberal, to continue the debate.

Mr. Rees cited the widespread opinion among the orientals that the British were a mighty race, with a disposition toward lunacy. He asked if the house was prepared to confirm that opinion by passing the bill.

At 4:58 o'clock Mr. Dickinson again moved the closure, and the speaker again refused to entertain it.

For a third time Mr. Dickinson arose for the purpose of renewing his motion, but the speaker replied that the member from Montgomery was in possession of the floor.

Rees, who is opposed to woman suffrage, thereupon talked the bill out. The house adjourned at 5:05 o'clock. This kills the bill for this session.

Some of the leading suffragettes who were seen after the Dickinson bill had been killed, said they had been quite prepared for such a result. Since the bill was introduced they had done nothing. Now that the truce was over their demonstrations would be continued on a larger scale than hitherto. They would again take up their militant attitude.

GIRL'S SUICIDE LONG PLANNED.

Tragic Death of Young Mrs. Latham in Paris Outcome of Melancholia Over Money Affairs.

PARIS, March 8.—The body of Mrs. Nathalie Dole Latham, who committed suicide here yesterday by shooting with a revolver, was removed today from her apartment in the Rue Viete to the vault of the American church pending the arrival here from New York of her father, George Lockwood, who has cabled that he is sailing tomorrow.

Baron Rapher, Mme. Grun, and the Marquis de Bernis, who is an officer in the French army and who was the caller on Mrs. Latham who heard the fatal shot as he was descending the elevator, are the friends mentioned in one of the letters left by the suicide.

Mrs. Latham was painting a portrait of the marquis and, being anxious to finish this canvas for exhibition in the spring salon, she was working on it at night. In spite of the fact that the preparations for her suicide were complete when the marquis left her apartment, he had no suspicion of her intention.

Mrs. Latham talked of committing suicide a fortnight ago with Mme. Grun. She said her funds were exhausted and that she could not bear the idea of returning to New York. She then promised Mme. Grun not to take her life.

Mrs. Latham's last letter from her father was dated Feb. 12. In it the writer did not mention money, but asked appealingly if his daughter was not ready to return home. The supposition that Mrs. Latham was in financial straits is confirmed. The money which she brought with her from America was exhausted, and although she derived a considerable income from her painting, it was not sufficient to maintain her in the style in which she had lived.

CHURCHILL HAS PEERS PLAN.

Urges Rearrangement of Parliament So as to Provide Balance Between Parties.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

LONDON, March 8.—Under the title "A Smooth Way with the Peers," Winston Churchill, M. P., contributes to the National Magazine a scheme to solve the problem involved in the relations between the lower and upper houses of parliament. The kernel of the suggestion is a provision that privy councilors as well as peers should be given the right of sitting in the upper house or being summoned there by the crown upon the advice of ministers for the duration of any parliament, and that only those thus summoned and accepting service should be eligible to sit in that parliament.

The crown should summon not fewer than 150 and not more than 250. All peers and councilors not summoned or not accepting should be free to exercise the full privileges of ordinary citizens. It should be accepted as a usage that all peers and councilors who have held ministerial offices should be summoned.

It should be possible separately to dissolve either house and to provide for changes in a ministry during the life of any house of commons.

Churchill contends his scheme would eliminate the "frivolous, lethargic, uninstructed and disreputable elements" from the upper house, which would become a national and not a party institution. A harmonious balance between parties would be secured, and in times of extraordinary crises such a reformed upper house would be a really valuable safeguard.

MOORISH ARMY ATTACKS CALF.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

TANGIER, March 8.—Troops posted outside the town last night got a bad scare when a calf escaped from a neighboring farm and approached the outposts. They believed the united forces of the pretender and Raisuli were upon them and opened fire. Cavalry hurried to the scene and fusillades were delivered for a long time. This morning the calf was found browsing. It had not been hit. The troops are still suffering from the shock.

POISON MYSTERY MAY BE SUICIDE.

HINTS OF A SHORTAGE.

New York Authorities Begin Investigation, but Progress Seems Slow.

New York, March 8.—[Special.]—Assistant District Attorney Manley, who is in charge of District Attorney Jerome's homicide bureau, started an investigation today into the death of Leonidas N. Preston at the Hotel Cumberland late Thursday night. Coroner Harburger placed before Mr. Manley the report of Coroner's Physician O'Hanlon, which stated enough prussic acid was found in Preston's stomach to kill ten men.

Until Dr. O'Hanlon performed the autopsy today it was not definitely known what caused Mr. Preston's death, although business friends of Mr. Preston, who had been called to the hotel by him and were waiting at the hotel office when he dropped dead in his room, insisted the circumstances were suspicious. The autopsy developed that Preston had swallowed a large quantity of prussic acid, taking it apparently in a drink of whisky.

Mr. Preston was interested in the Timken Railroad Bearing Axle company. Charles K. Beekman, 52 Williams street, representing the interest in the axle company of E. R. Hewitt, son of former Mayor Hewitt, said this afternoon that they could not tell where the company stood. They at once engaged an expert accountant and he at present was making a thorough investigation of the books.

"I fear and suspect that we shall find that Preston had overdrawn and that the company perhaps was embarrassed. Of course I do not know that yet, and it may not be so, but I fear it greatly."

He said Preston was not a rich man.

Indications of Suicide.

Additional evidence that Preston may have committed suicide was furnished by his lawyer, Joseph A. Shay, after he had examined Preston's papers. He said he had invested large sums of money in ventures which apparently had fallen through, that his accounts with the Timken and Hewitt companies had become involved. It is believed it was on this account that his business associates went to see him on Thursday. Mrs. Preston told Mr. Shay her husband had received word three weeks ago that Timken was coming from Canton to see him. Since that time, she said, his usual good nature had changed. He appeared dejected all day and was unable to sleep at night.

"In spite of the report that Mr. Preston was worth $3,000,000," said Mr. Shay, "it looks to me now as if he would leave his young wife destitute. In looking up his bank accounts I found he had a balance of only $7 in the Riverside bank."

Light on Business Affairs.

Preston came here from Dallas, Tex., several years ago, shortly after the death of his first wife, a Texas woman. At that time Mr. Preston was well off. Here he became interested in the invention of William R. Timkens, an axle bearing, and went into business with Mr. Timken and others. Preston was New York manager of the concern and held stock in the company. According to Lawyer Shay the business was a paying one and Preston, with others, made money.

About two years ago, the coroner heard, Mr. Preston met his second wife. He went into a Broadway department store one day to buy a pair of gloves. He liked the looks of a pretty girl who waited on him, Miss Anna Glennon, and not long afterward they were married. Mr. Preston had taken out two life insurance policies, one for $200,000 with his first wife as beneficiary, and another for $10,000, which he had allowed to lapse.

The Prestons had been living at the Hotel Cumberland, at Broadway and Fifty-fourth street, for about five months. Mr. Preston showed no evidences of ill health until recently. He was 46 years old, over six feet tall, and robust. He was devoted to his wife, the coroner was told, and was a man who attended strictly to business.

Suffered Attack of Grip.

About three weeks ago Mr. Preston went to New Orleans on a business trip. When he came back two weeks ago he was suffering with a sharp attack of grip. He called Dr. Millett, who cautioned him against going to work or taking up business worries before he fully recovered. Mrs. Preston told the coroner Dr. Millett specifically warned Preston against having anything to do with business matters until he was out of danger.

While Preston and his wife were talking in their rooms about 10:30 o'clock Thursday night the telephone rang and the clerk informed Preston that Mr. Timkin, head of the axle concern and two of his associates downstairs wanted to know if he felt well enough to see them.

"Send them right up," Preston told the clerk. He turned to his wife and said: "Well, I guess I won't have to go to business after all."

It didn't take more than two or three minutes for the three men to reach Preston's rooms. When they walked in they saw Preston lying fully dressed across the bed. They saw instantly he was dead. Mrs. Preston at the moment was hysterical and unable to give them any definite information.

First Verdict Cerebral Hemorrhage.

Dr. English, the hotel physician, was hastily summoned. Dr. English sent for Dr. Millett. The two physicians examined the body and agreed Mr. Preston had died from cerebral hemorrahge. There was nothing to indicate from a hasty examination that death was unnatural.

Mrs. Preston, who had recovered her presence of mind, suggested her husband's lawyer, Mr. Shay, be sent for. When Mr. Shay arrived he advised them to notify the coroner instantly.

Mrs. Preston was too upset to discuss the death of her husband in detail. Outside of a small quantity of medicine, Mrs. Preston said, her husband had taken nothing into his stomach so far as she knew except two or three drinks of whisky.

The American club of Havana gave a reception in their honor tonight. Several other entertainments for them have been planned. Gov. Magoon will receive the clubmen tomorrow.

All the members of the party are well. All speak with enthusiasm regarding the progress of the work on the Panama canal.

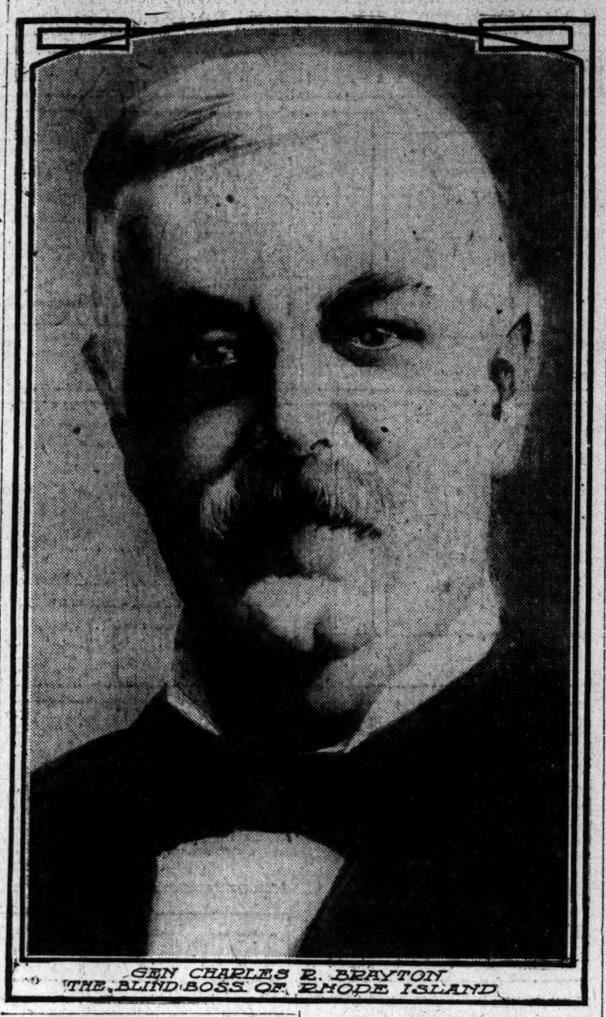

NOTES FROM FOREIGN LANDS.

BERLIN.—Emperor William carried a bouquet of roses and lilacs to the American embassy and presented it to Mrs. Tower, wife of the ambassador. His majesty also asked to see Mr. and Mrs. Tower's two little daughters, gave them a lot of toys, and talked with them for some time about their dogs and games.

BERLIN.—The reichstag by a large majority passed the second reading of the supplementary appropriation bill for German Southwest Africa, and also the appropriation for beginning of the railroad from Kubub to Keetmanshoop. The center party, Poles and socialists, voted against the measure.

Finger Prints on the Slain Woman's Throat Expected to Convict Relative Whose Past Record Is Bad—His Description Tallies with That of Man Who Pawned Articles Stolen from House—Saloonkeeper Says Murderer Came to His Place.

St. Louis, Mo., March 8.—[Special.]—Following the murder of Mrs. Kate Quernheim in her home at 3720 Vest avenue yesterday a police dragnet was thrown out today for Edward Bergmann, aged 29 years, Mrs. Quernheim's nephew by marriage.

Bergmann, who also is wanted by the police for robbing his mother's home some time ago, is a discharged soldier with a bad record. The police say that when he is captured it will be found that the fingerprints left on the throat of the murdered woman will convict him of the crime.

Pawnbroker Gives Clew.

Articles stolen from the Quernheim home were found today in a pawnshop. The man who pawned them answers Bergmann's description.

A saloonkeeper has been found who is certain that Bergmann came to his place directly after the murder. This man, who was excited, exhibited a vicious looking hunting knife and a revolver. In one pocket he had a camera similar to one taken from the Quernheim home by the murderer.

Husband's Second Grim Experience.

It developed today that William H. Quernheim, husband of the murdered woman, —ho was the first to find her body when he returned home yesterday, had a similar experience several years ago, when he found his first wife dead in their home from heart disease.

DUMA VICTORY FOR DEMOCRATS

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

ST. PETERSBURG, March 8.—Today's session of the duma was a complete victory for the constitutional democrats. The vote of 379 for M. Tchlinokoff for secretary of the assembly is the highest yet given for any candidate. President Colovin announced the next business would be the election of assistant secretaries, then the election committee would examine the validity of the members' mandates. This is accepted as meaning the constitutional democrats are succeeding among the workingmen and peasants to the extent of dissuading them from making a violent scene when Prime Minister Stolypin appears at the tribune next week to announce the government's program.

The orderliness of the proceedings aroused anger among the clerical reactionaries. They complained the constitutional democrats were arranging to establish their leadership of the majority before M. Stolypin appears.

Leading constitutional democrats who were members of the former duma, such as Prince Peter Dolgoroukoff, M. Lednitzky, the Moscow barrister, and M. Djilkin, the author, passed the day lobbying among the new deputies on behalf of parliamentary action against the social democrats' proposal to demand immediate amnesty for political offenders.

WAR IN FARMERS' EXCHANGE.

Minneapolis, Minn., March 8.—There is trouble brewing in the convention of the Farmers' exchange, now in session here, threatening a breaking up of the whole organization, which includes the states of Minnesota, North and South Dakota, Iowa, and a portion of Nebraska. There are charges of inefficiency in management. The dissatisfaction has been stated by members of the North Dakota delegation, who throughout the convention have taken every opportunity to criticise the management. The sarcastic remarks directed by the North Dakota men at George Case, manager of the exchange, grew into such rancor that it was evident that the storm was about to burst. The North Dakota members make no secret of their alleged grievances.

CREMATION BELIEVERS DANCE TO RAISE A "SMOKE FUND."

Event Is So Successful That Half a Dozen Members Are Assured of an Urn for Their Ashes.

Waterbury, Conn., March 8.—[Special.]—The Waterbury branch, No. 32, of the Cremation Association of America, gave a dance tonight to provide for a "smoke fund." President Max Merstinger announced enthusiastically that enough cash had been taken in at the door to transform half a dozen members into ashes and buy them fancy urns besides.

The announcement was received with cheers. The dance hall walls bore the cheerful motto, "Our Bones Shall Never Molder Under Ground," which in itself was enough to explain the bright smile on every face, and the fact that there was not a single wallflower present.

In fact everybody had such a good time that President Merstinger declared the association would keep on dancing till urns had been provided for all the members.

Fulton, Mo., Man Who Named St. Louis Fair Attendance Correctly Wins Long Legal Battle.

St. Louis, Mo., March 8.—After two years of litigation Judge McElhinney in the Circuit court at Clayton awarded to M. Logan Guthrie of Fulton, Mo., the prize of $25,000 offered in a contest to the person who entered the nearest guess to the total number of paid admissions into the world's fair.

Guthrie guessed 12,804,616, which was announced as the exact number of admissions. Several other claimants appeared and payment of the prize was held up pending settlement of the different clafms.

Guthrie instituted suit in 1905. Finally the other claimants dismissed their claims and the court awarded the money to Guthrie.

FIND RUEF'S LAIR AND CAPTURE HIM

New Hunter Put on Trail of Boss Guided to Hiding Place by Burns.

MUST FACE MUSIC NOW.

Fugitive Is Taken in Suburb Resort and Brought to Frisco Under Guard.

San Francisco, Cal., March 8.—[Special.]—Abe Ruef, the fugitive boss, was captured late this afternoon by William J. Biggy, a new, ellsor, appointed today. Biggy was guided to the hiding place of Ruef by Detective Burns.

This afternoon, as soon as William J. Biggy, former chief of police, had taken oath and qualified as ellsor, Burns said:

"Now, come with me and I will show you where your man is."

They secured an automobile and proceeded at once to a roadhouse near the Ingleside racetrack known as the Trocadero. There they found Ruef and Myrtile Cerf, former secretary of the grand jury and a partner of the boss. Ruef was taken into custody and for the first time was a prisoner of the men who are working for his downfall.

Capture a Sad Shock to Boss.

Ruef, accompanied by Cerf, was brought to the city by Burns and Biggy, and taken at once to the office of Assistant District Attorney Heney.

Ruef was much chagrined at his arrest, as he had believed his attorneys able to postpone action until his case could reach the Supreme court at Washington.

Tonight Ruef was taken to a hotel and detained there over night. His captors declined to take him to jail on account of the intimate political and friendly relations existing between the sheriff and the prisoner. Ruef will be taken to Justice Dunne's court in the morning.

This morning Sheriff O'Neil and Coroner Walsh confessed to Judge Dunne their inability to find and arrest Ruef and bring him into court. It was then that W. J. Biggy, a local business man, was delegated to discover the whereabouts of the boss and take him into custody.

The order appointing Biggy as made out by Judge Dunne conferred upon him authority to deputize as many other persons as he may require to help him prosecute the search for the missing boss; and, as the charge is a felony charge, he may use "all force necessary" to effect Ruef's arrest.

"If I can find him," said Biggy, immediately after he had been sworn in, "I will bring him here. That much you may count on."

His Lawyer Ordered to Cell.

The capture of Ruef was not the only sensational development in today's proceedings. Samuel W. Shortridge, attorney of record for Ruef, incurred a severe rebuke from Judge Dunne this morning during an examination by Assistant District Attorney Heney into the incompetency of Coroner Walsh, appointed by the court as substitute for the disqualified sheriff, O'Neil, to "locate and arrest" the indicted politician.

Shortridge persisted in an effort to enter objection to a question put by Heney, and would not be silenced by the court, who finally adjudged him guilty of contempt and sentenced him to twenty-four hours' imprisonment in the county jail.

The attorney, however, escaped immediate incarceration by applying to the District Court of Appeals for a writ of habeas corpus, on the ground that no contempt had been committed. The ordering of Shortridge to jail caused a sensation in the city.

Legislature Turns Against Him.

Boss Ruef's vanishing act resulted in the defeat of the change of venue bill offered in the legislature to permit the boss to select his own trial judge.

Early in the week the bill had been amended to suit Ruef, with but a single vote against it. It had passed the assembly and was considered certain to pass the senate, but Ruef's conduct caused a revulsion of feeling, and when the bill came up for final passage tonight it was killed by a vote of 16 to 12.

Had the Ruef contingent been content with the bill as it came from its author's hand they could easily have passed it, for then Ruef was not a fugitive from justice. But Ruef's lawyer, who drew the bill, forgot to insert the clause necessary to make it effective within less than sixty days after passage, and the delay caused a change of heart.

Lexington, Ky., Woman Who for Fifteen Years Rode Four Hours Daily as Rheumatism Cure Dies.

Lexington, Ky., March 8.—[Special.]—The Lexington Street Car company lost its best passenger last night, when Mrs. Susan T. Allen, aged 80, died.

Mrs. Allen, during the last fifteen years, had spent at least four hours each day in riding about the city on the cars, and it is estimated that she traveled 75,000 miles in that time. She was a sufferer from rheumatism and declared that the jolting of the car and the electric current were soothing to her pains, and were better than any medicine in the world.

While Mrs. Allen did not confine herself entirely to one line, she preferred car No. 11, from which, she said, she obtained the most good. No. 11 became first in her favor several years ago, when No. 8, her favorite, was struck by lightning and the passengers, including Mrs. Allen, were badly shocked.

The conductors and motormen of the company will miss an old friend and benefactress, as Mrs. Allen was acquainted with all of them and at Christmas made it a custom to distribute gifts among them.

Mrs. Allen was the widow of the late Dr. Albert S. Allen and leaves an estate valued at $50,000. She left no will.

She is survived by four brothers, B. F. Van Meter of this county, J. M. Van Meter of Shelbyville, Ind.; L. M. Van Meter of Danville, and Abraham Van Meter of Gainesville, Tex.

The new "cops" will be clothed in full police powers and wear stars. Members of the Women's Christian Temperance union doubtless will be selected for the force, as that organization suggested the idea.

ROOSEVELT'S BOY WORSE?

Lights Burning Brightly in Room Where President's Son Is Lying Dangerously Ill with Diphtheria—Unofficial Report Says Young Patient Is Not Resting So Easily as During Early Part of the Night—Yesterday's Reports Favorable.

Washington, D. C., March 9, 2:30 a. m.—At 2 o'clock this (Saturday) morning the lights are burning brightly in Archie Roosevelt's room. There seems to be unusual activity in the portion of the house in quarantine. An unofficial report from the sick room is to the effect that the patient is not resting as easily as in the early part of the night. Drs. Lambert and Kennedy are both at the boy's bedside, and the president's family are known to be within call.

Yesterday's Reports Favorable.

There was decided improvement in the condition of Archie Roosevelt yesterday, and although the president spent at least half of last night an anxious watcher at his son's bedside, the boy was so much better his father went to his office as usual after breakfast and spent a busy day there. Everybody around the White house breathed easier, and it was said last night that, barring a serious setback, the young patient would get well.

Shortly before 10 o'clock Surgeon General Rixey left the White house and went over to the navy department, but returned within an hour. A little before noon he went over to the department again and encountered several inquiries on the way as to the condition of the boy.

"The case looks favorable, indeed," he said. "Yes, of course diphtheria is generally regarded as a treacherous disease, but the outlook is good at this time."

President Resumes Duties.

The president, who did not go to bed until 1 o'clock yesterday morning, was up early and was in his office at the usual hour, busy with routine business. The usual Friday cabinet meeting was held at 11 o'clock and the president presided. He told the members of the cabinet that Archie was doing well, and that all hands were much encouraged by his improvement.

It was explained that although the president had disregarded the quarantine by visiting the sickroom, he had taken precautions to avoid transmitting the infection by donning a robe which completely enveloped his figure and by bathing his hands in diluted carbolic acid after leaving the sickroom. Observing the same precautions on each occasion the president visited his boy's room several times yesterday.

Four physicians are in almost constant attendance upon Archie, and there are never fewer than two in the house. Besides Dr. Lambert, who was Roosevelt's family physician in New York, Surgeon General Rixey and Drs. Braisted and Kennedy of the navy are in attendance.

Prayer for President's Son.

Prayers for the recovery of Archie Roosevelt were offered yesterday at the Episcopal noon Lenten service in the Chicago opera house. The service was conducted by the Rev. William A. Guerry, chaplain of the University of the South at Sewanee, Tenn.

The prayer was as follows:

"Let us pray for the son of our president: Almighty and most merciful Father, to whom alone belong the issues of life and death, look down from heaven, we humbly beseech thee, with the eye of mercy, upon the sick child for whom our prayers are offered. Deliver him, O Lord, in thy appointed time, from his bodily pain, and visit him with thy salvation; that if it should be thy good pleasure to preserve his life, he may serve thee faithfully, and do good in his generation; or else receive him into those heavenly habitations where the souls of those who sleep in the Lord Jesus enjoy perpetual rest and felicity. Grant this, O Lord, for the honor of thine only son, our Savior, Jesus Christ. Amen."

FOUR HURT IN AUTO CRASH.

Machine Skids in Rounding Corner and Strikes Pole—One Occupant Perhaps Fatally Injured.

Kalamazoo, Mich., March 8.—[Special.]—Grant C. Dolson, an automobile maker of Charlotte, was perhaps fatally injured and three other men slightly hurt when their automobile crashed into a telephone pole in Washington avenue today.

The accident was the result of an attempt to avoid a team when turning a corner. The car skidded and struck the telephone pole with such force that it buckled, twisting around the pole in a semicircle.

Dolson was pinned between the machine and the pole and could not be removed until the machine was lifted. His right leg was fractured, his head was badly cut, and he probably sustained internal injuries.

ENORMOUS FEAST OF BUSINESS MEN.

Commercial Association's Fellowship Supper Tuesday Night to Break Record.

TO LAY COVERS FOR 2,000.

Coliseum Engaged for Spread Which Will Boom Chicago as Central Market.

If the mother of each of some 1,300 Chicago business men could have a seat in the gallery of the Coliseum next Tuesday evening she would be convinced that her boy, when he grew up, took his boy's heart with him.

She would see an enormous improvised banquet hall, thickly set with little tables, and covers laid for 2,000 men—her son and his fellow hosts and their guests. Instead, however, of the ceremonial of a convention banquet she would see the tables piled high with the ingredients of an old fashioned "hot supper"—everything brought on at once and every man busy assuring himself that his nearest neighbor "has a-plenty."

And she would smile, a trifle whimsically perhaps, at the ingenuous boyishness of making the greatest banquet ever held in Chicago a gigantic "church supper," but certainly proudly, for she would be told that the gathering represents the culmination of two years' work on the part of her son and 1,299 other members of the Chicago Commercial association to make Chicago the center of the United States.

Enormous Hall Is Too Small.

The plan for the demonstration, which is to be known as the association's "fellowship supper," has been maturing in the minds of certain members of the organization for several months. Former banquets of the association, although held in the largest banquet halls obtainable in the city, never admitted of the presence of even the entire membership of the organization, to say nothing of invited guests.

It was proposed, therefore, to break away from all precedent, secure the largest available meeting place in the city, and hold a banquet at which every one of the association's 1,300 members and as many more invited guests might be present.

The plan hardly had been formulated before it was found that, large as it was in conception, it was not large enough. Practically every one of the 2,000 and more invitations sent out has been accepted, and demands have come in for accommodations for hundreds of additional guests. It has been found impracticable, however, to alter the original plan.

Purpose of the Big Supper.

The purpose of the Commercial association in giving the great "supper" is, in the words of one of its members, "to make a public demonstration of the spirit which actuates it, and of the purposes which have inspired it to become the conceded leader of the business world of the 'great central market,' and of the great central west.

"It is first and last to gather the entire association under one roof, discuss its work, needs, and prospects, and energize every member with an enthusiasm which shall double the membership of the organization within the next year or two. The characteristics of the rally are to be its size and the fellowship spirit which, it is expected, will be converted into a missionary force more influential than has ever been exercised in any social or civic body which has yet set out to do great things for Chicago."

Arrangement of Dining Hall.

In every detail the plans for the great gathering are unique. The improvised banquet room—the managers of the Coliseum have donated the building for the occasion—is the north half of the main auditorium, which will be cut off from the southern half by a temporary partition, hung with bunting in the form of a great canopy and decorated with flags and growing plants.

The speakers' table will occupy a platform at the west side of the hall. Just below this, at another long table, the members of several singing societies, which will furnish a part of the music for the occasion, will be seated. Beyond these, arranged in semicircles like the desks in a legislative hall, the hundreds of small tables, providing accommodations for 2,000 guests, will be placed. Each of the tables will have places for eight men, and, as far as is possible, each will be presided over by a member of the ways and means committee of the association, acting as a sort of deputy host.

The post-prandial program, according to Walter D. Moody, manager for Gage Bros. & Co., who is superintending the plans as chairman of the committee on arrangements, has been arranged to arouse, degree by degree, the greatest possible amount of enthusiasm.

Deneen the Principal Speaker.

David R. Forgan, president of the association, will be toastmaster, and the principal address of the evening will be made by Gov. Deneen. Following him prominent members of the association will speak of the work and needs of the association and of the city, and at the close of the program Mr. Moody will conduct what he declares will be an old fashioned revival service, its object being to win new members for the association.

In detail, the post-prandial program follows:

"Some Things Done," David R. Forgan.
"Association Spirit," Gov. Charles S. Deneen.
"American Possibilities," Frederick Bode.
"Our Creed," Charles H. Wacker.
"Chicago, the Great Central Market," Francis E. Simmons.
"The Corn Exposition," Ferdinand W. Peck.
"The Needs for Increased Revenue," Edward B. Skinner.
"The Need for a Club Building," John E. Kehoe.
"Do It, and Do It Now!" Mason B. Starring.
"Well, Why Not?" Walter D. Moody.

To supplement the formal order of ceremonies Angus S. Hibbard, who, when he is not occupied with his duties as general manager of the Chicago Telephone company, is something of a poet, has written four songs expressly for the occasion. These will be sung by the singing societies.

Plan for Downtown Clubhouse.

In addition to general plans for carrying on the association's work of booming Chicago as "the great central market," certain definite projects for the future of the organization are to be discussed at the supper. The most prominent of these is the plan for a downtown clubhouse.

"Our greatest immediate need just now," said an official of the organization, "is a permanent downtown home with full club privileges for our members—a place where business men can gather at the noon hour without being placed under the burdensome restrictions which are in force at most of the clubs.

"There will be reception rooms where visitors to the city can be directed to make their headquarters, café facilities, of course, and a large convention auditorium in connection. There is no doubt that our present membership could easily finance this project, but we want others to get in and help—and receive a part of the benefit."

The work of the association, whose second birthday is, in effect, commemorated by the "fellowship supper," has been broader in character than that attempted by almost any other similar organization in the world.

Origin of the Association.

The idea of forming the Commercial association first was conceived by the late Alfred M. Compton. Mr. Compton believed Chicago needed one great nonpartisan body, devoted to the development of the entire city as a vast business proposition and municipality.

Late in 1904, largely through the efforts of Mr. Compton, a banquet was held at the Auditorium by the National Association of Merchants and Travelers, an organization then about twelve years old, and out of it grew the Chicago Commercial association.

Organization was completed in February, 1905, and the association at once undertook work of the broadest possible scope. Headquarters occupying the larger part of the ninth floor of the Great Northern building were secured, and a complete executive staff organized, including the association's famous "convention bureau," presided over by Curt M. Treat, which last year secured about 200 conventions for Chicago.

Booming Chicago as Market.

In the spring of 1905 a delegation of business men went under the auspices of the association to the Pacific coast. The purpose of the expedition was to boom Chicago as "the central market." In the winter of 1905-1906 a similar trip was taken through the southwestern states.

At the time of the San Francisco earthquake the association showed its ability for effective action in unexpected crises by carrying out extensive relief work for the stricken city.

Its vigorous advocacy of the project for a deep waterway from the great lakes to the gulf of Mexico has brought it into national prominence.

Many other undertakings for the advancement of Chicago as a business city have been started or carried to completion by the association, each of them approached and handled with a vigorous, straight from the shoulder policy such as few cities of the United States have witnessed. The most recent of these is the exhibit of the National Corn Exposition association, whose first show, to be held in Chicago next fall, is expected to bring 500,000 visitors to the city.

Unique Form of Government.

The machinery of government of the Commercial association is said by the association officials to be unique among organizations of the kind. Aside from the usual officers, the responsibility of government is vested in an executive committee, known to members as "the senate," and a ways and means committee, composed of three representatives from each of fifty-three different trades in the city and known as "the house of representatives."

The personalities behind this government are of the vigorous character which the work of the association requires. David R. Forgan, president of the recently organized National City bank, is president of the association. The executive committee is headed by Richard C. Hall of the rubber firm of Lawton & Hall, and the ways and means committee is now being reorganized by Homer H. Stillwell, vice president of the firm of Butler Bros.

The "fellowship supper" is being arranged by a committee composed of Mr. Moody, Attorney John E. Kehoe, and Weston G. Kimball.

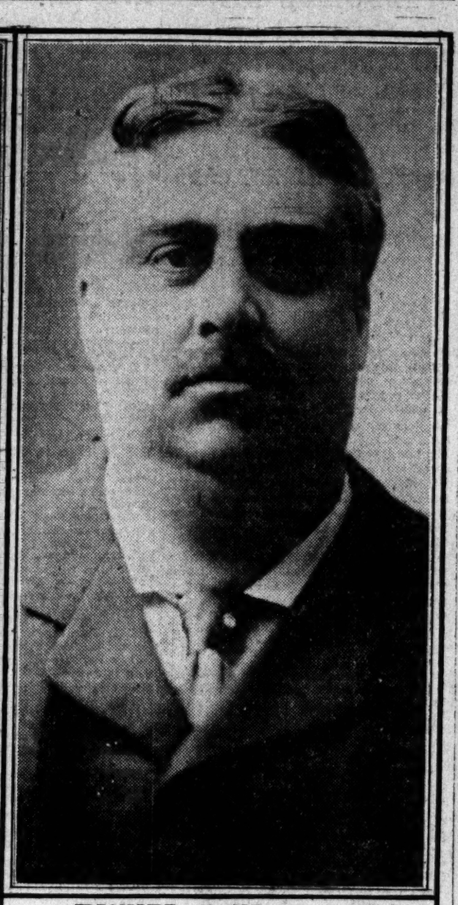

"This is going to be the most important gathering of its kind ever held in Chicago," said Mr. Moody in describing his plans. "And it's going to be the biggest dinner ever held anywhere!" he added, his face lighting up with the enthusiasm which has possessed him ever since he conceived the project.

"There's no organization in the world that's doing the work we are doing, and this is the biggest thing we have ever attempted. We expect big, immediate tangible results—for ourselves and for Chicago!"

COURT URGES TORCH TO CURE DANCE HALL EVIL IN CITY.

Judge George A. Carpenter Says Resorts Should Be Destroyed if Morals of Youth Are to Be Saved.

Incensed over the revelations contained in the testimony in two truancy cases involving young girls, Judge George A. Carpenter, sitting in the Juvenile court, yesterday urged the burning of "cheap dance halls and still cheaper theaters" as the best way to save the youth of the city from moral degradation.

"If such places were burned," said the court, "there would be fewer such cases in court. Most of the delinquents, especially the girls, owe their unhappy condition to the frequenting of such places."

Lydia Kazcul and Lena Crayon, each 16 years old, were arrested Monday night at 815 Milwaukee avenue, after they had been away from their homes since the preceding Thursday. Neither of them went to work Thursday, but instead spent the afternoon together. In the evening they met two young men and the four visited several places, among them a "theater." The quartet remained together until found by the police.

"Lena, until lately, was a good girl," her sister told Judge Carpenter. "She earns $8 or $9 a week and was working steadily."

Both girls admitted that their frequenting of dance halls was responsible for their presence in court.

Judge Carpenter spoke kindly to both the girls, urging them to lead proper lives.

"Many girls like fine clothes and pretty things to wear," he said, "but things obtained in that manner are no good. No self-respecting person cares for any one guilty of such things. A life of that kind lasts about five years, and leads to either the bridewell or Joliet, or possibly to the insane asylum, or suicide."

The Crayon girl was allowed to return to her home at 1198 Talman avenue. On the advice of the Kazcul girl's mother she was committed to the House of the Good Shepherd.

BOYS' 'FUN' KILLS WOMAN.

HORSE, FRIGHTENED BY SHOUTS, TRAMPLES VICTIM TO DEATH.

Mrs. Rose Matmore, Mother of Seven Children, Knocked Down by Runaway Animal Frenzied by Cries of Pupils of Dewey School, Who Wanted "to See Him Kick"—Police Search for Guilty Lads, but Clews Are Vague.

Death under the hoofs of a plunging horse was the price paid yesterday by Mrs. Rose Matmore for the indulgence of a crowd of schoolboys of their desire to have some "fun." The loss of their mother is the penalty imposed on the woman's seven orphaned children.

An unbroken colt owned by William Dory, a stockman, living at 5748 Princeton avenue, hitched to a "breaking" cart, was tied in front of a saloon at 5300 Union avenue while the owner was inside the place.

A number of boys from the Dewey school noticed the nervousness of the animal, and began shouting and throwing sticks at it to "see him kick." At last the horse broke the hitching strap and dashed through the crowd of boys, running north into the alley, between Union avenue and Halsted street.

Woman Trampled to Death.

Mrs. Matmore was crossing the street at the mouth of the alley on Fiftieth place on her way home when the plunging horse emerged from the alley. One of the shafts of the cart struck the woman and bore her to the ground, where she was trampled on by the horse and run over by the wheels of the cart.

Persons in the street rushed to her assistance and a physician was summoned immediately. The injured woman was picked up and taken to a nearby drug store, but died before medical aid could reach her.

The police of the Stockyards station removed the body to the woman's home, 830 West Fifty-first street, where an inquest will be held this morning.

The horse after trampling Mrs. Matmore continued to run through the alley north of Fiftieth place until it dashed up the sand embankment of the Grand Trunk railroad tracks at Forty-ninth street, where it fell and was caught by a flagman.

Puts Blame on Boys.

The police questioned Dory about the accident, but he was not held, it having been proved that he tied the animal securely when leaving it. He said the horse never would have broken the strap had not the boys frightened it into frenzy.

Search was begun for the boys whose action resulted in the accident, but as they fled as soon as the horse started to run away little hope is entertained that their identity will be discovered.

THINKS BOY ROBBER; STABS.

Western Union Messenger Uses Knife When Accosted by Lad in Search of Employment.

Tony Giocolo, 16 years old, 806 West Huron street, a messenger for the Western Union Telegraph company, stabbed and probably fatally wounded Edward Goblozke, 13 years old, 517 Lincoln street, when near West Twelfth and Wood streets last night. Giocolo mistook Goblozke for a robber. He was arrested and is held at the West Thirteenth street station.

Goblozke was taken to his home in a police ambulance. He told the police that he intended only to inquire of the messenger boy whether he could get work such as his.

The knife entered Goblozke's left side and penetrated the lung.

OLD MAN LOST; POLICE SEARCH.

Henry C. King, Veteran of the Civil War, Loses Way While on a Visit to City.

Henry C. King, 82 years old, a veteran of the civil war, who has been visiting relatives in Chicago, is lost in the city, it is believed, and the police have been asked to search for him. He has not been at the residence of his friends and relatives since Thursday afternoon. Mr. King lives in Champaign, and several weeks ago came to Chicago to visit his son, A. M. King, 144 North Spaulding avenue. Thursday afternoon he left the house, telling his relatives he was going for a short walk. When he had not returned at a late hour a search, so far without result, was begun.

HUSBAND DEFENDS ARTIST

SAYS MRS. FLORENCE KOEHLER IS NOT A JEWEL SMUGGLER.

Gets Message from Wife That She Must Remain in New York for a Few Days and Telling Him Not to Worry—Denies He Endeavored to Evade Inquirers and Feels Greatly Embarrassed at the Solicitude of His Friends.

Mrs. Florence Koehler, who got into difficulties with the customs officials of New York Wednesday upon her arrival from abroad, yesterday sent her husband, Frederick H. Koehler, secretary and treasurer of the Winslow Elevator company, Chamber of Commerce building, the following message:

"Must remain here for a few days. Don't worry, dear."

Her injunction "don't worry," Mr. Koehler explained, was all that stopped him from going east. The receipt of the message convinced him that her attorney without his aid would be able to clear her of the suspicion of smuggling.

"I don't care to gain any publicity in this matter, and I am sure Mrs. Koehler won't like it. It might prove detrimental to me. The statement in today's issue of THE TRIBUNE was the fairest report I have read of the incident.

Says Estimate Is Too High.

"I know it cannot be true about her having $10,000 worth of precious stones. The $1,000 estimate fixed by the lawyer is nearer correct.

"The whole thing is a mistake. Mrs. Koehler hasn't the means to buy any big amount of jewels. The officials must include in their valuation a large quantity of rough pearls that she took with her from this country when she last went abroad.

"My wife intends remaining here for a few weeks only; just long enough to visit me. She will also call upon her mother, and then return to her studio in London. She is no smuggler and may possibly make a statement explaining her position when she arrives here."

Sorry Friends Shielded Him.

Mr. Koehler appeared embarrassed when informed how his friends had attempted to shield him from publicity by circulating false rumors as to his whereabouts. He was in room 222 Hotel Alexandria when interviewed, and asserted that he had not been out of the city for three years. On Thursday the hotel clerk said Mr. Koehler went to Detroit a month ago. From the latter city came word that he had moved to St. Louis. Yesterday John A. Murphy, vice president of the Winslow concern, informed a reporter for THE TRIBUNE that Mr. Koehler had taken a flying trip east to meet his wife. Mr. Koehler said Mr. Murphy called him up on the telephone subsequently and explained that he was being sought. Mr. Koehler thought this strange and declared that he was not trying to evade anybody.

Well Known as Artist.

Mrs. Koehler has a world wide reputation as an artist, especially in china decorating, fancy jewels, and the like, and received several medals for efficiency at the World's Columbian exposition in 1893.

Previous to this last trip abroad she maintained a downtown studio and had as her pupils members of the best known families of Chicago and vicinity. She was one of the first local women to take up silver and fine fretting, and used many Wisconsin and oriental pearls in hat pins, brooches, and other feminine trinkets that she made.

HOT LEGAL DUEL IN IROQUOIS TRIAL

Attorneys' Battle Over Building Ordinance Feature Will End Today.

BOTH SIDES CONFIDENT.

State's Lawyers Will Have Chicago Witnesses Present on Monday.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Danville, Ill., March 8.—[Special.]—The legal duel upon which rests the freedom of Will J. Davis from the charge of manslaughter held over him ever since the Iroquois theater fire continued uninterruptedly today in Judge Kimbrough's court between six lawyers for the state and six lawyers, headed by Levy Mayer, defending Mr. Davis.

Mr. Mayer's thirteen hour argument for the dismissal of Mr. Davis on the ground that the Chicago building ordinance was faulty was answered point by point by the state lawyers, represented by State's Attorney John W. Kessler of Danville and Attorney George T. Buckingham. To the lay mind that listened to the intricate proceedings of the last three days the battle tonight is a draw. With the closing arguments by the defense's lawyers in the morning the question will go to Judge Kimbrough for decision.

State's Attorney John J. Healy will return to Chicago in the morning. He expressed himself as confident that the trial would go on. Assistant State's Attorney Barbour's view of the situation is shown in his action tonight in sending word to Chicago for thirty-five state witnesses to return to Danville Monday. They were sent away Wednesday when the jury retired. The attorneys for the defense will give no word of their sentiments, but bear a satisfied air.

What Judge Kimbrough's decision will be is the topic of discussion tonight in Danville. There has been no inkling of the judge's attitude in court beyond the announcement that he would give an oral opinion. Many lawyers who followed the case closely prophesy the outcome will be the same as in the beef trust case in Chicago, when federal Judge Humphrey took the case from the jury and freed the packers after a day's technical arguments.

Buckingham's Final Appeal.

Mr. Davis was under fire all day from the oratory of the state lawyers. In his closing appeal to the court tonight Attorney Buckingham summed the situation up in the following manner:

"It was not the construction of the Iroquois theater, your honor, that caused the bitter sacrifice of 596 lives in the fire. It was not the plans. It was the failure of the manager to carry on the business in a legitimate manner. It was his failure to provide the first necessities for the safety of life demanded by the city of Chicago.

"That is why we are here. These things clearly are within the observation of a master of years of experience. Yet the laws were violated. For greed the fundamental principles of safety were forgotten.

"The principle of the case is unassailable. That ordinance is valid. In view of the power which the state intended to give to the city, the power to safeguard human life, in view of the awful importance of the case and of the tremendous principle involved, it is a travesty on justice to say that the ordinance does not create a duty.

"Frame us a ship as beautiful as any that ever sailed the seas. Invite the 1,600 to come aboard. Sail on tonight over the seas of death, and you, Mr. Captain, without any life preservers! Is not that master responsible before God and man?"

As Mr. Buckingham spoke the words "you, Mr. Captain," he pointed to the white haired defendant sitting behind the bulwark of lawyers and law books. Mr. Davis gripped the arms of his chair and his throat moved convulsively.

Ghost Feature in Case.

An old soldier in faded blue, his face framed in ragged white hair, mumbled toothlessly to a neighbor that he hoped that man would go free. At that moment a subterranean knocking was heard in the courtroom. It continued for some time and Judge Kimbrough finally asked the bailiff to find out what it was.

"It is ghosts of the Iroquois dead knocking at the iron gates of justice," said one of the lawyers for the state.

The arguments of the state were more at length than had been anticipated. State's Attorney Keesler took up all the morning reading authorities to combat those cited by Mr. Mayer. When court opened Assistant State's Attorney Barbour headed the procession of satellites carrying law books. The table for the prosecuting attorneys was buried in books.

"We will beat them," said Mr. Barbour, "for we have three more books than they brought into court."

Judge Kimbrough gave minute attention to every point, frequently interrupting the lawyers with questions. That he considered the points at issue vital was seen clearly.

Points on Ordinance.

The answers of the state to three contentions of Mr. Mayer that the Chicago building ordinance was invalid because of indefiniteness, that the ordinance does not specify upon whom the duty of compliance with the provisions rests, and that the city has no power to legislate in fire limits beyond the demand that no wooden buildings be erected within said limits were as follows:

"The building ordinance is sufficiently definite within the meaning of the law. The term "large," as used in the ordinance, is not a controlling word. It is the use to which the building is put that controls it.

"Primarily the duty to carry out the provisions of the ordinance rests upon the owner, but upon proof that some one has control or management of the building that person is the owner in the meaning of the law.

"Cities have in their inherent police power a right to make all regulations for the safety of the people that bear equally upon all of a certain class."

The state further held, when a corporation or person other than a defendant was the actual owner the defendant might be held as accessory on the theory that he was present and encouraged the commission of the crime.

Judge Kimbrough appeared especially desirous of information upon this point, and United States Supreme court decisions were read in support.

Mr. Bluebeard Jr. to Appear.

There was some discussion over the fact that the city was plastered during the day with show bills advertising the appearance at the opera house next Monday night of "Mr. Bluebeard Jr., a production bearing the name and based on the plot of the play given in the Iroquois theater at the matinée when 596 lives were lost.

"I'll wager something happens that night," said Harry J. Powers, who clings close to Mr. Davis. "That play was always a hoodoo."

One of the unique figures in court today was an old man with patriarchal beard and child like eyes. He was an inventor and had a new fire escape to put on the market. He introduced himself as Alexander C. Barton and said that "Uncle Joe" Cannon told him the invention had the world beaten. His plan appeared good and excited interest.

HUSBAND DEAD FOUR DAYS; POLICE FAIL TO TELL WIFE.

Body of Jacob Jacobson, with Papers in Garments, Lies in the Morgue Through Negligence.

An example of police negligence was brought to light last night in the failure to notify Mrs. Mary Jacobson that her husband, Jacob Jacobson, 45 years old, member of the firm of Egan & Jacobson, painting contractors, 182 North Elizabeth street, had been dead for four days. The body was lying on a slab in Rolston's morgue on Wabash avenue, although cards bearing the firm name and address were found in his pockets, according to police messages sent to all stations.

Mrs. Jacobson, nearly distracted with apprehension at her husband's mysterious disappearance, only learned of his death when she went to the East Chicago avenue police station last night to report the disappearance and ask the aid of the police in finding him.

Sergeant Carey, to whom she told her story, remembered the message of the "unidentified" man at Rolston's morgue, and upon investigation verified the description given him by Mrs. Jacobson with that contained in the police message. The woman went to the morgue and there completed the identification. She bitterly arraigned the laxity of police methods that failed to follow up the clew contained on the cards found in her husband's clothes.

Jacobson dropped dead Monday night in a saloon at 67 Randolph street, a few hours after he had left his residence to accompany a friend to the Chicago and Northwestern railroad depot. His body was taken to the morgue by the police of the Central detail police station.

Officials of the West Chicago avenue police station, in whose precinct the Jacobson home is, last night declared that they were not requested to aid in the identification by the Central detail police.

DECLARES $228 LOW PRICE FOR FIXING PRINCE'S TEETH.

Dentists Testify for Dr. Lee Stewart, Who Is Suing N. W. Engalitcheff for Payment of Claim on Work Done.

Several dentists yesterday told a jury in Judge Gibbons' court that $20 an hour for the services of a dentist was not an exorbitant charge. The jury is listening to testimony in a suit brought against Prince Nicholas W. Engalitcheff, Russian vice consul in Chicago, and his wife by Dr. Lee K. Stewart for $228.

Prince Engalitcheff was not in court, but was represented by Attorney E. E. Gray. The latter avers that because of the prominence of his titled client the dentist imposed upon him and charged more for dental work done for him than for other persons.

Dr. H. H. Schumann, with offices in the Columbus Memorial building, testified in behalf of Dr. Stewart. He said that Dr. Stewart's services to the prince were worth more than the amount being sued for.

"Doctor," asked Attorney Gray, "is $25 a reasonable charge for putting in a porcelain crown on the second upper bicuspid?"

"Yes," replied Dr. Schumann. "I have charged twice as much."

"Can you tell me the names of any person who paid $50 for that kind of work?" asked the lawyer.

"Yes," answered the witness, "that amount I received from several lawyers."

The hearing will be resumed this morning.

FIRE INJURES COLLEGE HALL.

Damage of $10,000 Results When Phosphorus Is Spilled in Northwestern University Laboratory.

Science hall of Northwestern university was threatened by fire for the third time since March 1 yesterday, when a blaze believed to have been caused by phosphorus accidentally spilled on the floor in the laboratory started.

The fire was discovered by a student, who sent in an alarm. When the first detachment of firemen reached the building the fear of the fire spreading to the main part of the structure caused them to summon all the available fire apparatus in the district. After an hour of hard work the firemen confined the blaze to the wing, which is a two story and basement brick structure. The damage to the building and contents is estimated at $10,000.

Prof. A. Young was the last to leave the wing where the blaze was discovered. He told the firemen he believed that some of the phosphorus which had been previously spilled had fallen under the flooring and had set fire to the building.

REPUBLICANS ASK CITY OF PROGRESS

Speakers to Confine Themselves to What Honest Administration Means.

PLEDGED TO 17 "WANTS."

Busse Insists on Clean Campaign and No "Shady" Methods in Efforts to Elect Him.

What an honest, progressive, common sense administration of Chicago's affairs means to you—this, and this only, is to be the purport of addresses of republican speakers who are to take the platform for Busse within a few days.

After talking on the many subjects that probably will come up for discussion in the campaign, the republican county central committee decided yesterday afternoon that subjects assigned to various speakers should deal only with this topic, as set forth in the platform upon which Fred A. Busse is running.

The vast possibilities of this subject, without departing from the republican platform planks, were apparent to members of the committee, who drew the following seventeen "wants" from the platform, for which all candidates are pledged to work:

Modern street car service at once instead of delaying for political reasons.

Streets and alleys cleaned thoroughly; garbage and waste removed punctually.

No smoke—pure air, clear sky, and an inviting city.

More and better street pavements.

Streets properly lighted.

Reorganization of all city departments under an approved business basis.

School facilities for every child and proper sanitary conditions in all schools.

A new city hall conforming in style and architecture to the new county building, to be erected in the same businesslike manner.

Elimination of fads and fancies in management of public schools.

A practical enforcement of civil service laws in all departments of the city government.

Advancement of our commercial and industrial interests.

Highest efficiency in police, health, and fire departments.

No political assessments of city employés.

Practical results in all departments, Chicago to benefit.

A greater Chicago.

Busse Demands Clean Campaign.

Mr. Busse approved of this sort of campaign. Before the meeting he told several members of the committee he would not approve of any "shady" political methods in the campaign. He instructed his managers to take care that none of the outside organizations daily joining forces with the republican central body used methods that might be questioned.

"While I cannot agree with Mayor Dunne in his political views, I have known him a long time," said Mr. Busse in talking of campaign plans. "I can only control what is done on one side, but for that one side I am going to be sure I can be personally responsible for all of its actions.

"I have a good platform to run on and I am proud of it. I feel confident that, if the people know just what the platform is, they cannot but vote for it. My idea is to carry it to them."

Then Mr. Busse talked over all of the seventeen points brought out by the committee. He was absolutely sure of just what should be done in almost every department of the city government. Even his managers were surprised by the intimate knowledge he exhibited of the inner workings of Chicago's municipal affairs.

The conscientious striving for better service in every department of the city administration is well illustrated in an interview between the injured postmaster and a physician who got past the guard of attendants and "reached" the republican candidate.

"When you are elected, I wish to be given an opportunity to fill the office of health commissioner," said the applicant.

Will Choose Only Best Men.

"Well, don't depend on me for anything," replied Mr. Busse. "If I am elected I will fill every department with the best men that can be obtained for the offices with the money appropriated for the purpose. The health department, for instance, is one of the most important of city offices. If Dr. Henrotin were alive I should consult him as to the best man to get for the office and I should take his advice. As he is not alive I shall follow the recommendation of medical men who stand deservedly high in the community. Personal wishes of the man who happens to be mayor should have nothing to do with the selection of an officer of such importance to the public welfare."

There have been many office seekers among the visitors at the postmaster's home, 391 Sedgwick street. With a few exceptions they have been headed off by the patient's physicians or his attendants.

Many Clubs Indorse Postmaster.

The Twentieth Ward Hebrew Republican club met at 443 South Marshfield avenue and adopted resolutions indorsing Mr. Busse and J. P. Stewart, candidate for alderman from that ward. The resolutions maintain Mr. Busse's known convictions upon all questions of the day, as well as his tried ability in public office, make him a proper candidate for mayor.

On Cottage Grove avenue 200 business men between Twenty-second and Fifty-fifth streets have organized themselves into the Cottage Grove Avenue Busse club, which held its first meeting at Thirty-first street and Cottage Grove avenue at noon. John F. Talmage, 3167 Cottage Grove avenue, was elected president, and James R. McPherson, 2935 Cottage Grove avenue, vice president.

Bowling enthusiasts from all parts of the city, 400 strong, organized the Busse Bowlers' body, more because of the postmaster's known stand on sports than because of the euphonious name. P. L. Pasdeloup, 52 Lytle street, was elected president, and Augustus Burkhardt, 940 North Clark street, vice president.

Men of Three Nations Form Clubs.

The Irish-American Republican club and the Swedish-American Republican club probably will make the strongest showing of any of the foreign societies in the campaign. The Swedish organization indorsed the traction ordinances and held up Mr. Busse as the logical candidate for mayor. A meeting of the Irish club will be held at the Briggs house tonight.

The Polish Young Men's Citizens' club, organized at Pelka's hall, 759 West Seventeenth street, indorsed the candidacy of Fred A. Busse for mayor and pledged itself to work for the success of the republican party. It intends to enroll 2,000 voters before election day. Officers elected were:

President—John A. Pelka.

Secretary—Albert Peletz.

Sergeant at arms—Leo Fickstaedt.

Committee on enrolling members—Joseph Gardzielewski, Joseph Maciejewski, J. Brzziwski, and M. Zaleta.

Vincent J. Jozwiakowski, former alderman from the Sixteenth ward and last fall democratic candidate for clerk of the Circuit court, announced his intention to take the stump for Postmaster Busse. He said the democratic party of Chicago is "too socialistic" for his views.

Patrick H. Grimes, 6300 Cottage Grove avenue, wagered $2,000 with Edward Brennan that Fred A. Busse will be the next mayor. He said he would place $20,000 more on the same wager.

Opposing Candidates for Alderman to Represent the Twenty-first Ward.

Julian S. Mason.

Francis W. Taylor.

TAYLOR TO OPPOSE MASON

REPUBLICAN COUNCIL CANDIDATE IN TWENTY-FIRST.

Repetition of Contest Between Honore Palmer and Fletcher Dobyns Some Years Ago Expected by Politicians—Both Nominees Have Social Distinction—Say They Will Renounce "Pink Tea" Methods in Campaign—Party Selections for Aldermen.

The list of aldermanic nominations was completed last evening when the republicans of the Twenty-first ward put up Francis W. Taylor to run against Julian S. Mason. In all wards where either party has failed to name a candidate they must go without one for the time for filing nomination papers expired at midnight.

The situation in the Twenty-first ward is interesting. Both the republican and democratic candidates are young men of some social distinction, and a campaign, such as Honoré Palmer and Fletcher Dobyns waged some years ago, is looked for. However, both candidates say they are in deadly earnest and that they are planning no "pink tea" methods.

Mr. Taylor, who was named by the republicans last evening, was born in Chicago in 1878 and has lived in the ward since 1892. He was educated at St. Paul's school at Concord, N. H., and afterward traveled abroad for a time. He is a member of the real estate firm of Aldis & Co., having worked for it six years before being taken into partnership in 1904. His nomination was by a unanimous vote. S. H. Helm was chairman of the convention and Ald. Otto Reese made the nominating speech.

None Against John Brennan.

The republican convention of the Eighteenth ward adjourned without being able to find a man willing to run against John Brennan. Charles Stieve, a grain merchant, was nominated, but he refused to run, as did Maj. W. P. Dusenberry. Then a committee was named to go out in the highways and byways and draft somebody, but it met with no success and finally quit in disgust.

In the Nineteenth also no republican has been named against John Powers, nor is there one running against Ald. Michael Kenna in the First. In all three of these wards, however, the Independence league has a candidate.

Ex-Ald. Walter J. Raymer, republican nominee from the Twenty-eighth ward, filed a notice of withdrawal with the city clerk last evening. He said he did not want the nomination and could not serve if elected. Under the law the place on the ticket can be filled by the republican county committee.

LEWIS BELITTLES TRACTION ISSUE.

Mayor's Chief Campaigner to Make Ordinances Minor Matter in Speeches.

DARROW WILL NOT COME.

Says He Cannot Leave Idaho Miners' Trial Till Near Day of Election.

James Hamilton Lewis, corporation counsel and Mayor Dunne's chief campaign orator, made his position on the traction ordinances plainer yesterday. He did not say he would support the ordinances when he took the stump, but he did say he did not consider them much of an issue, anyhow, and he did not intend to make them his main topic when he came to make speeches.

"I do not consider the ordinances the main issue," said the colonel. "I shall appeal to the voters to reelect Mayor Dunne on other grounds than opposition to the ordinances. There are plenty of such grounds.

"The way the ordinances stand now it is possible for the voters to vote for or against them, as they please, independent of their choice for mayor. If a majority decides to ratify the ordinances, that will settle the traction question and it will be out of politics. If at the same time Mayor Dunne is reelected he will have no traction question to bother him during his next term.

"As I look at it there is nothing to prevent a man who approves of the ordinances and at the same time Mayor Dunne's administration outside of his handling of the traction question from voting for both him and the ordinances.

Will Make Traction Secondary.

"So in my speeches, while not ignoring the traction ordinances, I will make them a secondary matter. I will urge the voters to vote for Dunne's reelection on the ground that he has made an honest, capable, and patriotic mayor.

"It is for the people to decide whether the traction ordinances are to be ratified as an independent proposition. If they vote for them they are law, and even if there are flaws in them that ends that controversy. Neither mayor or council will have anything more to do with them. The issue is, whom do the people want for mayor, irrespective of his ideas on the ordinances."

It was all over town around the city hall that this represents Mayor Dunne's own plan of campaign; that he intends to break away from his Independence league support and himself ignore the traction ordinances when he takes the stump. But the men who knew him best doubted it. They argued that however he might be persuaded it would be the wiser course to pursue, at the finish Deputy Assistant Mayor Margaret Haley and the rest of the kitchen cabinet would get hold of him, and he would switch, as he has done so often before.

Darrow Refuses to Come.

News came during the day that Clarence S. Darrow, now in the west defending the miners on trial for murder, had refused to come to Chicago to make speeches for Dunne. The invitation was sent to Mr. Darrow by George Schilling, his close friend, whose appointment on the board of local improvements was secured from Mayor Harrison by Mr. Darrow. The latter replied that his present work would keep him in the west until nearly the end of the campaign, and after that he intended to go to California to rest.

Mr. Darrow and Mayor Dunne had a falling out when the former resigned as special traction counsel.

Lower Fare Talk Criticised.

Ald. Werno, chairman of the committee on local transportation, took sharp issue with the suggestion of the mayor that if the traction ordinances are defeated perhaps in some way 3 or 4 cent fares can be secured for Chicago. He denounced the plan as insincere and intended simply to catch votes.

After telling how, while the ordinances were being considered, the mayor never asked for cheaper fares and saying that with the long hauls in Chicago roads could not be operated for a less charge than 5 cents a passenger.

Mayor Dunne announced that the Harrison letter was not so bad as it might be. He remarked that he and Mr. Harrison had differed before, and then said complacently:

"I note, however, that notwithstanding our differing views on the traction ordinances, Mr. Harrison says he will vote for me for mayor."

Mayor Dunne will open his campaign this evening at the Jefferson club banquet. He is to be the principal orator, and his speech is expected to be the keynote of his campaign.

Try to Discourage Movement.

An attempt to discourage the organized movement of the street car employés against Mayor Dunne was made through a statement, issued by a number of officials of the car men's unions, that the "10,000 union street car employés of Chicago stand pledged to vote against the car ordinances." The statement was signed by M. C. Buckley, J. H. Larkin, Robert Page, John Campbell, E. M. Deegan, and C. H. Bayer.

Dunne leaders among the street car men decided to purchase 20,000 buttons, bearing the phrase, "Labor votes 'No' on the little ballot," out of the union funds. Headquarters will be opened with J. C. Colgan, a former democratic politician from the Sixteenth ward, in charge.

Fixes Blame in Building Tragedy.

South Framingham, Mass., March 8.—The responsibility for the collapse of the Amsden building in this town on July 23, 1906, when twelve persons lost their lives is placed by Judge Kingsbury of the first Southern Middlesex district court, before whom the inquest was held, upon the architect, the contractor, and the subcontractor.

HOLDS DUNNE LABOR FOE.

STREET CAR UNION SPEAKER URGES ELECTION OF BUSSE.

H. Burgo Says Present Mayor Is Responsible for More Damage to the Cause of Organized Workers than Any Other One Man in Chicago—Traction Employes Said to Be Ten to One in Favor of Republican Candidate and Ordinances.

Mayor Dunne was denounced as an enemy to organized labor last night at an enthusiastic meeting of union street car employés, organized to support the candidacy of Fred A. Busse, at North Clark street and Sheffield avenue. H. Burgo, member of the executive committee of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employés of America and delegate to the Chicago Federation of Labor, denounced the mayor as "responsible for more damage to the cause of unionism than any other one man in Chicago."

In contrast to Dunne, Mr. Burgo told of a personal canvass of drivers employed by Mr. Busse whose unanimous verdict was that "Mr. Busse is the biggest and best hearted man they ever worked for and a firm friend of the unions."

Ten to One for Busse.

The speech of Mr. Burgo, filled with criticisms of the record of Mayor Dunne from the union standpoint, was applauded enthusiastically.

Mr. Burgo and others said investigation has showed that the street car men are ten to one in favor of Busse. At the Devon avenue barns, it was said, this was found to be correct. At the limits barns only two out of 125 men confessed to being for Dunne.

It has been learned that recently Dunne workers among street car men succeeded in obtaining a levy of 25 cents per capita, or $1,200, from the treasury of the north side street car men's union for the Dunne campaign fund. A spirited protest and a demand for reconsideration of this action will be made on Thursday, when the union meets at Schoenhofen hall on Milwaukee avenue.

"No good union man should think for a minute of supporting Dunne," said Mr. Burgo in his speech. "He should not vote for the man who disrupted the teamsters' union by letting policemen ride on the wagons and deliver and check off goods. Mayor Dunne promised the union committee not to let the policemen ride, but they were on the wagons the next day.

Lays Blame on Mayor.

"Mayor Dunne's supporters are trying to soft soap street car men by preaching against the ordinances because they do not take the wages or hours of the men into consideration. Mayor Dunne himself is responsible for that, and I hope all union men will remember it when election comes around. Three engineers he appointed reported they didn't see how the companies could afford to pay 33½ cent an hour, the figure the men demand. At the present time, under union rules, 'trippers' are getting 33½ cents an hour, although the appointees of Mayor Dunne reported that the companies could not pay so much.

"Busse is the best friend to union labor that we can vote for. I take a canvass on the cars, and of all the men I've asked, many of them democrats, I've found only three for Dunne. The best prophecy of a man's defeat is when his own party goes back on him. As mayor he has been led around by a few bob tailed democrats and Margaret Haley. As judge, I understand, he won his reputation through advice of the late Judge Tuley. Mayor Dunne is one of the worst and most bitter enemies to union labor in Chicago.

Means Best of Service.

"With the ordinances and Mr. Busse as mayor we will get decent roadbeds so that we will not be jerked to pieces. We will have all vestibuled cars with cross seats, center aisles, and schedules of from two to two and a half minutes instead of from seven to eight minutes, as the public, to its sorrow, knows."

Mr. Burgo's speech was warmly seconded by President Charles G. Dall of the street car men's Busse organization, John Elten, secretary; and S. A. Green, acting secretary. It is said the management of the Union Leader, the street car men's paper, is to be "called down" for its support of Dunne in defiance of wishes of members of the union.

AGAIN M. O. MEETS DEFEAT; WINNETKA SCORNS DOCTRINE

Committee Ordered to Investigate and Ascertain Best Method of Obtaining Gas Service.

Winnetka gave its first expression of scorn for the doctrine of municipal ownership last night, when a special town meeting considered the report of a committee investigating methods of obtaining gas service for the suburb.

Resolutions for the appointment of a committee of three members of the village council, three citizens, and F. E. Herdman, commissioner of public works, stated that their duty was to develop a plan for the installation of a municipal plant. Their report showed that they construed the resolutions more broadly and had considered the purchase of gas from adjoining towns, and even the granting of a franchise to a private corporation.

William Bross Lloyd moved that the matter be referred back to the committee with instructions to prepare an M. O. plan. Immediate objection was registered by Otto C. Butz, Ira C. Wood, C. C. Arnold, and others. An amendment that the committee be authorized to investigate the entire subject and find the best and most speedy method of obtaining gas service was passed almost unanimously.

The final and most accentuated expression of unconcern toward the M. O. theory was given when Mr. Lloyd offered to read an "essay." Several speakers insinuated that they did not care to hear about municipal ownership. Judge Thomas A. Windes presided. About 200 persons were present.

PROMINENT PEOPLE JOIN IN THE FIGHT AGAINST CONSUMPTION

The percentage of mortality in tubercular cases, as shown by government statistics, has resulted in prominent people of all classes enlisting in the fight to check the further spread of the dread disease, and effect its ultimate eradication.

While the problem of curing consumption does not, as yet, appear to have been successfully solved, it is apparent that the disease can be prevented by a little ordinary care.

Neglect of an ordinary cold is very apt to result in contracting tubercular trouble. The cold leaves the lungs sore, and peculiarly susceptible to tubercular germ.

A well-known authority has published the simple formula that he has used successfully for the past twenty years in treating various forms of throat and lung trouble. He claims that the sundry incipient affections of the throat, lungs and bronchial tubes would seldom reach an acute stage if this formula was generally known and used. It is said to break up a cold in twenty-four hours and cure any cough of a curable nature.

The ingredients are simple and inexpensive, easily obtained from any good prescription druggist, and can be prepared by any one. Take a half ounce of Virgin Oil of Pine (Pure), two ounces of Glycerine and a half pint of good Whiskey. Mix in a bottle and shake well. Use in teaspoonful doses every four hours.

Pure ingredients are essential, and to guard against substitution it is best to purchase each separately and mix at home. Virgin Oil of Pine (Pure) is put up, for dispensing only, in half-ounce vials, each vial securely sealed in a round wooden case with an engraved wrapper showing the name—Virgin Oil of Pine (Pure), guaranteed under Food and Drugs act of June 30th, 1906, serial number 451, prepared only by Lench Chemical Co., Cincinnati, Ohio—plainly printed thereon. There are many rank imitations of Virgin Oil of Pine (Pure) put out under similar name and style of package, but these are not only ineffective for the purpose, but may cause nausea, and are often dangerous. It is always well to remember that the object of an imitator is to deceive. There is no known substitute for Virgin Oil of Pine (Pure).

MINISTER ASSAILS SUNDAY THEATERS

MAKES PLEA FOR ACTORS.

Reference to Thaw Case in Address Calls Out Criticism by Women of Stage.

"The injunction, 'Remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy,' is almost an unknown commandment in Chicago. Sunday is a day of riot and law violation. The open theater engenders an air of looseness and hilarity that is greatly responsible for that fact. Chicago has a reputation east and west for its wide open Sunday, and disregard for law generally."

In this vein the Rev. William White Wilson, pastor of the St. Mark's Episcopal church and president of the Actors' Church alliance, arraigned the "lid off" policy prevailing in Chicago nowadays, and declared for a closed theater on Sunday. He bitterly denounced managers of the Chicago theaters who oppose closing on Sunday as "slave drivers and inhuman money grabbers."

The Rev. Dr. Wilson presided and made the opening speech yesterday afternoon at the meeting of the alliance in Masonic temple.

The meeting was well attended by representatives of the stage and pulpit. The Sunday closing question was put to a vote. It was unanimous in favor of the closed theater on Sunday. Dr. Wilson announced that a great mass meeting will be called in the near future to make a public demand for Sunday closing of the playhouses.

Clash Over the Thaw Case.

The meeting was enlivened by a clash of opinions between the stage and the pulpit. Dr. Wilson was whole hearted in his defense of actors and actresses, but when he brought up the Thaw case two feminine representatives of the stage called him to task, without giving him time to explain. The foremost of the actress orators was Agnes Lane, 2915 Michigan avenue, formerly with Sarah Bernhardt.

Although Miss Lane started out in a heavy tragedy vein, the effect was sidetracked into a one act comedy by another actress, who volunteered to offer correction to some "stage technicalities." In one scene of this act Mrs. O. W. Dean, an actress, and president of the Progressive Health club, played a start part and "elicited hearty applause" by getting out her woman suffrage hatchet and slashing the air.

"Well, if you men and preachers want to know how to get the theaters closed on Sunday and the saloons, too, just give the women the right to vote. We'll show ——" and the rest of Mrs. Dean's declaration was lost amid applause, while she continued with gestures apparently imitating a woman stuffing the ballot box.

For "White List" of Theaters.

The Rev. Willard H. Thorp voiced the sentiment of the meeting when he suggested a "white list" for theaters that close on Sunday.

"There is no calling more strenuous than that of acting," he said. "Six nights in the week and two matinées is too much for body and brain, not to mention seven days in the week, two matinées, and every holiday. I think one of the most effective ways in which this alliance could work would be to make a white list of such theaters as consent to close on Sunday, and encourage a polite boycott against the others."

"I think that would be a good plan," interjected Dr. Wilson. "As head of this organization and among other ways in my connection with the Iroquois Memorial association, I have conversed with many actors and actresses on this subject. They all want the theater closed on Sunday, but many are afraid to say so."

"One actor told me the people who attend the theater on Sunday are entirely different from those of the other days of the week. They are of the rougher element and are unable to appreciate any fine work, he said.

Places Blame on Managers.

"The theaters are making lots of money. It is shameful the way the theater managers make demands on actors and actresses. They seem to just want to see how much money they can grind out of them—just run them to death and then throw them aside and get others.

"Not long ago two show persons came to me to get married. They came at midnight. I asked them why on earth they didn't come at a reasonable hour, and they declared it was impossible to find any other time any day in the week.

"The stage people are about the only class of persons under such strict and exacting managers who are not organized for self-protection. Shall we boost the labor unions entirely and not extend aid to those who are being ground to death to entertain us?"

Protests Made by Actresses.

Dr. Wilson said the stage has been given a certain odium by the Thaw trial that it does not deserve. When he broached this subject Miss Agnes Lane arose and exclaimed:

"Now, Mr. Chairman, I don't think you have any right to connect the Thaw murder with the stage. Evelyn Nesbit was not an actress; she was an artist's model. I have been on the stage six years, and of all the acquaintances I made there was but one woman who was not a good woman. In a less extensive acquaintance in philanthropic and church work I have found half a dozen women not as good as they represented themselves to be."

Mrs. O. W. Dean said she thought to close the theater some other day in the week would be as good as Sunday. She said Sunday is the only day the laboring class have to visit the theater.

The Rev. James V. Blake of Evanston said he is the father of two former actresses.

"I have heard my daughters tell of the physical and mental strains incident to stage life seven days in the week, and for that reason I sympathize with the stage people," he said.

The Rev. James Gorton, 536 Cuyler avenue, and the Rev. George B. Pratt of St. Andrew's Episcopal church arraigned theatrical managers from the "humanitarian standpoint."

Post Card Referendum Taken.

Miss E. M. Sanders, 32 Catalpa court, a city school teacher, secretary of the Actors' Church alliance, made a report on the postal card referendum.

"We have sent out 200 cards to actors and actresses," she said, "and will continue to send them out. Sixty have been returned and all but one favor closing the theaters on Sunday. We find that a great many actors and actresses are simply afraid to vote. One of them told me the members of his company had been told by their manager that one of them who voted in favor of closing Sunday would lose his job. We know how all the chorus girls would like to vote, but we know it's no use sending them ballots. They wouldn't dare vote, for they would only vote for Sunday closing."

It was proposed that a fund be raised to "block" a bill introduced in the legislature asking that a tax of $200 a Sunday be paid by theater managers who keep their playhouses open on that day. It was said the theater managers have sent a lobbyist to Springfield to fight the bill.

Mrs. Edward F. Flint, 3462 Indiana avenue, formerly leader of the Boys' Celestial choir, and an actress, was a speaker.

"Indorse These Large, Clean Cars at the Polls," Chicago Voters Are Asked in 400,000 Post Cards.

Mr. Aaron Wyre,
2463 Archer Ave.,
Chicago.

Four hundred thousand voters will be reminded of the necessity of registering if they expect to vote at the spring elections by little colored postal cards placed in the mail early this morning by the Citizens' Nonpartisan Traction Settlement committee.

The card contains pictures of a street car with plenty of seats. The inside of the folding card gives information about the ordinances which are to make such cars a possibility.

These cards are one of a series of fifteen "literary arguments" for the street car ordinances, being prepared by the nonpartisan settlement body. It is expected that more than 3,000,000 pieces of mail matter will be placed in the postoffice before the close of next week. Two organizations that affiliated with the central settlement body yesterday were the Evergreen Park Improvement club and the West End Improvement club. The West End club will hold a massmeeting next week. Walter L. Fisher has been invited to explain the ordinances.

SCHOOL RULES PUT ASIDE.

TEACHERS' TRANSFER ORDER IS VIOLATED BY REFORM BOARD.

Instructor from Agassis Building Sent to Kershaw Over Heads of Fifteen in Waiting List, Though Ineligible—Wiley W. Mills, Chief Reformer, Starts Agitation to Break Regulations—Cooley Takes a Sharp Rap at Infraction of Order.

The school management committee of the board of education yesterday violated one of its own "ironclad" rules, disregarded the principle of seniority, and voted to transfer from one school to another a teacher who was not eligible for a transfer over the heads of fifteen teachers who not only were eligible but had been on the waiting list for a long time. The committee voted to disregard both the rules of the board and the eligible list on motion of Trustee Wiley W. Mills, one of the "reformers."

Supt. Cooley reported two vacancies in the teaching force at the Kershaw school, Union avenue and Sixty-fourth street. He said that fifteen or more teachers were on the waiting list for transfer to that school, and that the two teachers at the head of the list were Miss Sarah M. Maher of the Ward school and Mrs. Leila M. Miller of the Fernwood school. He recommended that they be transferred to the coveted places.

Trustee Mills Opens Up.

Trustee Mills objected. He said Miss Edna S. Damon of the Agassis school had applied for the transfer first, and should be given one of the places.

Supt. Cooley consulted the records and then declared:

"Miss Damon is not eligible for a transfer. She has been at the Agassis school for only a short time and will not become eligible for a transfer until the next school year."

"O, well, if you want to get out of it on a technicality," began Trustee Mills.

Supt. Cooley sprang to his feet, advanced to the side of the committee table, and with his face red with anger declared he objected to that insinuation.

Trustee Mills, mollified, said nothing.

"The superintendent is bound to follow the rules," urged Miss Addams as an offering of peace.

Supt. Cooley slowly cooled off, and after Trustee Mills had made another plea for the violation of the rules a vote was taken. It stood 4 to 3 for transferring Miss Damon.

Loomis Punctures His Boom.

Principal Hiram B. Loomis of the Hyde Park high school is said to have punctured his boom for the superintendency of schools by declaring before the school management committee that he does not favor a teachers' pension fund. This statement was made by Principal Loomis when a committee composed of Principal Louis J. Block of the Medill high school, Principal John T. Ray of the Crerar school, and Miss Nellie Nolan asked that the members of the legislative committee of the teachers' pension convention be allowed to go to Springfield to lobby for the amendments to the pension law without loss of pay.

ACTOR IS KILLED IN ELEVATOR.

William Peterson, Vaudeville Performer, Crushed to Death in Commercial National Bank Building.

William Peterson, 28 years old, a marble-worker and vaudeville performer, was crushed to death when he endeavored to board a moving elevator at the eleventh floor of the new Commercial National Bank building, Adams and Dearborn streets, yesterday. Peterson left the stage two months ago because his wife wished to have him with her. He was contemplating an early return. Recently he was on a western circuit.

Frank A. Wetter, 40 years old, 19 Oak place, was struck by a street car and probably fatally injured while riding on a bicycle near Wellington place and Clark street. He sustained a fracture of the skull.

OBITUARY.

MRS. EMELINE TILLINGHAST OTIS, widow of Frederick R. Otis, died last evening at her residence, 2039 Prairie avenue, after a brief illness of pneumonia. OVEREDUCATION AN EVIL.

SO SAYS W. H. MALLOCK TO THE TWENTIETH CENTURY CLUB.

London Political Economist Would Fit Opportunities of Each Pupil to Probable Position He Might Attain in Life—Universal Schooling Probably Stimulates Power of Reasoning Wrongly, Suggests the Speaker—Meeting Held at 150 Rush Street.

A system of education in which pupils would receive not equal opportunities but opportunities "in proportion to their needs and the probable position in life which it may be supposed they might by any possibility attain," was advocated last evening by W. H. Mallock, the London political economist.

Dr. Mallock was the guest of the Twentieth Century club, which met at the residence of Dr. Fenton B. Turck, 151 Rush street. In an address on "The Equalization of Opportunity" he startled his hearers by declaring, in effect, that the prevailing system of popular education is responsible for much of the discontent which is finding expression throughout the world in socialism and kindred "remedies."

Think Opportunities Unequal.

"Men who believe they have certain talents or abilities," he said, "see a man whom they believe to be inferior to themselves becoming rich or famous, and they sigh for his 'opportunities.' If it is in business they sigh for 'capital.' It is these people who say opportunities in life are unequal. The socialist, for example, wants the practical reward of efficiency to be the same as that of inefficiency.

"I have heard it said frequently that universal education stimulates discontent. Probably it is true. If it is true, in such cases education accomplishes nothing but to increase a man's power of reasoning wrongly.

"It seems to me that we must have not an equality but an approach to an equality of educational opportunity—a system not absolutely equal to all, but equal in consideration of each pupil's needs and advantages and equal in consideration of the probable position in life which it might be supposed he might, by any possibility, attain.

Would Prevent Disaster.

"This would be freeing millions from a gratuitous sense of failure and from many a disaster that men might be taught to prevent.

"The only real equalization of opportunity would be to arrest the successful competitors once a month and put them back into the same row with the others who started. This would, of course, kill ambition."

NEED MORE ADVICE, LESS CASH.

Jewish Immigrants Suffer Because of Lack of Information, Says Dr. Fischkin.

Too much money in charity and not enough advice and direction to Jewish immigrants is responsible for the overcrowding and suffering in the Ghetto of Chicago declared Dr. E. A. Fischkin, 692 North Hoyne avenue, last night. Dr. Fischkin was speaking before the Chicago Hebrew institute at the West Side auditorium, West Taylor and Center avenue.

"Jewish emancipation in Russia is a forlorn hope," he said, "and the only solution of their problem is by emigration to America.

"Concerted action here will gradually cause the figurative walls built about American Ghettos to crumble, and all lines will dissolve, leaving one great family of American Jews, and but one great body of citizens of the United States."

CHRISTMAS MURDER TO JURY.

Verdict Expected in Trial of Sergeant Griffin for Killing of Corporal at Fort Sheridan.

The jury in the trial of Sergt. John A. Griffin, the Ninth cavalry soldier accused of killing Corporal Hubert Taylor, a fellow soldier, Christmas day is expected to return a verdict today. The jurors were instructed by Judge Landis in the federal court yesterday at the conclusion of the attorneys' arguments. Judge Landis charged the jury not to consider the question of color or rank. He also said Griffin's name should not be considered in connection with the mention of an alleged disorderly place in Highwood.

BRING STANDARD OIL TO TERMS.

Property Owners Near Alton Compel Contract to Build $100,000 Roadway When Old One Is Abolished.

Alton, Ill., March 8.—[Special.]—To obtain permission to abolish a public road through a tract bought by the Standard Oil company for its big oil refinery to be built near Alton, the Standard has been compelled to give a contract to property owners to build a hard road around the tract at a cost of $100,000. The property owners resisted the efforts to detour the road until the Standard contracted to build the necessary bridges, grade, and level the proposed new route, and make of it the best hard road in the state. Work will begin next week.

ON A THEORETICAL STRIKE

DRIVERS WALK OUT AND THEN BACK AT PERRIGO'S.

"Czar" Shea, Admitting Lack of Power to Keep Men Who Are Back in Their Dues Away from Work, Invents a Subterfuge That Seems to Satisfy Both Sides—Woman's Trade Union League Establishes Itself at 275 La Salle Street.

"Czar" Shea, head of the teamsters' union, has a strike novelty which probably will be appreciated by employers. It is the "theoretical" strike. It was tried yesterday against A. B. Perrigo, president of the South Side Liverymen's association, and at last account was working satisfactorily to both sides.

The union theory is that Mr. Perrigo's drivers are all on strike. Practically they are not. The undertaker during the day conducted eight funerals and did not have to employ strike breakers.

The peculiar situation was brought about by W. J. Gibbons, business agent of the cab drivers' local, who went to the Perrigo stables, 2971 State street, and ordered a walkout. The twenty-five drivers followed the business agent to the corner and then turned around and walked back to work again.

"You see," said Gibbon afterward, "it was impossible to call a real strike owing to the fact that the men are not really union members. They are all 'back' in their dues. Of course, under those circumstances I had no authority to take them away from work."

Gibbons said, however, that to all intents and purposes the Perrigo drivers were "out" and that an imaginary picket line had been thrown around the stables. "Theoretically," he said, the barn was "tied up."

"It suits me all right," said Mr. Perrigo last night. "As long as I don't have a real strike on my hands. I think the truth of the matter is that the men in my employ are tired of paying union dues to support Shea and some other officials."

The Woman's Trade Union league has established downtown headquarters at 275 La Salle street in charge of Miss Alice Steghagen and Miss Alice Henry.

'PETER PAN' TO HELP CHILDREN

Fairyland Play Will Give Benefit Performance for Chicago Children's Hospital Next Monday Night.

The imaginative fairyland of "Peter Pan," which has afforded entertainment to Chicagoans during the last week, is to be the means of bringing help to many little boys and girls of Chicago. The performance at the Illinois theater next Monday night will be for the benefit of the Chicago Children's Hospital society.

The officers of the society have completed the arrangements for the benefit. There will be several parties for the performance and efforts will be made to transform the affair into a children's night. Miss Maude Adams, the Peter Pan of the play, has entered into the spirit of the plans and has given the officers helpful encouragement.

Miss Clara O. Brawley is chairman of the committee in charge of the benefit. She is assisted by a number of women interested in philanthropy. Dr. Frank Billings is president of the society.

ANOTHER WEST SIDE ROBBERY.

Thieves Invade Residence of James Dunne, 330 Ashland Boulevard—Police Called, Arrive Too Late.

The failure of the police to curb the operations of burglars in various sections of the city has resulted in another robbery on the west side. The residence of James Dunne, 330 Ashland boulevard, was entered by thieves last Wednesday evening while the members of the family were at dinner. Until yesterday, when Mrs. Dunne gave out the news of the robbery, no mention of the affair came from the police, although they were notified at once.

The thieves stole a gold chain and necklace, a pocketbook with some money in it, a revolver, and other valuables. Mrs. Dunne's maid heard a noise and went upstairs to investigate. The robbers fled before Mr. Dunne and other members of the family could start pursuit.

Mrs. Dunne says she telephoned for the police, but the officers arrived too late.

BABY IN GOWN GOES FOR WALK.

Homer Day, 2½ Years Old, Picked Up in the Street Crying with Cold—Father Finds Him at Station.

Homer Day, 2½ years old, clad only in his nightgown and shoes, left his home at 6233 Sangamon street about 8 o'clock last night, and was found half an hour later by Policeman Donnigan of Englewood station at the corner of Sixty-second and Sangamon streets, crying with cold. He was unable to tell his name and was taken to the police station, where Matron Macauley put him to bed. At midnight his father, Homer E. Day, came in excitedly to report his son's disappearance and the little fellow was turned over to him.

Volunteer Firemen to Meet.

Valparaiso, Ind., March 8.—[Special.]—At a meeting of representatives of the Northern Indiana Volunteer Firemen's association of the tenth congressional district today it was decided to hold the next tournament in Valparaiso. Twelve hundred dollars in prizes will be given.

Swedish Republican Clubs to Meet.

Rockford, Ill., March 8.—The annual convention of the Illinois League of the Swedish-American Republic clubs will be held here tomorrow. There will be a banquet, with addresses by Gov. Deneen, Congressman Bede, Lowden, Fuller, and others.

URGE VOTERS TO REGISTER

LEADERS OF BOTH PARTIES AT WORK IN ALL WARDS.

Every Person Who Did Not Register for Fall Election or Who Did Record His Name Then and Has Since Changed His Residence Must Appear on Roster or Be Denied Right to Cast Ballot in the Municipal Election.

Next Tuesday is the only registration day for the city election. The man who is not registered now and does not register then cannot vote for any candidate for mayor or for or against the traction ordinances. There will be no other opportunity for him to get his name on the registry lists.

The places of registration are the same as the voting ones, and the judges and clerks of election will be there from 6 o'clock in the morning until 9 in the evening to take the names. There will be a revision afterwards, but this only has to do with names the regularity of which is attacked. The name which is not put on then cannot be registered afterwards.

The voter who registered last fall and has not moved since need not bother himself. His name will stand unless he receives a "suspect notice" after Tuesday. In that event he must attend to it.

Every Voter Must Be Registered.

So it happens that these days the managers of both political parties are spending all their time and energy preparing for registration day. All they are thinking about is how to get the names of their voters on the registry lists. The speechmaking can come afterwards. There is small use in making a speech to a man who is not entitled to vote.

Last fall the republicans had by all odds the best of the registration. This was not only claimed by the managers at the time, but was demonstrated at the election. The heavy registration was all in the republican wards, while the democratic ones fell down badly. As the lists stand now the democrats will have to do a lot of hard work on Tuesday to at least break even.

Republicans to Swell List.

But the republicans think they can even do better Tuesday than they did in October. At least it was given out at party headquarters yesterday if they did not it would not be for want of trying. Every precinct captain has been enlisted and a house to house canvass is being made to determine what men entitled to vote are not registered and see to it they are got to the polls on registration day. It has always been the republican policy to get everybody registered without regard to their supposed political faith, on the ground it is the republican who is most apt to neglect this duty, and it is the history of Chicago politics that the larger the vote the greater the republican majority. It is on a light vote the democrats have the best chance of winning.

Important Issues Involved.

This year, however, an extraordinary interest is being taken in the city election. Citizens who did not take the trouble to register for last fall's election, not caring who was elected to the county offices, are waking up to the fact that next month there is to be chosen a mayor to serve for four years, and they are interested accordingly. Besides the question as to whether the traction ordinances shall be ratified and decent street car service secured for Chicago has stirred up the voters.

It is this which makes the election officials look for a large registration. They figure that many citizens who did not take the trouble to register last fall will do so next Tuesday, and after registration the total number of qualified voters will be close to the 400,000 mark, which is the mark for a presidential election.

WORK IN CITY HALL DRAGS; COLLECTOR ALONE IS BUSY.

Ante-Election Apathy Hangs Over All Departments—Mayor Deftly Defers Action in Saloon License Fight.

Ante-election apathy hung over various departments in the city hall yesterday. The only display of real activity was at the office of the city collector, where, it was estimated, 4,000 persons paid special assessments required to be in on March 10.

The mayor deftly deferred one matter until after election. This was the case of Fritz Griesbach, saloonkeeper, 5014 Cottage Grove avenue, who is doing business without a license by virtue of a mandamus suit before Judge Carpenter, and a stay of execution granted by the Supreme court, pending arguments for a rehearing.

Arthur Burrage Farwell and Attorney Robert McMurdy, representing the Hyde Park Protective association, asked the mayor to close Griesbach's place on grounds that the Supreme court twice has decided that Griesbach has no right to run a saloon at his present location. Griebach was represented by Colin C. H. Fyffe, Nicholas Michaels, and signers of frontage permits.

The mayor said he had been notified by the clerk of the Supreme court that arguments for a rehearing are to be entertained. They probably will be heard about April 15, after election.

GYMNASIUM TO BE DEDICATED.

Formal Opening of New One at Ell Bates House Takes Place Today.

The formal opening of the newly completed gymnasium of the Ell Bates Settlement house will take place this afternoon according to the announcement invitations of the board of lady managers, but "inside information" from the small boys of the neighborhood has it that the real opening will take place immediately after the reception and speech making, when the youngsters will assume charge. The new gymnasium will be dedicated as the gift of former Congressman George E. Adams and his family. Addresses will be given by Mr. Adams, Miss Mary McDowell, Miss Jane Addams, the Rev. Fred V. Hawley, and Mrs. Sarah F. Gane.

"VICTORY" FOR OIL TURNS TO DEFEAT.

Court Holds Latter Is in Point Excluding Basis of Trust's Examination.

Apparent victory for Standard Oil was turned into defeat in the trial of that company in the United States Circuit court yesterday, when Judge Landis was called on to qualify a ruling previously made.

The ruling followed an attempt by the defense to introduce as evidence the printed volume showing the Illinois classification of freight for 1899 as filed with the Illinois railroad and warehouse commission. Several times in the examination of witnesses attorneys for the defense had referred to this classification and indicated they would ultimately seek to show it was upon this the tariff sheets were compiled. The government had brought about the introduction of the Illinois classification for 1900 and contended this was the one in effect for the time covered by the indictment.

Not Filed with Commission.

An examination of the Illinois classification for 1899 showed it scheduled petroleum and its products as fifth class freight. This is identical with the classification of 1900, but as a safeguard the government sought to have it introduced as evidence. William Kilpatrick, secretary of the Illinois railway and warehouse commission, was on the witness stand and had identified the document. District Attorney Edwin W. Sims submitted it, but met with a vigorous objection from John S. Miller, leading counsel for the trust.

"I object to it on the ground that it is incompetent, as it was never filed with the interstate commerce commission," he said.

Judge Landis questioned Mr. Sims and found Mr. Miller's statement correct. The district attorney's explanation that reference to this document had been made by attorneys for the defense was of no avail.

"I'll exclude it for the present," ruled Judge Landis. "I think it should have been filed with the interstate commerce commission."

Urges Chicago and Alton List.

By reference to a tariff known as No. 24, filed by the Chicago and Alton with the commission at Washington, Mr. Sims tried to obtain from the witness testimony equivalent to his purpose in introducing the classification list.

"I object," broke in Mr. Miller with an air of confidence, "the court has already ruled on this matter."

"What is your purpose in trying to get this before the jury?" asked Judge Landis of Mr. Sims.

"If the court please," replied the government attorney, "the defense has referred to this document and indicated its intention to show that the classification which obtained under tariff 24 was not that of 1900, but of 1899."

"It appears to me that such a contention is immaterial," said the court. "You have already shown the classification of 1900 was the one in effect during the period covered by this indictment, and that this classification was on file with the interstate commerce commission. I will sustain the objection."

Explains Checking of Cars.

W. T. Aylesbury, car accountant for the St. Louis Terminal railway association, Merchants' Bridge company, and Wiggins' Ferry company, was called on to explain the checking up of the 1903 cars of oil, upon which the indictment is based. He presented an abstract for this purpose which, Attorney Moritz Rosenthal developed on cross examination, had been compiled by clerks working in Aylesbury's office.

Mr. Sims brought out that the tabulation was made from an inspection of 500 books 36 by 24 inches, and from 2 to 3 inches thick. The attorneys for the defense still objected to the abstract and Mr. Aylesbury was excused on condition that he return next week with his 500 books and verify each entry on his abstract.

Surprise by Terminal Clerk.

Something that promised a sensation came in the examination of Thomas F. Leddy, agent for the Terminal company at Blue Island, but formerly employed at Whiting. He testified that the tariff sheets were not displayed on the walls of the station at Whiting.

"Didn't you tell me they were so displayed when you talked to me several weeks ago?" demanded District Attorney Sims.

"Yes, but I've changed my opinion since then," replied Leddy.

"Have you talked to any one connected with the Standard Oil company?" asked the lawyer.

"Yes," admitted the witness.

"No, just before," replied the witness.

On cross examination Mr. Rosenthal brought out that Leddy's recollection was refreshed by showing him the date when Chief Clerk Douglas took charge of the Whiting office was Feb. 1, 1906, and reminding him that it was Douglas who tacked the tariffs on the wall.

Bondurant Will Declared Invalid.

Monticello, Ill., March 8.—[Special.]—Following a trial lasting two weeks the jury in the Piatt county circuit court returned a verdict holding invalid the will of Thomas Bondurant, who willed $900,000 to Eureka college and other associations of the Christian church of Illinois. Relatives filed suit, alleging undue influence.

FEARFUL ITCHING BURNING SORES

Boy in Misery 12 Years—Eczema Spread Over Body in Rough Scales, Cracked, Inflamed, and Swollen—Case Pronounced Incurable, but Completely Cured by Two Sets of Cuticura Remedies.

HIS SKIN NOW FINE AND SMOOTH AS SILK

"I wish to inform you that you wonderful Cuticura has put a stop to twelve years of misery I passed with my son. As an infant I noticed on his body a red spot and treated same with different remedies for about five years, but when the spot began to get larger I put him under the care of doctors. Under their treatment the disease spread to four different parts of his body. The longer the doctors treated him the worse it grew. During the day it would get rough and form like scales. At night it would be cracked, inflamed, and badly swollen, with terrible burning and itching. When I think of his suffering, it nearly breaks my heart. His screams could be heard down-stairs. The suffering of my son made me full of misery. I had no ambition to work, to eat, nor could I sleep.

"One doctor told me that my son's eczema was incurable, and gave it up for a bad job. One evening I saw an article in the paper about the wonderful Cuticura and decided to give it a trial.

"I tell you that Cuticura Ointment is worth its weight in gold, and when I had used the first box of Ointment there was a great improvement, and by the time I had used the second set of Cuticura Soap, Cuticura Ointment, and Cuticura Resolvent my child was cured. He is now twelve years old, and his skin is as fine and smooth as silk. Michael Stein-man, 7 Sumper Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y., April 16, 1905."

SEEK A SOLUTION OF ALIEN PROBLEM

Commission to Investigate Immigration Named by President Roosevelt.

WORK TO BE THOROUGH.

BY JOHN CALLAN O'LAUGHLIN.

Washington, D. C., March 8.—[Special.]—In the opinion of President Roosevelt, no investigation of recent times will be of greater importance to the country than that authorized by congress into the subject of immigration. He has selected the men who will act for the executive branch of the government in the investigation. The commission will consist of the following:

Commissioner of Labor Neill of Texas, Prof. Jeremiah W. Jenks of Cornell university, New York, and Ira E. Bennett of California.

Besides the investigation this commission will make, the president will consider the advisability of regulating immigration by treaties with foreign countries. In addition, the department of commerce and labor has begun the organization of a division of information in the bureau of immigration and naturalization to promote the beneficial distribution of aliens admitted into the United States among several states and territories desiring labor.

To Keep Out Undesirable Class.

The treaties, of course, will have to be submitted to the senate for ratification, and those of a general character probably will not be negotiated until the investigation is concluded. But arrangements can be entered into to secure the assistance of foreign governments in their own territories to prevent evasion of the laws of the United States governing immigration, and to stop the emigration to this country of persons who are excluded by our laws. Among these persons are anarchists, criminals, contract laborers, insane persons, sufferers from contagious diseases, paupers, professional beggars, immoral women, and persons likely to become a public charge.

The division of information as soon as organized will enter into correspondence with officials of the various states and territories for the purpose of assisting them in the promotion of immigration, obtaining data as to the resources, products, and characteristics of each state and territory, and publishing them in different languages and distributing them among all admitted aliens.

Aid for Southern States.

The states and territories will be authorized to maintain agents at immigrant stations, who will be given access to immigrants. It is proposed to grant these agents every facility and by this means to overcome in part at least the restrictions Attorney General Bonaparte, in the opinion rendered yesterday, threw around the southern states in their efforts to assist aliens to settle within their boundaries.

It is altogether unlikely, however, that the division of information will be of any great value in the distribution of immigrants. Persons intending to come to the United States usually have determined upon the place they propose to settle long before the actual purchase of the steamship ticket. Relatives draw them to cities or districts where they have found work. Any representation made by the agent of a state to such immigrants would be extraordinarily ineffective. Moreover, the presentation of resources, products, and physical characteristics of a state would hardly appeal to men and women of the ignorance of those seeking admission.

Some years ago the bureau of immigration considered the advisability of establishing at the main points of arrival museums containing the products of various states wishing immigration. It was suggested the immigrants would be attracted to the portions of the country in which they could find the products to which they were accustomed. Investigation showed the futility of adopting such a policy, as the immigrants were not inclined to pay any attention whatever to sections of which they had never heard, but desired to go to points where relatives and friends had located.

Commission Invites Criticism.

The commission, which will make the investigation into the immigration question is not well distributed from a geographical point of view. The senate subcommittee consists of two New Englanders and one southerner; the house subcommittee, of one New Englander, one man from the Atlantic coast, and one southerner. None of these men comes from west of the Alleghany mountains. It was necessary for the president to name representatives of the great west. He had selected Prof. Jenks from New York because of his acquaintance with governmental problems and of his experience in past investigations. Commissioner Neill was born in Illinois, but is credited to Texas. Bennett, whose name is under consideration for the third commissionership, is a Californian and knows thoroughly the attitude of the Pacific slope with regard to immigration.

Immediately after its appointment the commission will organize in Washington and map out its work. Its conclusions will be important, because the president intends to use them in framing his own views as to the character of further legislation which should be adopted. Any member of the congressional committee who looks for a junket will be disappointed. It is the intention, first, to study the problem from the domestic point of view, and when this has been completed then an investigation will be instituted abroad. Not only is it intended to consider the sociological aspect but it is proposed to inquire into the effects of large immigration upon industries.

The commission also will ascertain the extent of distribution of immigration, causes which are responsible for the congestion in big cities, and the best methods to adopt to induce immigrants to scatter. Much of this information is available in files of the bureau of immigration, but it is not in the shape desired. These are only a few of the features of the proposed investigation, but President Roosevelt is laying particular stress upon them, believing their determination involves the general welfare of the country.

NOTES FROM THE LABOR WORLD.

TOPEKA, KAS.—Conductors and trainmen of the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe railway voted not to accept a ten hour day and a 10 per cent increase in wages offered by the western operating officials at a recent meeting in Chicago. The men modified their demands, and ask for a nine hour day and a 12 per cent increase. The original demand was for a 16 per cent increase and an eight hour day. J. E. Hurley, general manager of the Santa Fe, stated that the company would not concede to the modified demand.

PARSONS, KAN.—Conductors and trainmen of the Missouri, Kansas, and Texas railroad voted to strike in case the officials refused an increase in wages. This action marks the first bolt of any of the forty-nine roads which took part in a recent conference in Chicago.

wise, so as to permit us to deal with the far-reaching evils of overcapitalization.

"This year we are making a beginning in the direction of serious efforts to settle some of these economic problems by railroad rate legislation. Such legislation, if so framed—as I am sure it will be—as to secure definite and tangible results, will amount to something of itself. And it will amount to a great deal more insofar as it is taken as the first step in the direction of the policy of superintendence and control over corporate wealth engaged in interstate commerce, this superintendence and control not to be exercised in a spirit of malevolence to men who have created wealth, but with a firm purpose both to do justice to them and to see that they in their turn do justice to the public at large."

Does Not Object to Pooling.

When Mr. Harriman calls at the White house, as he has requested permission to do, it would not be strange if almost identical language to this should greet him. Besides that, Mr. Harriman and others will be surprised perhaps to find that the president is quite willing to see the railroads get together, provided only that the control and general supervision of the government is not relaxed.

The president almost certainly will recommend to congress at the opening of the next session the passage of a new law permitting railroads to pool their earnings. If this is done, a great deal of the necessity for the magnificent combinations engineered by Mr. Harriman and others will disappear. If two competitive roads are permitted to put their earnings into a common treasury, on a joint basis, the necessity for the purchase of one road by the other disappears.

The public, of course, is concerned, not with the disposition of the money a railroad receives, but with the amount of tariff rates and with the equality of their application to all shippers. So long as the interstate commerce commission is permitted to supervise rates the president seems to be entirely willing that the railroads may divide up their property in such way as to bring the best results to their stockholders.

Congress to Pass Pooling Law.

At the opening of the next congress it should surprise no one to find that President Roosevelt, whose name thus far has been associated with the most radical anti-railroad legislation, bravely pleading with congress for a measure of exact justice to the railroads themselves, with the further suggestion that the railroads should be permitted to dispose of their own earnings in their own way as the best possible guarantee against the giving of rebates and discriminations generally. On this subject in his last annual message President Roosevelt said:

"Often railroads would like to combine for the purpose of preventing of big shippers from maintaining improper advantages at the expense of small shippers and of the general public. Such a combination, instead of being forbidden by law, should be favored. In other words, it should be permitted to the railroads to make agreements, provided these agreements be sanctioned by the interstate commerce commission and are published. With these two conditions complied with it is impossible to see what harm such a combination could do the public at large.

"It is a public evil to have on the statute books a law incapable of full enforcement because both judges and juries realize that its full enforcement would destroy the business of the country, for the result is to make decent railroad men violators of law against their will, and to put a premium on the behavior of willful wrongdoers."

People who are worrying over the president's policy for the future would do well to bear in mind these quotations from his present writings. They will find him almost certainly at the opening of the next congress advocating the repeal of the pooling law as an act of justice to the railroad, and the passage of a national corporation license law as a necessary safeguard for the people.

COWARD, SAYS MAJ. PENROSE IN REFERRING TO M'DONALD.

Army Officer on Trial at San Antonio Would Like to Suggest Few Questions if Witness Is Called.

San Antonio, Tex., March 8.—[Special.]—Maj. Penrose, who is being tried by court-martial at Fort Sam Houston as a sequel to the Brownsville raid, supposedly by negro soldiers, today created a decided sensation by referring to Capt. McDonald of the Texas Rangers as a "contemptible coward."

Court had taken a recess, and Maj. Penrose availed himself of the opportunity to relieve his pent up wrath. He denounced the former Texas ranger captain in the most bitter terms. Maj. Penrose in the fervency of his deliverance showed he does not subscribe to Maj. Blockson's estimate of McDonald's bravery. Maj. Blockson soon after the Brownsville outrage gave it as his opinion "Capt. McDonald would charge hell with a bucket of water." Maj. Penrose angrily and cynically declared:

"O, of course, all witnesses for the defense are liars, and all those witnesses who came here from Brownsville told the truth, but there is one contemptible coward I would like to have summoned as a witness before the same inquiry, and that is that fellow McDonald. I'd like to tip off to Senator Foraker a few questions to ask him."

As McDonald is known to be a man of rash temper, many persons expect trouble between the two men.

BUTTE PRINTERS MAY GO BACK.

Publishers Expected to Accept Arbitration Proposal Made by Men—End of Strike Near.

Butte, Mont., March 8.—[Special.]—The locked out printers on the Standard, Miner, News, and Intermountain newspapers tonight rejected a proposition to return to work, accepting a reduction of 50 cents a day. They made a counter proposition to return to work at the old scale and submit all controversies to arbitration. The publishers may accept that, though heretofore they have refused all overtures for arbitration. The prediction tonight is that the four daily papers will resume publication next week.

ILLINOIS LOSES IN DEBATE.

University Team Beaten by Ohio in Discussion as to Inheritance Tax.

Columbus, O., March 8.—By a unanimous decision of the judges Ohio state university tonight defeated the University of Illinois in the annual debate. Illinois took the negative of the question:

"Resolved, That the federal government should levy a progressive inheritance tax, its constitutionality being admitted."

The judges were Prof. T. C. Trueblood and Prof. T. A. Boyle of the University of Michigan and A. B. Anderson of Fort Wayne, Ind.

WORK OF THE LEGISLATURES.

BISMARCK, N. D.—The North Dakota legislature adjourned. The senate passed the hotel inspection, 2½ cent fare, and anti-pass bills. The house passed a bill providing for nominating United States senatorial candidates at primaries.

PIERRE, N. D.—The legislature adjourned after passing bills prohibiting railroad passes and telegraph franks, providing for 2½ cent railroad fares, amending the divorce laws, and establishing a state wide primary.

JEFFERSON CITY, MO.—The senate passed the anti-lobby bill, after amending it so as to allow attorneys to appear for a measure without registering.

KICK OVERBOARD BELLICOSE ALLEN

House Organization Disowns Representative for Attack on Gov. Deneen.

LESSON FOR FIREBRANDS.

His $50,000 Amendment Left Without Single Republican Vote to Support It.

Springfield, Ill., March 8.—[Special.]—At the present moment the leading republican members of the house organization would like to have it understood that Representative Charles Allen in his few remarks regarding Gov. Deneen did not have their support, directly or indirectly, openly or subrosa, or in any other fashion.

The fact that Mr. Allen did not get into action until he had been "egged on" induces republicans to disclaim any responsibility for what he said, they thinking that appearances might have justified a belief that they found a quiet pleasure in the situation.

The relations of the house organization and Gov. Deneen are not of the best at present on matters of legislation. Mr. Deneen's ideas are not the ideas of the organization, although the latter is disposed to help him carry out some of his proposed legislation, it is disinclined to help with other propositions. The fact that there is an apparent lack of harmony between the executive and legislative branches is an additional inducement for the latter to avoid all appearance of connivance with Allen in his attack.

Party Tosses Allen Overboard.

Allen has lost all the influence which he may have had in the legislature. He is feared for his sharp tongue because he does not hesitate to say anything that enters his mind, utterly disregarding all the demands of parliamentary behavior. The average legislative orator hesitates to join battle with him, the average legislator recognizing that he is restricted by some notions of parliamentary conventions in debate while Mr. Allen is hampered by none.

The house organization made it plain that Allen was to be tossed overboard after he had made the attack. When the roll call to table his amendment to the appropriation bill reducing it to $50,000 from $100,000 was had there remained one republican, Stevenson of Randolph county, standing with Allen. Four others who had voted with him had changed their votes and word was sent to Stevenson to switch and leave Allen "alone with the democrats."

Stevenson obeyed the request and switched, enabling the organization to show that not one republican vote backed Allen up in his attack on the governor.

New Bank Control Scheme.

At the session of the house today a number of bills were introduced, the most interesting being one by Representative McGoorty to provide for the establishment of a state banking department which shall have charge of the enforcement of all laws affecting banking institutions.

It provides that there shall be created the office of a superintendent of banking, to be filled by the governor, to hold office for five years at a salary of $5,000; a bank examiner at a salary of $6,000, and as many assistant bank examiners as may be required at a salary of $3,600 each.

The superintendent of banking is to have the powers of examination and control now vested in the state auditor, being required to have an examination of every banking institution in the state made once every year. He is given power to take summary possession of any bank which he may consider to be in an insolvent condition, pending his application for the appointment of a receiver. The measure also provides regulations for banks, requiring that three-fourths of the directors must be residents of the state and must hold at least ten shares of bank stock.

Would Bar Wildcat Banks.

The superintendent is given power by the bill to withhold a charter from any bank when he is not satisfied with the personal character and standing of the officers or directors of the proposed institution.

The total liabilities of a bank are limited to 30 per cent of the amount of capital paid in, undivided profits not to be construed as part of the surplus, and the bill would make it unlawful for banks to loan funds to officers or employés unless such a loan is approved by the board of directors.

Other bills introduced today were:

By Daugherty—An optional direct primary bill for cities, towns, villages, and counties.

By Schaefer—Prohibiting the soliciting, giving, or receiving of commissions or "tips" to secure discrimination and favors in commercial transactions from employés of firms and corporations.

By Murray—Defining the pronunciation of Illinois to be "Illinoy" instead of "Illinoise."

By Pierson—Empowering municipalities and park districts to acquire submerged lands for park and boulevard purposes.

J. V. STEGER FACES SUIT.

CHICAGOAN NAMED IN PETITION CHARGING FRAUD.

Piano Manufacturers Accused of Securing Estate of A. C. Mueller, Who Died in Asylum Near Chicago—Petition Filed by Edgar A. Mueller, a Brother, Demands Return of Large Block of Stock in Nebraska Manufacturing Company.

Council Bluffs, Ia., March 8.—[Special.]—Charging that John V. Steger, the Chicago piano manufacturer, conspired with William H. Schmoller, a piano dealer of Omaha, to declare the late Arthur C. Mueller insane and obtain possession of his large estate, Edgar A. Mueller, brother of the deceased, today filed suit in the District court here.

The petition alleges the transfer of A. C. Mueller's property to Schmoller and Steger was obtained by fraud, and asks that the transfer be set aside. Schmoller and Arthur C. Mueller held equal shares in the Schmoller & Mueller piano manufacturing company of Omaha. It is charged that at various times during the lifetime of Arthur C. Mueller, while he was, as alleged in the petition, insane, he had been induced to transfer stock to Schmoller and Steger, and that they had then transferred the stock to others.

Papers Served on Steger?

In January, 1904, it is alleged, they secured from Mueller shares of stock worth $100,000 for $18,000, and the next day took him to Chicago, where he was placed in an insane asylum, where he died.

Suit was brought here, instead of in Omaha, because service could not be had there on John V. Steger, one of the defendants. Mr. Steger, it is said, learning it was the intention to serve him with notice of the suit in Omaha, came to Council Bluffs, where he was followed by officers, who, it is understood, succeeded in serving the notice on Mr. Steger at his hotel.

Suit Not the First Brought.

This is not the first suit over the estate of Arthur C. Mueller, as a will which was filed in the courts of Cook county is being contested by relatives, who have filed an earlier will, made in Omaha. It is contended that the will filed in Chicago was made under duress, while the deceased was an inmate of a hospital near Chicago and in no fit condition to make a will.

MORE LOTTERY INDICTMENTS FOR VIOLATIONS OF LAWS.

Number of Men in Various States Accused of Sending Matter by Express—Fictitious Names Used.

New Orleans, La., March 8.—The United States grand jury today returned a number of indictments against citizens of Louisiana and other states on a charge of sending lottery matter by express. The New Orleans men indicted are: Harry Daponte, James A. Pierce, Albert Fourcade, and Abe Frielander.

Others included in the true bill are: L. M. Wilson, Meridian, Miss.; C. L. Bradley, Monroe, La.; W. F. Thompson, Marshall, Tex.; James Chambers, alias James Robinson, Indianapolis, Ind.; O. E. Keyes, Oxford, Miss.; Henry C. Harrison, Salt Lake City, Utah; W. A. Steagalis, Cairo, Ill.; Charles Jacobs, Palestine, Tex.; Luther Bailey of Bridgeton, N. J., and Louis Meyer of Brunswick, Ga.

The persons are accused of using fictitious names in the transmission and receipt of lottery matter issued by the Loteria De Bienfeis y San Juan Del Norte and the Lottery Dilligencia Publica of Pueblo, Mexico.

SAFE ENDS LONG BALK MEEKLY.

Time Lock, After Defeating Alaskan Smiths for Weeks, Gives Way to Rap of Hammer.

Seattle, Wash., March 8.—[Special.]—After defying the locksmiths of Alaska for weeks and having been brought several thousand miles on shipboard, the big safe of the Bank of Seward, Alaska, today gave way to a single rap from a hammer and disgorged $60,000 in coin and securities. The time lock had refused to work, the clock having stopped, but when an expert locksmith rapped on the door of the safe the wheels of the clock commenced to move and in a few hours the door swung open.

NEED NOT SHAVE NEGROES.

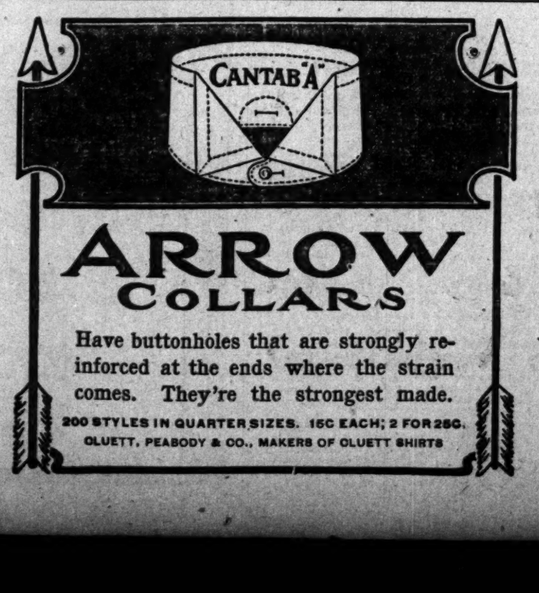

Connecticut Supreme Court Sustains Appeal of Barber of Bridgeport.

Hartford, Conn., March 8.—The Supreme court of the state has just handed down a decision that barbers in the state need not shave colored men. The decision was reached on an appeal from Bridgeport by Henry H. Foulkner, a colored man, who brought suit against Thomas Solazzi, who refused to shave Foulkner, his defense being that his barber shop was not a place of public accommodation within the meaning of the law. The Supreme court upholds that contention.

TEXAS HOLDS UP CALIFORNIA FLYER

State Acts Under Law for Discontinuing Any Train Over Thirty Minutes Late.

TIES UP 200 PASSENGERS.

Much Wrath Is Stirred and Steps Will Be Taken to Test Validity of Statute.

Houston, Tex., March 8.—[Special.]—The California flyer No. 7 on the Southern Pacific road was prevented by the state authorities from continuing its journey westward at 11 a. m. today. This was done in accordance with a recently passed law under which the state of Texas claims the right to order the discontinuance of any train that is more than thirty minutes late. The train was fifty minutes behind time.

Delay for 200 Passengers.

The California flyer had about 200 passengers on board, among them a number of prominent men from New York and Boston.

The discontinuance of the train caused a delay of thirteen hours to all passengers, and a good deal of grumbling ensued. A committee was formed to protest against the enforced delay, and it is probable that a test case will be made.

Mail as Local Factor.

The passengers, among whom was a member of the law firm of Cantwell & Brown of New York, contend that they ought not to be punished for any laxity of railway managers. If the case is taken before the United States Supreme court the plea also will be made that the law interferes with the forwarding of mails.

WANT A DAKOTA DIVORCE? YOU STILL HAVE A CHANCE.

Men Interested in the Industry Plan Coup to Delay New Law for Two Years.

Sioux Falls, S. D., March 8.—[Special.]—Men interested in the divorce industry have decided upon a sensational coup, which will prevent the new law, increasing the period of residence from six months to one year, from going into effect for at least nearly two years.

It was officially announced this evening that the referendum amendment will be invoked, and this will prevent the new divorce law from going into effect until after it has been submitted to the voters of the state and receives a majority of the votes cast. It cannot be submitted until November, 1908, and in the meantime the present law requiring only six months' residence will be in effect.

These petitions will be circulated immediately for signatures and will be filed before the expiration of ninety days from the passage of the new divorce law, as required by the referendum amendment of the state constitution.

SEES CONSPIRACY; ASKS $30,000,000.

Rival of the American Sugar Company Says It Was Forced to Close.

FEARS SISTER WAS SLAIN.

Physician Begins Hunt for Missing Woman; Both Involved in Will Contest.

NEW YORK BUREAU CHICAGO TRIBUNE, New York, March 8.

Claims Conspiracy; Sues for $30,000,000.

A suit for $30,000,000, with costs of attorneys' fees, was filed in the United States Circuit court today against the American Sugar Refining company by the Pennsylvania Sugar Refining company of Philadelphia. The latter is the company in which Frank K. Hipple, president of the Real Estate and Trust company of Philadelphia, held 28,000 shares of stock, the controlling interest, and which, in turn, he had placed in the hands of Adolph Segal, the Philadelphia promoter. Hipple killed himself when his enterprises went to smash a year ago, and the trust company, of which he was president, now is in the hands of a receiver.

The complaint in the suit alleges that through Segal negotiating a loan from Gustav E. Kissel, a banker, acting as the agent for the American Sugar Refining company, the latter corporation secured control of the Pennsylvania Sugar Refining company by reason of the fact that the voting power of this company had been placed with the American Sugar Refining company when Segal turned over, among other collateral for his loan, a receipt for 26,000 shares in the Pennsylvania company. This was Hipple's property that had been placed with Segal as security.

The whole sum and substance of the complaint is that the American Sugar Refining company secured control of its Pennsylvania rival, and elected directors, and thus was able to shut down the plant and put an end to its manufacturing. Besides naming the American Sugar Refining company as defendant the complaint also names Henry O. Havemeyer, John E. Parsons, Gustav E. Kissel, Walter D. Robinson, George L. Trigg, and Morris J. Werner as individual defendants.

Mr. Havemeyer is president and director of the American Sugar Refining company. Mr. Parsons is director and vice president, and the other four are named through the fact that they were elected directors in the Philadelphia concern, and thus had control over that corporation's destinies. It is alleged in the suit that all these individual defendants conspired to put an end to the activity of the Philadelphia corporation.

The four story building occupied by William Green, a printer, from whose presses Smart Set and Town Topics are printed, burned tonight. The loss was $300,000.

Woman Involved in Will Suit Disappears.

Dr. Haas suspects his sister, who was well supplied with funds, has either been murdered or spirited away.

Dr. Haas is one of the six children of the late Leopold Haas, a real estate speculator, who died two years ago leaving about $500,000. He and his sister Lillian, who recently celebrated her 50th birthday, became involved in a dispute with the other children over their father's will. Suit recently was started by them and the trial is to come up next week.

Miss Lillian Haas left for Atlantic City three weeks ago, telling her brother she would return in time to attend the court proceedings. A few days later $1,500 was sent to her, representing her quarterly allowance from her father's estate.

Miss Haas left the hotel Chetwood in Atlantic City last Saturday, saying she intended taking a short walk. When she did not return that night the hotel proprietor decided she had left for home. He sent a letter to Dr. Haas asking what disposition he should make of the baggage she had left in her room. Dr. Haas asked him to notify the police at once.

Mayor McClellan's appeal from the decision denying his motion to set aside and vacate the service of the summons in a complaint suit begun against him as the usurper of his office by Attorney General Jackson was dismissed today by the Appellate division of the Supreme court. At the same time permission was granted the mayor to carry his appeal to the Court of Appeals if he desires.

McClellan Loses Point in Mayoralty Fight.

Justice Ingraham in writing the court's opinion remarked that he doubts whether the mayor can raise in his answer to the complaint the matters set forth in the papers on the motion before the court—namely: that the whole subject of the controversy already has been passed upon by former Attorney General Mayer, who had refused to begin quo warranto proceedings on W. R. Hearst's application.

There can be no question, says the opinion, that on the allegations in the complaint in Mr. Jackson's suit good cause for the action was established, and that it rested with the attorney general, as attorney for the people, to determine whether such suit should be brought.

Libel in the sum of $40,000 was filed today in the United States District court against the Compagnie Generale Trans-Atlantique, the steamship La Gascogne, and its officers and crew by John Wurts, professor in the Yale law school. He asks $15,000 for mental and physical anguish on his own part and $25,000 for his wife and his daughters, Eleanora and Laura.

Sues Steamship Company for $40,000.

The libel alleges that on the trip from Havre to this port between the 15th and the 20th of last September, Prof. Wurts and his family were exposed to the rudest sort of treatment and ill food.

It alleges that on information that there were no first cabin accommodations he, with his wife and daughters, were booked in the second cabin, but that within two hours of leaving port they found that they were overrun by 1,400 steerage passengers.

The accusations include one that the daughter of the professor was bitten by a rat.

"The suit is absurd," said Paul Faguet, general agent of the line tonight. "Mr. Wurts paid $57.50 each for his party. He knew that was the second class rate and had no right to expect first class passage."

To the bravery of Miss Katherine O'Brien, niece of John Fox, president of the Democratic club, was due the capture of a burglar in the Fox residence early today. Mr. Fox and his immediate family are in Europe and the house is occupied by Miss O'Brien, Mrs. Hogan, her aunt, and seven women servants.

Girl's Bravery Causes Capture of Burglar.

Miss O'Brien was awakened by a noise and in whispers called police headquarters. Policemen were hurried to the house and the intruder was secured.

Los Angeles, Cal., March 8.—[Special.]—A son of Samuel Kircher of Nashville, a rich lumberman, was sentenced today to the chain gang for speeding his automobile.

Boy for Whom Whole State Is Searching.

HORACE N. MARVIN JR.

Delaware's legislature has passed a bill appropriating $2,000 as a reward for the capture of the kidnapers of Horace N. Marvin Jr., aged 3, who was stolen on Monday last, and posses in each county of the state are searching for the boy. Town talk about the wealth of the boy's father is supposed to have suggested the kidnaping, and a letter demanding a ransom is daily expected. The laws of Delaware make death the penalty for kidnaping.

CLEW TO STOLEN CHILD.

BOY KIDNAPED NEAR DOVER, DEL., MAY BE IN PHILADELPHIA.

Philadelphia, Pa., March 8.—[Special.]—After scouring the country for the kidnaped son of Dr. Horace Marvin of Kitts Hammock, Del., near Dover, the police found in this city the first tangible clew to the whereabouts of the boy. It is believed that the 4 year old youngster is in the custody of a colored woman who is hiding in the neighborhood of Eighteenth and Fitzwater streets.

Dress and All Corresponds.

His story is borne out by the fact that a train from Dover, Del., arrived at the station a few minutes before.

The boy, according to Dixon, bore a striking resemblance to the pictures of young Marvin which have been appearing in the papers. He had the same golden hair, was the same size, and wore the same blue reefer. He seemed to be worried and the woman seemed to be reassuring him.

Another Clew from Pittsburg.

Dover, Del., March 8.—[Special.]—"We believe we have your little boy," was the message telegraphed from Pittsburg tonight, to Dr. Horace Marvin, whose 4 year old son Horace was kidnaped from his home on the bay shore last Monday.

The Delaware detectives at once took steps to investigate the Pittsburg clew. So far they have found no trace of the missing child.

Dr. Marvin returned to Dover tonight from a close following up of Delaware bay and river clews as to a mysterious sloop that brayed destruction through the floating ice and beat its way up the Delaware on Monday until an immense ice floe carried it into Salem creek. It was found to be empty.

Murderer Baldwin Arraigned.

Bloomington, Ill., March 8.—[Special.]—Thomas Baldwin, the murderer of four persons here a week ago, was brought into court this evening and arraigned, following his indictment yesterday. He was remanded to jail without bail. Charges of venue from this county is desired and arguments will be made Tuesday.

JEROME IN OPEN FIGHT FOR DEATH.

Most Thrilling Phase of Thaw Struggle Is Scheduled for Monday.

WIFE SUBPŒNAED AGAIN.

May MacKenzie Also Held in Readiness; Prosecutor Prepares for Fiercest Attack.

New York, March 8.—[Special.]—District Attorney Jerome's fight to convict Harry K. Thaw for the murder of Stanford White will be resumed Monday, when the prosecution will put in its case on rebuttal. This will furnish one of the most interesting features of the trial, as there may be testimony as sensational as any that has been produced.

For a wonder there was no change overnight in the plans of the defense, and when Justice Fitzgerald's court opened this morning Lawyer Delmas made this simple announcement:

"The defense rests."

Thaw had come into court smiling and apparently in good humor. Mr. Jerome, who had been notified on Thursday afternoon, immediately made a motion for an adjournment of the trial until Monday, saying he had not expected the defense would rest so soon.

Mr. Delmas responded that he thought the district attorney's request a reasonable one and made no objection to it. Under the circumstances Justice Fitzgerald said the request was reasonable, and as there was no protest from Mr. Delmas the court would adjourn until Monday. Thaw smiled when he heard the decision of the court and seemed pleased. The whole proceeding did not occupy more than five minutes.

Jerome Subpœnas Thaw's Wife.

As Mrs. Evelyn Nesbit Thaw left the court she was served by one of District Attorney Jerome's detectives with a subpœna duces tecum calling upon her to produce some of Thaw's letters. These are the letters which she has testified she got from Thaw and turned over to Lawyer Hartridge. She said on the stand she would produce them. It is not believed she will turn the letters over to the prosecution, as she has a good excuse in that she gave the letters to Mr. Hartridge and she hasn't them. These are the Thaw letters which were not produced in evidence by the defense.

After leaving the courtroom Mrs. Thaw went over to the Tombs and had a long talk with her husband. It was said that Thaw was nettled by the delay, but those who saw him said he gave no indication of minding it a bit.

Mr. Jerome will have until Monday to get his case in rebuttal ready. He spent all this afternoon with Assistant District Attorney Garvan. After court adjourned he had a long conference with Drs. Mahon, Flint, and MacDonald, the alienists for the prosecution. At this conference the matter of the hypothetical question which will be put to these doctors was gone over. Two doctors for the defense, Evans and Wagner, have sworn in their opinion Thaw was insane the night he killed White. Three doctors for the prosecution will be asked by the state, after having heard the hypothetical question, if they believe Thaw was insane on that night.

Reporter an Important Witness.

A newspaper reporter who got an interview with Thaw in the Tenderloin police station will be called by Mr. Jerome. Thaw told the reporter about the note which his wife had slipped to him at dinner at the Café Martin shortly before the shooting. In substance he gave the reporter what was in the note. This note, which now is in evidence, said: "There is the B. now," meaning White. The contention of the prosecution is that Thaw was sane enough right after the shooting to know about things that happened two hours before he killed White.

It was two or three days before this note was found. Thaw's evening clothes had been brought to the district attorney's office. They were about to be returned to him when they were searched again. The note was found in a small pocket of the trousers. The police who were on duty in the Tenderloin station that night say the reporter never had an interview with Thaw, but the note sufficiently corroborates the reporter's story in the opinion of the district attorney's office.

May MacKenzie Gets Subpœna.

Howard Nesbit, young Mrs. Thaw's brother, and May MacKenzie, Mrs. Thaw's constant companion, were served today with subpœnas by the district attorney's office. Miss MacKenzie got the subpœna as she started for Atlantic City. There was no suspicion she was going there to get out of jurisdiction.

It is doubtful if either of these persons will be called by the prosecution, however, though the reason for keeping them under subpœna never has been explained.

It is possible that Charles Hartnutt, who was Mr. White's private secretary, may be called as a witness. He was familiar with White's financial affairs and could tell about the money that White expended on Evelyn Nesbit and her mother.

Neither Mr. Jerome nor Mr. Garvan would make any comment today on how long it would take them to put in their case in rebuttal. Either they are trying to worry the defense or there may be some surprises. Lawyers for the defense say they have lots of witnesses they can call if Mr. Jerome goes into extensive rebuttal.

Howard Nesbit a Trouble Maker.

There were many rumors current today of a serious estrangement between the defendant's family and his wife and of the reported desire of the former to bring about a separation of the young couple in the event of a verdict acquitting Thaw of the charge of murder. Young Howard Nesbit, brother of Mrs. Harry Thaw, is quoted as saying:

"The countess of Yarmouth has said that she will not return to England until her brother and my sister have been separated.

"I did not know of this until my return from Pittsburg last Sunday. As soon as I arrived here I went to the Hotel Lorraine to warn my sister, but Mr. Delmas would not let me see her alone. I did not want any of the lawyers present while I talked to her, because I knew they would probably deny it.

"I am sure that if my sister knew of the plans which are being made against her she would assert herself at once and not remain passive, as she has been so far."

It has also been a matter of comment that, as two experts have declared Thaw to have been insane at the time of his marriage, the ceremony might be declared void and annulled. Under this rule the will and codicil, in which Mrs. Thaw is left the main portion of her hurband's estate, are also void.

WANTS DIPLOMAT TO RESIGN.

London Society Paper Calls on U. S. Representative Concerned in Thaw Case to Leave Post.

LONDON, March 8.—The Throne, a society journal, in its issue today demands that the secretary of one of the important embassies in London resign his post because he has been involved in a great scandal. Although no names are mentioned, it is generally regarded that the diplomat referred to is the one charged by Mrs. Evelyn Nesbit Thaw with having insulted her and her mother.

THE CALUMET DIVERSION.

The chief of engineers of the army will not consent to the diversion of the waters of the Calumet contemplated by the sanitary district trustees. He contends that the effect would be to lower lake levels, inflict serious injury on lake traffic, and undo work which has been accomplished by the government to assist that traffic. The engineers and other officials of the sanitary district dispute the correctness of the theory—for it is no more than a theory—of the chief of engineers. They deny that the withdrawal from Lake Michigan of the limited quantity of water which they wish to use for necessary sanitary purposes will have injurious consequences, and say that the influence on navigation will be imperceptible.

For the moment the veto of the chief of engineers is conclusive. The secretary of war cannot overrule him. The law adviser of the department holds that in a case like that of the Calumet the joint consent of the secretary and his subordinate is necessary. Therefore the hands of the trustees of the sanitary district will be tied until they shall have induced congress, which has supreme authority in the premises, to give its consent. Something has been said about going to the courts, but congress is the tribunal to apply to.

When the matter comes up in congress the arguments of the chief of engineers will be urged against granting the request. Members from states which have harbors on the lower lakes will quote him to prove that navigation would be injured by drawing a little water from Lake Michigan and will argue that the health of the two million people living here is of no consequence as compared with navigation interests. It ought not to be difficult to convince disinterested congressmen that the waters of Lake Michigan cannot be put to better use than in ministering to the health of a great community. At the same time the sanitary district trustees should provide the Chicago members with the facts which will enable them to refute the assumptions of the chief of engineers. When it is proved that the Calumet work will have no appreciable effect upon lake levels there will cease to be opposition in congress to the plans of the trustees. The preservation of the public health calls imperatively for the execution of those plans.

PITTSBURG'S PLEA.

The report comes from Pittsburg that the chamber of commerce of that city intends to show to the world that all its millionaires are not corrupt and vicious. The declaration that there are good men who have no records as respondents, corespondents, or homicides, and that Pittsburg has many claims to the consideration and respect of mankind, is one which is timely.

The city has been unfortunate. It has had the bad luck to get into the papers many times of late in connection with unsavory scandals. Its name has been accepted as the proper one to attach to every humorous item in which the irregularities of the rich are proclaimed. There is little doubt that thousands of American citizens have formed an unfavorable opinion of Pittsburg conditions. Its external smoke and dirt have been counted symbolic of its internal wickedness.

To counteract this unfortunate impression the chamber of commerce proposes to bring together around a great banquet board a company of representatives of higher things and nobler thoughts. Men who are noted for attainments in literature, law, theology, philosophy, exact and applied science, statesmanship, the fine arts, the mechanical arts, invention, and philanthropy are to be present to show how effective other forces are than those which radiate from sudden riches and swollen fortunes, where moral balance is lost in the pursuit of passion and pleasure.

While the sober second thought recalls the material greatness of Pittsburg and recognizes the fact that the soiled millionaires who have stained its reputation cannot be regarded as fair types of the product of an industrial civilization, the evil has been spread throughout the world in the most sensational way. The elements of citizenship which make for righteousness and for the moral and intellectual welfare of the community have been obscured by the black smoke of wickedness.

It does not take much examination to discover that Pittsburg is the home of many institutions in which men of international note are accomplishing things which attract the attention of those who understand and appreciate real worth. It is a distinctly creditable plan to take the present opportunity to proclaim this side of the life. The scars of the last few months will show for a long time. But the real Pittsburg is bound to make its power felt in the long run. A list of its distinguished sons will attract interest. A meeting of these men to protest against the rapidly growing impression regarding Pittsburg's moral atmosphere and to proclaim the larger and better civic life will be an effective reply to the taunts of the world.

CONDEMNATION PROCEEDINGS.

Mr. Carter H. Harrison invites the attention of the voters to the fact that during the campaign of two years ago much was heard of condemnation proceedings as a means of bringing about public ownership of the traction properties. The voters were told by Mayor Dunne that the condemnation proceedings were to be "immediate." After he was elected he forgot his promise and nothing was heard of condemning the properties until there seemed to be a prospect of the settlement of the traction question. Then, as Mr. Harrison puts it, "up bobbed the law of eminent domain as the only simon pure, blown in the bottle method of bringing about municipal ownership."

The democratic platform says that if the traction ordinances are rejected, as it claims they should be, "the city should assert its right under the eminent domain act and condemn the properties in the courts." If the city has any right to start condemnation proceedings it is given by the Mueller law, whose validity has not been determined. If the Supreme court should say that the law is fatally defective the condemnation project would go up in smoke.

All things considered, it is cheeky of Mayor Dunne to assure the voters who are after good street car service that the traction ordinances will not do, and that they must resort to the method of condemnation proceedings, which he dropped as soon as he was elected. If he were to be reëlected there would be no certainty that he would not drop it again. He has not made a reputation for living up to his promises. There is a long catalogue of the things he has solemnly said he would do and has failed to do.

Still, it is possible that if Mayor Dunne were to be reëlected and the traction ordinances defeated, he would be more loyal to the condemnation proceedings policy than he has been in the past. For, assuming that the courts were to hold, after much litigation, that the city had the power to condemn street car properties, the condemnation proceedings themselves would not be concluded by the spring of 1911. That would give Mayor Dunne an opportunity to demand another election in order that he might settle the traction question.

This program may be pleasing to the mayor. It cannot be to the people who travel on street cars. He asks them to put up with overloaded and slow cars for four years more while he is playing with condemnation proceedings. It is an impudent request.

RETALIATION.

The Nebraska legislature has made 2 cents a mile the maximum passenger fare. The Nebraska railroads have retaliated by abolishing all classes of reduced fares. There has been some travel on their lines for less than 2 cents a mile. There have been reduced rates for excursions, conventions, fairs, clergymen, homeseekers, and theatrical people. There have been some commutation rates. All have been abolished. So the 2 cent law is not an unalloyed blessing. Some people will occasionally pay more for their transportation than they have been in the habit of paying and they will grumble. But for the majority the rates will be reduced.

If the railroads had believed that they could convince a court that a 2 cent fare was unreasonably low they would presumably have gone to law over it. Their action seems to indicate that they had some doubts on that point, and deemed it wiser to accept that rate and make all the money they could under it. It is possible that the same policy may be adopted in other states which have recently enacted 2 cent fare laws.

Doubtless the people of Nebraska taken collectively will not pay so much for transportation under the new system as under the old one. The same may be said of Iowa and Missouri if the railroads shall pursue the policy there that they have adopted in Nebraska. But the excursionists and the commuters will be apt to resent bitterly the action of the roads. The policy of retaliation which has been adopted in Nebraska is not a prudent policy. It would have been wiser for the roads to make an elaborate explanation of the reasons why they could not work under a 2 cent fare law and give the old reduced rates instead of summarily cutting off those rates.

Mr. Harriman, the president of the greatest Nebraska road—the Union Pacific—is talking now of the desirability of a better understanding between the railroads and the people. Such an understanding is eminently desirable, but the Nebraska roads are not acting in a way calculated to establish it.

POLICE CIVILITY AND EFFICIENCY.

The courtesy and good manners of London policemen have been always commented on favorably by visiting Americans, but it appears that they need constant warnings to keep them up to the mark. Sir Charles Howard Vincent, in the latest edition of his police code, gives a few potential suggestions to the policemen of the metropolis, reminding them that it is not their business to gossip with women on the streets or in matters involving a dispute to refuse to listen to other persons' opinions. And he tells them that they must avoid protracted argument, and that "a few civil words such as 'I am sorry to trouble you, but—' will often facilitate a policeman's disagreeable task."

This is taking sensibly and seriously Admiral Porter's famous contention in "Pinafore" with reference to "the expression 'if you please.'" For while the entire British nation may roar with laughter over the Pinafore regulations for the gallant British tar, there will be little dispute as to the reasonable extent to which a policeman may or should carry his politeness. And it would be a decided change for the better if the swaggering Chicago policeman, clothed with a little brief authority, could be instructed as to the pertinent wisdom of Sir Charles' suggestions and could learn to deport himself accordingly. Perhaps it is simple justice to admit that police manners have measurably improved with advancing years, but they have not reached that stage of perfection which transcends criticism.

It is not necessary that a policeman should be sincere when he says "I am sorry to trouble you, but—"; he need not mean it if he is not so disposed. But a command with a measure of politeness will often accomplish more than an insolent tone, a swaggering manner, and a twirling of the billy. No man innocently obstructing the sidewalk fails to resent the surliness of the officer who orders him to "move on" or "get away from there," though he would move quickly enough and without argument if politely but firmly instructed so to do. This is one of the occasions where surface politeness can accomplish much and speedily. There are some officers in the police service who have learned the lesson of the practical value of good manners and attention to duty, but it is not to be denied that the average policeman in Chicago needs forcible instruction in the elementary requirements of his business.

So it would be an excellent thing for the service if copies of Sir Charles' suggestions and regulations were obtained for inspection and study at central headquarters. A distinguished London police official has said that the most efficient members of the London force have been those men who learned early in their careers that good temper, civility, discretion, and firmness without brutality are essential characteristics for a policeman. This is a lesson that might be profitably studied in American cities.

SOUVENIR POSTAL CARDS.

The widespread interest in the souvenir postal card industry is illustrated every day by observation of the crowd to be seen in front of every window where such things are exhibited or in the stores at the postal card counters. It is evident that millions are being printed, and the presumption is that millions are being sold. Every summer resort or place of scenic or historic interest has its special cards. Many hotels furnish a menu card which has a perforated card attached. Restaurants and other places of business give them out as advertisements, and thousands of people collect them as others do postage stamps or coins.

It has been found necessary to make a number of special regulations. There has to be some supervision so that improperly suggestive cards may not be mailed. The postal authorities have recently issued an order limiting the size of the cards, prohibiting the use of those which are folded, and particularly condemning those which are covered with bits of glass or mica, from which carriers in several cities have received wounds which have threatened blood poisoning.

It would be interesting to know how the revenues of the postoffice and the volume of the mail have been increased by the development of the souvenir postal card business. There is little doubt that large figures would be needed. It is quite likely, too, that the decision of the postoffice department to issue stamp books containing twenty-four 1 cent stamps, these to retail for a quarter, is connected with the increased demand for stamps of this denomination for use on the postal cards. How long the fad may last is uncertain but the chances are that it will be popular for a long time, notably in connection with the better class of cards which show pictures of famous places, persons, or scenes. Many travelers have taken pleasure in sending a word of greeting to distant friends through the medium of a postal card who would not attempt the more tedious task of writing letters to all whom they might wish to remember.

LETTER OF MARQUISE DE FONTENOY

Copyright: 1907: By the Marquise de Fontenoy.

BULGARIA'S parliament has just voted a sum of $200,000, and two annual payments of $100,000 each, for the construction and furnishing of a palace at Sophia for the young crown prince, a circumstance which serves to call attention to the fact that he is now entering upon his fourteenth year. It seems but the other day that the indignation of the entire Catholic world was aroused to the boiling pitch by Prince Ferdinand's action in transferring his son and heir from the Roman Catholic church, in which he had been born and christened, to the orthodox rite. The crown prince was but 2 years old at the time, and it was considered by Catholics outrageous that his father should have imperiled the boy's salvation for mere selfish political purposes, that is to say, in order to secure the recognition of his sovereignty by Russia.

It broke the heart of the child's mother, and she died firmly convinced that her boy would be lost to her in the great hereafter. It involved Prince Ferdinand in the most unpleasant legal proceedings with his father-in-law, to whom he had given a most sacred pledge that his children should be brought up in the Catholic church. It led to his excommunication by the late pope, and to Emperor Francis Joseph closing his doors against him.

Near twelve years have elapsed since then. The little crown prince brought up as a member of the orthodox church has not only entered upon his teens, but also is approaching his majority. For he will attain the latter two years hence. It may be remembered that the king of Spain terminated his minority and assumed the reins of government at the age of 16. The minority of his grandmother, Queen Isabella II., ended when she was a little over 14, and the ill fated Alexander, king of Servia, was barely 16 years of age when he engineered that extraordinary coup d'état at Belgrade which put the regents out of business and enabled him to grasp the reins of power.

The fact of the matter is that owing to the species of forcing-house system of education to which youthful scions of royalty are subjected, they acquire an altogether exceptional degree of precocity, intellectually as well as physically. It is owing to this that King Alfonso has steered so wonderfully clear of any serious mistakes during the five years which have elapsed since he attained his majority, at the age of 16, and has been fulfilling the active duties of executive of the Spanish government, and it is also thanks to this that young Crown Prince Boris of Bulgaria will be regarded as having attained the years of discretion a couple of years hence, and qualified as such to act as regent of Bulgaria during his father's absence or illness, and to assume the scepter without any assistance, in the event of his father's death.

In northern countries, as for instance in Prussia, Great Britain, Belgium, and Scandinavia, princes of the blood do not attain their majority till their eighteenth year, and young Prince Edward of Wales, who is but a few months younger than the Bulgarian crown prince, instead of having a costly palace built for him by the nation and preparing to set up a household of his own, is just getting ready to go to school, and within the last fortnight has successfully passed the examination qualifying him to enter after Easter as a student of the Royal Naval college at Osborne, where he will be subsequently joined by his younger brother, Albert.

I may mention, by the bye, that the prince of Wales has intrusted a well known London firm of real estate agents with the task of securing for him the lease of some big country place in the midland counties, finding that York cottage at Sandringham, in spite of its extensions, is altogether too small for the accommodation of his growing family and of his large household. It is so small, indeed, that he can never have any guests there and finds it even difficult to house his own establishment. Several places in Bucks, Berks, and Herts are under consideration, the prince stipulating that there should be good fishing and shooting, and also that the place should be within easy reach of town.

That monarchs in ancient times possessed the right of dispeering as well as creating peers of the realm on several occasions has been mentioned in these letters, and the question naturally arises as to why King Edward should be unable to avail himself of this prerogative in connection with the projected reformation of the British house of lords. I have related how King Edward IV. dispeered a duke of Bedford and reduced him to the rank of a simple "esquire" for no other reason than that he did not possess sufficient means to maintain with befitting splendor the dignity of a duke, and this being the case it naturally must seem strange that Edward VII. could not use similar means to rid the upper house of the national legislature of those personally objectionable members whose presence in the gilded chamber constitutes the chief ground of the popular demand for its reformation.

The fact of the matter is, however, that the crown has been advised that, although it undoubtedly enjoys the theoretical right of taking away again from the recipient a nobiliary honor which it has conferred, yet the dispeerment would constitute such a stigma of shame upon the object of the measure that he would have cause for demand for redress. The sovereign may confer a title upon whomsoever he sees fit, but the withdrawal of that title constitutes so serious a damage to the fair name of the individual concerned and of his family that the crown or the responsible minister would be exposed to all sorts of unpleasant consequences.

It is owing to this that English monarchs have even refrained from dispeering peers, even when the latter have rendered themselves guilty of felony, such as forgery and murder, a case of the latter being that Earl Ferrers, who was hanged with a silken rope. In fact the only means by which a peerage is ever forfeited nowadays is by a parliamentary act of attainder, only asked for by the crown in cases of high treason and unused since the time of the last Jacobite rebellion. In certain continental countries of Europe ordinary felony entails forfeiture of nobility.

NEWS OF THE THEATERS.

Thomas Orchestra.

A program of serious character and yet of exceptional enjoyableness is the one Mr. Stock arranged for the concert of the Thomas Orchestra for yesterday afternoon and this evening. It consists of the Bach B-minor Suite, the "Pastoral" Symphony of Beethoven, the first Brahms Concerto for piano, and the Richard Strauss "Don Juan." Truly a list of as solid musical character as the season has offered, and yet it is doubtful if any program in the series thus far has held the audience more genuinely interested and roused them to sincerer expression of approval than did it. There has been greater demonstrativeness on previous occasions, but at no time has the applause been more spontaneous and more hearty.

Interest centered in the performance of the Brahms concerto by Rudolph Ganz and the orchestra, for the great work is perhaps the most difficult musically that piano concerto literature contains, and the pianists who attempt its presentation are few, and its satisfactory interpreters still fewer. It is not a composition "grateful" for the performer, so far as the public is concerned, and he who undertakes to play it must approach it in the spirit of a lover of the composition itself, must work for ends purely musical and artistic rather than personal, and must be ready to give his all and his ablest to the task in hand. In addition to this he must need be even more thoroughly master of the mechanics of piano playing than is the virtuoso who performs with bravour the most brilliant of the "grateful" concertos. He must have at his command the full range of tonal colorings, and he must be mentally a musician of highest and most serious order. All this is demanded by the Brahms D-minor Concerto, and therefore it is that the great work comes but rarely to public performance, and even on the rare occasions when it is played is so apt to prove unsatisfactory.

Yesterday a performance about as near ideal as could be wished was proffered. That Mr. Stock greatly admires Brahms as composer, the last two years have shown, and they also have demonstrated his exceptional powers as interpreter of the eminent master's music. He clearly had entered with even more than customary enthusiasm into the preparation of the orchestral part of the concerto, and the result was a presentment of this important part of the notable work which not only technically but in the point of tonal beauty and interpretative spirit was superb.

Mr. Ganz in the list recital gave a glimpse of what he was capable as a Brahms interpreter by a marvelously beautiful performance of two of the piano works. Yesterday he showed that the spirit he revealed in those smaller compositions was big enough, fine enough, and sincere enough to enable him to compass this greatest of the same master's creations for piano. He played the piano part of the concerto as faultlessly from a technical standpoint, and as beautifully as regards both tone and interpretative spirit as Mr. Stock and his men gave the orchestral part. It was a performance which had just the right degree of bigness and strong virility. It was never brutal or rough, but it always was masculine and large in outline. Details were faultless and exquisite in their clarity perfection and beauty, but the broad, big line never was lost sight of for a moment.

There is lyricism in Brahms, even when he is most severe and most introspective, and this lyricism both Mr. Stock and Mr. Ganz kept prominently to the fore. The result was abundant beauty and color and the auditor who came fearing the length and seriousness of the concerto found his interest kept constantly keen and his senses charmed and delighted. The first movement became tellingly brilliant when given with such surety and masterful spirit, and the rondo was of splendid bravour and vigor.

The second movement is so intimate in character and mood that it fails to reach the average hearer no matter how faultlessly it be played and interpreted. Yesterday it was done with a tonal loveliness, a sincerity of feeling, and an effacement of the pianist's own individuality which made the performance truly notable to those who understand and who know the character of the composition and realize what it represents. The audience was deeply impressed by the entire concerto, for there was about its presentment that air of authority that positiveness and that beauty which spring only from the sincerity of purpose and absolute artistic integrity, combined with supreme mastery of all purely technical elements in a performance. The right pianist, the right leader, and the right orchestra were brought together for this giving of the Brahms Concerto. The result was indeed memorable.

In the Beethoven "Pastoral" Mr. Stock again showed his fine sense for the poetical, the romantic, and the pictorial in music. It was evident that he and his men had worked out every detail with greatest care, and with something higher than a mere devotion to duty. The outcome was a nice proportionment, a clarity in phrase, a finesse in nuance, and a sensuous beauty in tonal mass, which made listening a joy. And yet with all this attention to detail there was nothing of the finicky or the fussy about the reading. Beethoven, the master singer, was given his full value through having the wide sweeping melodic line kept ever topmost. There was bigness in the reading, just as there was in the Brahms.

The first movement was as filled with sunniness and the sheer joy of outdoor existing as on a springtime day are the Austrian fields which gave Beethoven the inspiration for the music. And the second movement had about it the human soul contentment and the wild bird ecstacy which still are to be found beside the brook out in the Beethoven park near Vienna. The art loving Viennese have safeguarded and preserved inviolate the little stream beside which the master dreamed when he first conceived this movement, and the music admirer visiting the little park along its banks finds conditions which make clear to him those which existed when Beethoven himself wandered there.

As for the last movement, it was rife with the happiness and merriment of the peasant folk on holiday, and the "storm" which followed took on more of the "terribleness" that Berlioz found in it than any recent performance of the work has disclosed.

The Bach suite was a model as regards clarity and gay sprightly spirit. "Even" Bach the audience found delightful. The "Don Juan" is one of the enduring creations of Strauss, if any of his are to endure. It was aglow with color, the performance being in certain respects the most brilliant of the many brilliant ones Mr. Stock and the men have given of the popular composition.

The same program tonight, commencing at 8:15 o'clock. W. L. HUBBARD.

[From the Washington Star.]

Arthur Herkimer, the Missouri historian, told at a dinner in St. Louis a story about the famous Gov. Claiborne F. Jackson.

"Jackson," he said, "married, one after another, five sisters. The thing is incredible, but it is a fact.

"When for the fifth time Claiborne Jackson broached a marital proposition to his father-in-law the old man was 80 and quite deaf. This is the conversation that ensued:

"'I want Lizzie.'

"'Hey?'

"'I want you to give me Elizabeth.'

"'O, you want me to give you Elizabeth, do you? What for?'

"'For my wife.'

"'For your wife?'

"'I—want—to—marry—Lizzie.'

"'O, yes. I hear you. You needn't rouse the neighborhood.'

"'Well, do you consent?'

"'Yes, I consent,' said the old man. He shook his head and added slowly:

"'Yes, you can have her. You've got 'em all now, my boy. But, for goodness sake, if anything happens to that poor, misguided girl, don't come back here and ask me for the old woman.'"

Thought There Could Be No Barbers in Heaven.

STUART is 4¼ years old. He fairly revels in pictures, observing the most minute detail, and he sometimes asks questions that would puzzle the artist to answer. Two pictures hang on the walls of Stuart's bedroom, one a print of the Madonna, and one of Christ. The story of the pictures has been explained to Stuart by his mother. While playing the other day he stopped suddenly and gazed intently at one of the pictures.

"Are there any barbers in heaven, mamma?" he asked.

"Why, yes, I suppose there are," she answered, "why do you ask?"

Born and raised in the south, Eleanor had never had the thrills of joy which accompany a snow storm. At the age of 7 her first visit in the north was celebrated in Chicago. In the evening one of our good, old fashioned hail storms came, with hail stones as large as marbles.

Didn't Want Her Papa to Be Loveless.

ONE night while getting my babies ready for bed my 2 year old lad put his arms around my neck, saying: "I love my little mamma." I told him I was so glad, for my babies were all I had. My little daughter, who was 4 years a few days ago, looked up from the floor where she was sitting trying to unbutton her shoes. "You have papa, haven't you?" I answered in the affirmative. Then, with a touch of reproof in her voice and look: "Well, mamma, you surely are sas'fied for that, aren't you?"

Little 5 year old Johnny was sent by his mother to a nearby grocery store to get a 5 cent cake of soap and 5 cents' worth of candy. Pretty soon Johnny returned home with the candy but no soap. The mother anxiously asked: "Why, Johnny, where is the cake of soap?" to which Johnny replied: "Mamma, I lost the soap nickel."

Sees Awful Effect of Stealing the Dog's Drink.

STEPPING out on the back porch one day last summer a friend of mine found his son, aged 5, drinking out of a pan of water that was put on the porch each day for the dog. The father told him to come away at once, and that he must never drink out of that pan again or hair would grow all over him just like Jack, the dog. Two or three days later a friend of the father came on a visit, and the next morning father and son were in the room while the man was shaving. He had his shirt turned down and his sleeves rolled up, and there was a quantity of hair on his breast and arms. Little Frank stood it as long as he could, and then in a serious manner asked:

"Papa, did he drink out of the dog's pan when he was a little boy?"

"Mamma," said Marion to her mother after the latter's afternoon caller had departed, "what's her name?"

"She is Miss Manson, my dear. I thought you knew that."

"Yes, I did," was the little girl's answer, "but what's her front name?"

Didn't Count on Girl Babies.

ELEVEN year old Tommy has quite decided opinions as to the duties of fathers to their little boys. The other day he was describing to his mother the sort of father he intends to be when he grows up. "I'm going to be the best father to my boys. I'm going to play marbles with them and baseball and everything they want me to, and I'll give them dimes 'most every day and tell them they can buy all the ice cream they want, and I'll get them each a pony, and—well, my boys'll think I'm just a daisy father and we'll have lots of fun."

Tommy's mother with a twinkle in her eye said: "But, Tommy, what if you shouldn't have any little boys, what if your children are all girls!"

Such a possibility never had entered Tommy's head. The suggestion was appalling. A look of blank dismay passed over the child's face.

"Gee! that would be the dickens!" he ejaculated.

A Chicago father and mother were discussing one morning the question of which one of the two their 3 year old daughter, Margaret, loved best, and they agreed to let little Margaret decide the point at issue. They called Margaret into the room and asked her to kiss the one she loved best. "Get together," demanded the little tot.

She Made Good with Her Fairy Story.

ELEANOR, whose age is 4, has had the scope of a naturally prodigious imagination increased recently through listening to fairy stories that her mother reads to her. The other night Eleanor made her first attempt at composing a fairy story of her own.

"One day in the summer time I was out in the grape arbor when I saw a little fairy man no bigger than a pin a-standin' on a grape," she told her mother. "The little fairy man said I should come with him and he took me to his little house, no bigger than an apple, and he 'vited me in and there was his little wife and children, and he told them: 'This is Eleanor, who has come to make you a nice visit.'"

"But how did such a big girl as you get into such a little house?" her mother asked.

Eleanor was thoughtful for a moment. "I think the little house was made of rubber and I stretched it," she said finally.

One day last summer Ruth and Beth were in the attic rummaging over a chest of doll clothes. After sitting in a stooped position for a long time Ruth rose on her feet and said: "My—my foot is asleep." Beth rose at the same time and said: "Mine was just dozing off."

This Little Tot Cut Out for High Finance.

LITTLE EDITH, age 4, was watching mamma bake cake last Friday morning when she suddenly spied a large bag of raisins. "Mamma," she asked, "can't I have some raisins?" Mamma at first objected on the ground that she would receive her share in the cake. Finally she consented, saying: "Take a handful." Edith hesitated for a moment, and then asked blushingly, "Mamma, won't you give them to me?" Mamma did as she was asked, saying, "But child, I am busy! Why don't you take them?" "Because your hand is bigger!" was the prompt reply.

Harold, who was about 6 years old when this happened, was listening to an Indian story told by his uncle, who was a bald headed gentleman (in fact, he didn't have any hair). He was telling Harold how the Indians, many years ago, used to scalp the white people, etc., and when he got through Harold eyed him and in his childish manner said: "Say, uncle, what Indian scalped you?"

Wondered Why These "Lions" Didn't Growl.

ONE day in early spring as I was passing by a vacant lot, on my way to the elevated station, I passed an old woman, from whose back hung a big open sack. She was bending down and from the grass weeds that grew in the vacant lot she was picking dandelions for a probable mess of greens.

As I was narrating the incident at the dinner table that same evening my little niece, 4 years old, who listened most attentively to the story, said: "O, auntie, didn't the lions growl when she putted dem into the bag?"

"What lions?" asked I, in amazement.

"Why, the dandy lions, auntie."

Olga, aged 8, approached the janitor of the school and said, "Mr. O'Brien, are you a Catholic?" "Yes," he answered, surprised at the question from so young a child. And then in a moment he said, "Are you, Olga?" "O, no," she said, sadly, "I'm only a Swede."

Papa Didn't Catch Little Robbie Napping.

LITTLE ROBBIE, though but 4 years old, is sober and old fashioned. He was out with his papa one day, and papa stopped to talk with a friend, one of a group on a street corner. Robbie stood by quietly. Presently one of the group walked across the street. Robbie, mistaking him for his father, walked along with him. His father, noting his mistake, walked along quite a distance behind to see what he would do when he discovered his error. When the man reached the other side of the street something made Robbie look up into his face and he saw it was not his papa. He turned around and there stood his father, smiling at him. Robbie never cracked a smile, but calmly said, "I thought I'd take a little walk while you were talking."

In our doorway is a nursery swing which my two little ones enjoyed much. Sister is 4 years and brother nearly 3 and inclined to demand more than his share of swinging. One day sister rebelled and said, "Wenard (Leonard), let me whing now, you've whung long enough. I've whanged you all the morning." She was a Boston baby.

Little Knight Johnnie Couldn't Kick a Lady.

LITTLE Johnnie Tree, aged 8, of Kenilworth, Ill., who was devoted to a small damsel living near by, came weeping one day to his mother and said:

"I don't love Louisa Sanders any more."

"Why not?" she asked.

"Because she kicked me in the stomach."

"And what did you do to Louisa," queried his fond but suspicious parent.

Opening his eyes wide he answered: "Why, what can you do to a lady, mamma?"

Papa had shown Ethel the full moon the night before. It was her first sight and she seemed greatly impressed. Next morning, as soon as she was out of bed, she ran to the window and gazed at the sky for a few moments. The sky was streaked with white clouds. She called out, "O, papa, come quick; the moon has scratched the sky all up."

Thought Sure He Had Forgotten to Put His Hair On.

MY little niece was taken to a restaurant for the first time the other day, and being only 2 years and 9 months old spent her time gazing about instead of eating. Suddenly her eyes rested on a bald headed man sitting at a table close by, and with a ringing laugh she exclaimed: "See that man, daddy—he forgot to put his hair on this morning, didn't he?"

Little Frankie, aged 3 years, was admiring a new waist with a lace yoke worn by his young auntie, when suddenly he exclaimed: "O, Lucy, I wish you would make me a dress with a window in it, too!"

Snow Couldn't Fall Too Fast for Him.

WALTER'S father lived quite a distance from the schoolhouse, and on stormy days he was compelled to stay at home, which fact was by no means a disappointment. Recently on arising his mother, after drawing back the curtains, remarked to the little fellow, who was still in bed: "Well, Walter, if God keeps sending down the snow like this for awhile you cannot get to school today." Walter crawled out of bed and scampered to the window, and after looking intently for a few minutes at the rapidly falling flakes was heard to murmur "Sic 'em, God."

Roderick, the 3 year old hopeful of a Chicago physician, had from the period of his earliest understanding been impressed that he should never drink unfiltered water. He listened attentively to the bible story being told him where Moses smote the rock and the water flowed out to quench the thirst of the Israelites, and interrupted his narrator to ask gravely, "Was it filtered?"

HUMOR FROM FRANCE.

A laborer's wife, wishing to cure her husband of coming home late at night from the inn, induced her brother to dress up as a ghost one night, in order to frighten the tippler.

"Who are you?" said he to the spirit, whom he found in his way on the appointed night.

"I am the devil," replied the apparition.

"Well," said one, "if it is woodcock, I hang it up on a nail by the beak, and fasten some larks on to its claws. After a week I throw away the woodcock and eat the larks, which by that time have absorbed all the flavor of the woodcock."

"I do the same," replied the other, not to be outdone, "except that I throw away the larks as well as the woodcock, and eat the nail."—Bon Vivant.

Porter—"When the whistle blows."—Nos Loisirs.

"To the memory of Mathurin Beluguet, who left this vale of tears at the age of 91 years 11 months and 20 days, deeply grieved at having to leave behind him the most charming and faithful of wives."—Pele Mele.

Irate Pa—"I beg your pardon, sir!!"

Suitor—"Excuse me, of course I meant your daughter's hand."—Vie pour Rire.

Kind Lady (to little boy with big swelling in his cheek)—"Poor little chap, he has evidently got a bad gumboil. Here are two sous; does your tooth ache badly?"

Little Boy (removing the "gumboil")—"O no, ma'am, I was just sucking a big piece of taffy."—Nos Loisirs.

Magistrate (to prisoner)—"What, you here again? I hadn't seen you lately and hoped you were reformed. How is it that you have again gone back to your old ways?"

BY ELIA W. PEATTIE.

A BOOK that promises to take an important place among histories of art is "THE HISTORY OF MODERN PAINTING, FROM THE FOURTH TO THE EARLY NINETEENTH CENTURY," by Richard Muther, a professor in the University of Breslau (Putnam's). The original German edition of this book was in five small volumes, badly printed on thin paper, with nothing but the text to help it. Of course the text is what one is looking for in a history of art, but it may be so unattractively presented that the average book buyer is not drawn towards it. It took foresight on the part of Mr. George Haven Putnam, and courage too, to arrange with the author for an American edition of this book, which is brought out over here in two good sized volumes, filled with admirable reproductions of famous paintings. The English translation has been made by Prof. George Krehn of the Leland Stanford Jr. university. Prof. Muther is not unknown in this country. He was here at the time of the St. Louis exposition, where he delivered one or more addresses on art subjects.

The scope and purpose of Prof. Muther's work is given in the preface to the German edition:

These volumes, he says, do not constitute a text book of the history of painting. The author has undertaken to present neither the biographies of the authors nor descriptions of their pictures. For the reader who is interested in such personal and descriptive records the material will be found available in a number of authoritative works. In the present treatise the author has attempted to explain from the psychology, so to speak, of each period, its dominant style, and to interpret the works of art as "human documents." The prescribed brevity of the work has rendered it impossible to do more than touch upon certain of the questions and problems considered.

Prof. Muther's style, while backed by scholarship, is what might be called "popular," and the mere amateur of art need not be frightened off by the word history in the title. Prof. Muther covers all countries in his history, and admirable examples are given of most of the artists whose work is described. Some of Prof. Muther's chapters read like essays on the times rather than criticisms of art. For instance, in the chapter he calls "The Triumph of the Bourgeois" he describes England at the time of Hogarth:

A change such as the restoration of 1660 brought about must have had a deep influence upon the moral formation of life. It seemed as if suddenly the prisons had been thrown open and hordes of criminals swept over the country. The restraint of an earlier day was followed by an intoxication of viciousness and unbridled dissipation. In revelry and riot, with assault and murder, England celebrated the first years of its liberty. All London was full of pickpockets, robbers, and spectators, and gambling reached a dizzy height. English officials, grown rich in India, established oriental harems. The theater also followed the trend of the time. The obscene comedies of Wycherley and Congreve have nothing in common with the dainty frivolity of the French plays. From them speaks the vulgar crudity of the plebeian who takes pleasure in wallowing in the mire. The menagerie of the passions was let loose, and in the enjoyment of liberty all morality was lost.

The problem of the education of this new race of men therefore arose. The wild years of youth should be followed by a settled manhood. As a free country could not restrain the wild unchained flood of the popular spirit by police regulations, improvements had to be accomplished along pedagogical lines. In this manner can be best explained the deep moralizing tone which henceforth runs through English intellectual life. Collier began by writing his book upon the immorality of the stage. As the dramas had formerly been coarse and vulgar, they now became moral and didatic. For Southern as for Rowe, the stage is only a means of exhibiting in the clearest method possible a general rule of morals. In like manner Richard Steele regarded the press as a pulpit of moral improvement.

Hogarth, like Greuze, according to Prof. Muther, was a moral preacher:

He lingered where the crowd is thickest; in the coffee house where the politicians, scholars, soldiers, merchants, and money changers sit together, he was always to be found. In the morning he went to the exchange, in the evening to the theater, and he was never a silent observer, but a judge. He paints, like Greuze, pictures to prove single paragraphs of the moral code; with this difference, that he presents his messages to a different public. Greuze did not attack vice, but awakened sentimental admiration for virtue. He uses the third estate as a mirror of virtue, whose noble qualities are exhibited for the edification of the aristocracy. Hogarth, on the other hand, scourges the vices of the third estate, in order to raise its own morality. He denounces and hurls thunderbolts at the excrescences of modern civilization, and storms against drunkenness and libertinage. In contrast to France, where the life of the people only served to create a melodramatic pastoral play, in England the middle classes had already become a factor of intellectual life.

These extracts will show that aside from the subject of art, this book is pretty good reading, and if it does not become as popular as it is authoritative I shall be mistaken.

A curious little book will be published during the week by Messrs. Dutton. It is called "Before Port Arthur in a Destroyer," and is a personal diary of a Japanese naval officer, which appeared in Spanish translated from the original, and has for the purpose of this book been translated from Spanish into English. There is a lively description of a hand to hand fight in this diary, which apparently is written by the commander of the Japanese destroyer:

It is not likely to happen again that a destroyer commander will be able to approach a hostile vessel in this fashion, and I can never forget my sensations as we climbed up and set foot on its deck.

There was nothing to stop us. On the deck lay stretched thirty or forty dead or seriously wounded, many of them horribly mutilated. . . . But nothing could upset us, and my crew turned the corpses over and over to convince themselves that death was real and not feigned. I could not believe that every one had perished, for that boat must have had at least forty-five men on board, and on deck there were only about thirty; two wounded men fell into the water, but were rescued and made prisoners. In the fo'c'sle there was nobody. One of my seamen came running up in a great state of excitement and told me that the stern hatchway was closed, and that doubtless the rest of the crew would be found down below. Meanwhile the boat began to sink slowly, and if it had not been secured to mine it would have foundered quickly.

I hoped by explaining this to compel the commander to surrender or else to make him prisoner by main force, and for this reason we went down the after hatchway into the cabin, cutlass and revolver in hand. Hardly had we started when two revolver bullets grazed my head and buried themselves in the bulkhead. Without seeing anything I instinctively aimed low, fired a shot and leaped back, colliding with my men, who were following close behind.

Suddenly the door of the cabin opened from inside, without our being able to see in. The senior petty officer dashed in blindly like a wild beast, and a second afterwards fell with his head blown off. Our situation, to tell the truth, was not a pleasant one, for on such a narrow ladder it was impossible to show a larger front than one man, and those in the cabin could put an end to us one by one.

We contented ourselves with discharging our revolvers, and a pilot went on deck, where he proceeded to remove the hatch of the cabin, which made it quite easy to open fire on those down below.

The Russians could in the end have had to come out so as not to be shot in the back, but their fire ceased owing to lack of ammunition, and we were able to approach them. I took with me the stoker with the steel hammer, whom I mentioned before. No sooner had I reached the bottom of the ladder than one with a drawn cutlass sprang at me. I was able to ward off the blow, and in my turn attacked him and felled him to the ground. I then saw that he was the commander. We killed half a dozen of the others, and the last two, slightly wounded, surrendered. When we had finished this important task—in the end one becomes so bloodthirsty that one feels a cruel disappointment at not meeting with more resistance when only dead men or prisoners are left—we saw that we had only arrived in the nick of time, for those gallant fellows had been preparing to blow up their boat.

If anything were needed to prove Gen. Sherman's statement that "war is hell," it would be proved by the foregoing extract.

Toward the end of the book, in summing up the situation, this diarist says:

If the "yellow peril" is to be feared some day, if it materializes and brings harm to the Europeans, I do not think that it will be us Japanese who will provoke it. For it would not profit us in any way. An armed and powerful China is not a neighbor who would suit us. What we desire is to so manage that the Chinese continue as up to the present, peaceful and quiet.

The most we shall do is to try to free them from the aggressions of the Europeans, who, after the lesson we have given Russia, will behave with greater caution and treat the "yellow race" as enemies to be reckoned with—the yellow race who have made the proudest whites in Europe, the home of the white men, turn their faces to the wall. If China adopts the occidental civilization it will probably not be owing to any encouragement from us, but because the Chinese, made wise by the number of evils they have endured, realize that their integrity will only be respected the day that they are in a condition to hound those who treat them with insolence from their country.

The reason I have been discussing the yellow danger is that I see it has become the fashion in the European papers to do so, and it appears to me that it is advisable for all, white and yellow, to dissipate an error and drive away a nightmare which can only take form in a diseased imagination.

This diary was finished before the Japanese war with Russia was over, and closes with an entry of an order from Admiral Togo for the writer to sail with his ship that night.

JEANNETTE L. GILDER.

An entertaining account of journeys to the Bavarian highlands and to various quaint inns and hostelries in and out of the ancient towns is given in "LITTLE PILGRIMAGES AMONG BAVARIAN INNS," by Frank Roy Fraprie (L. C. Page & Co.). The book is made more interesting by the reminiscences of student and artist life in Munich, for this student-author has employed a conversational style that is pleasing and well fitted to convey the spirit of "gemüthlichkeit"—an expression for the comfort, ease, and joy of living combined—characteristic of Munich.

Pictures of delicious carnival days, famous ruins, with their romantic and historic associations, and of Oberammergau, vie with one another in the reader's favor, and a real love story and an elopement bring this book of travel to an unusual end.

MISS JANE ADDAMS' "NEWER IDEALS OF PEACE" A REMARKABLE BOOK.

Herein Are Set Down with Frankness Her Ripest Opinions on the Strong and the Weak Places in Our Social Amalgam.

THERE are those who consider Jane Addams the greatest citizen of our great city—one of the new time patriots, with international standards, and light bearing rather than arms bearing powers. There are others—and these latter are authoritative in utterance, high in place, prosperous, and important—who look upon her as a subverter of public order, a disarranger, and a menace to so much of the world as she is able to influence.

Both her opponents and friends will have profit in reading her recently published book, "NEWER IDEALS OF PEACE" (the Macmillan company), for in it she has set down with her customary frankness and lucidity her ripest opinions concerning the weak and the strong places in the social amalgam. I suppose her detractors will find here fuel in plenty for their arguments, and I know her friends will rejoice in the catholicity of feeling, the extraordinary and beautiful tolerance and patience of her spirit, and the essential modernity of her mind.

I think I have said before that there were many points of resemblance between St. Catherine of Siena and Jane Addams of Chicago, and in no respect does Miss Addams more remind one of her medieval prototype of civic enthusiasms than in her ability to perceive the psychology of the present. Her discourse has to do with the immediate time. When she concerns herself with yesterday it is that she may understand today. As for tomorrow, she has confidence in it, but she has never made a specialty of prophecy. She has never pretended to see visions; even when an epic idea comes to her, as it does at the conclusion of "Newer Ideals of Peace," she apologizes for it by saying that she knows it is absurd. But, then, so is the Apocalypse. So is almost everything magnificent. Whenever you get out of the commonplace you are absurd.

Miss Addams, in the conclusion for which she apologizes, is almost as absurd as an archangel with a flaming sword of truth would be on 'change, for example; or as Tolstoy would be at an afternoon tea. She is even as absurd as the Prophet Isaiah, who also had a vision of the people breaking their swords into plowshares and their spears into pruning hooks; of the great who humbled themselves and the low who bowed themselves down; of those who cast down their idols of silver and of gold "for fear of the Lord and the glory of his majesty."

It is not, however, the old "dovelike ideals of peace" with which Miss Addams concerns herself, but those new, dynamic ideals of peace, "embodying the later humanism." She takes cognizance of the alert interest of the times in all forms of solidarity, that passion for organization and unity of effort which has become so strong a factor in contemporary life, and she looks to that to render feasible the hopes of the peace advocates. She says: "That 'ancient kindliness that sat beside the cradle of the race,' and which is ever ready to assert itself against ambition and greed, and the desire for achievement, is manifesting itself now with unusual force, and for the first time presents international aspects." And she speaks in the same connection of "the cosmopolitan interest in human affairs, with the resultant social sympathy that at the present moment is developing among all the nations of the earth."

"It is possible," Miss Addams avers, "that we shall be saved from warfare by the 'fighting rabble' itself, by the 'quarrelsome mob' turned into kindly citizens of the world through the pressure of a cosmopolitan neighborhood."

Miss Addams' book is really an exposition of the increasing sociability of the world, this new mingling of interests. In dealing with it is inevitable that she should speak of problems of immigration, race, sex in their relation to industrialism. Her chapter headings will indicate to a degree the drift of her exposition, there being: "Survivals of Militarism in City Government," "Failure to Utilize Immigrants in City Government," "Militarism and Industrial Legislation," "Group Morality in the Labor Movement," "Protection of Children for Industrial Efficiency," "Utilization of Women in City Government," and "The Passing of the War Virtues."

The book is a clear and consistent setting forth of the utility of labor as against the waste of war, and an exposition of the alteration of standards that must ensue when labor and war are relegated to their right places in the minds of men.

"War on the one hand—plain destruction, Von Moltke called it—represents the life of the garrison and the taxgatherer, the Roman emperor and his degenerate people living upon the fruits of their conquest. Labor, on the other hand, represents productive effort, holding carefully what has been garnered by the output of brain and muscle, guarding the harvest jealously because it is the precious bread men live by.

"Men of all nations are determining on the abolition of degrading poverty, disease, and intellectual weakness, with their resulting industrial inefficiency, and are making a determined effort to conserve even the feeblest citizen to the state. To join in this determined effort is to break through national bonds and unlock the latent fellowship between man and man."

Miss Addams is of the opinion that nowhere is there a better opportunity for the unlocking of this "latent sympathy" than right here in the immigrant cities of the United States—this northern belt of cities, made up of many peoples blended, by force of circumstances, into increasing neighborliness. That socialistic spirit, utilitarian and humanitarian, which links together the producers of the world will make the devastation of war too childish and wanton a waste for men to contemplate who stand in their full manhood, with the experience of the past as their object lesson and the frenzies of their brutal boyhood well outlived.

Miss Addams would disclaim her right to be called a seer, but she is one insomuch that in looking into the hearts of men she perceives not only the thoughts which they themselves know to be there but also their unconscious ideals.

Her temperate, judicious, infinitely kind utterance seems to furnish the nuclei around which the drifting star dust of our souls gathers, shining thenceforth with a radiance new and strange.

It is by her power of inspiring and illuminating rather than by her heavy labors for her too often ungrateful city that she will eventually be measured. For those labors might be performed with a heavy sense of duty by one having the conscience to meet an immediate need, but with Miss Addams they represent merely the little her body may perform. Back of it lies illimitable sympathy, immeasurable pity, a spirit as free as that of St. Francis, a sense of social order and fitness that Marcus Aurelius might have found similar to his own.

Let no one consider this extreme praise. When Miss Addams is gone these things will be said of her. Let a few of us hasten to write them while she still is here to read.

ELIA W. PEATTIE.

Thanks to his creator, Finley Peter Dunne, our old friend, Mr. Dooley, is with us again. A welcome visitor is Mr. Dooley, for we find him ever the same—"the finest man the country ever knew," always philosophical, epigrammatic, humorous, and lovable. In "DISSERTATIONS BY MR. DOOLEY" (Harper & Bros.) he discourses fluently and to the point on a wide variety of current topics. Concerning the fads and crankisms of the day he has much to say. Of motoring he exclaims:

"It's th' gran' spoort entirely. Next to a naygro agitator in Georgia, I don't suppose anny man gets as much excitement out iv a short life as a millyonaire who owns an autymobill. Fr'm all I can larn about it fr'm th' pa-apers, a millyonaire with an autymobill is constantly steerin' between the county jail and th' poorhouse. If th' polis don't land him in wan, th' autymobill will in th' other."

Literature enchains little of his attention this time. "Th' man that names th' Pullman cars an th' pa-aper collars iv this country is our greatest pote, whoiver he is." But a kindred theme—Carnegie libraries—attracts his satire. Of Andrew Carnegie's candid philanthropy he remarks: "Ivry time he dhrops a dollar it makes a noise like a waither failin' downstairs with a tray iv dishes. . . . Ivry time he gives a libry he gives himself away in a speech."

Two books that have just made a timely appearance may be spoken of together, for they belong to this class, although they are different enough to serve as complements to one another. "THE BOOK OF SPORTS AND PASTIMES" (Lippincott company), by E. K. Benson, and "THE GAMES BOOK" (E. P. Dutton), by Edith Cubitt and E. Stuart Hardy, pertain, respectively, as their titles suggest, to out of door and indoor diversions and recreations. Both are profusely illustrated, and it would be difficult to think of a sport, pastime, game, or possible occupation in which a child could be interested that is not described in one or the other.

"THE RIVAL CAMPERS AFLOAT" (L. C. Page & Co.), by Ruel Perley Smith, is an excellent story of adventure for boys, exciting, and yet stimulating in a healthful way only. The young heroes are not impossible or overdrawn. They are strenuous athletes of an admirable mold, and young readers will learn other lessons from them besides that of handling a yacht.

INDIAN LOVE LETTERS

SELDOM have love letters been written which contained more of the beauty of pathos, the poignancy of despair, than these messages, which seem literally written with the heart's blood of the noble-minded Indian who sent them to a girl he had loved in the East.

"He who writes was first an Indian shepherd, who dreamed dreams and sang songs. Then for one little breath of Heaven he was called by you 'friend'—and now he works at a forge in a tower over a gateway that was very ancient when the first Castilians came to the land."

Of course it was all hopeless. What place could an Indian, no matter how highly educated, have in the thoughts and life of an American girl of birth and breeding? But he was inspired to these letters, which breathe the spirit of renunciation and show how inevitable is reversion to type. Each one is a veritable prose poem. The appearance of the book is unique and most attractive, with decorative cover end-papers and headpieces by Ralph Fletcher Seymour.

THE WORLD MACHINE
THE FIRST PHASE: THE COSMIC MECHANISM.

By CARL SNYDER, author of "New Conceptions in Science," etc. 8vo. Pp. xvi.-488. $2.50 net.

An historical survey, in clear and simple English, of the growth of our knowledge of the world in which we live, from its simplest beginnings to the newest and most far-reaching speculations of the present time; that is, from the idea of a flat earth that was the central thing in the world to the conception of a universe of hundreds of millions of suns and solar systems, more or less like our own. It is both history and the philosophy of history, and is an endeavor to answer the question: What conception can we now frame as to the scheme and purpose of the world into which we are born?

Being a Reconstruction of the Science and Art of Political Economy on the Lines of Modern Evolution. By JOHN BEATTIE GROZIER, LL. D. 8vo. 546 pages. $4.50.

This volume frankly aims at doing for the Orthodox Political Economy what the Copernican Astronomy did for the Ptolemaic, viz., getting rid of it altogether, both in its general principles and its details, by swinging the science around a new center of gravity, as it were, by giving it a new constructive principle, a dynamical instead of a statical basis, a fresh division of its factors, etc. Incidentally, by the arguments which its dynamical setting has furnished, it lends an out-and-out support to the principle of Protection, as the Orthodox Economy does to that of Free Trade.

GAMES TODAY.

Afternoon—Mial and Rolls. Evening—Gardner and Poggenburg.

New York, March 8.—[Special.]—Amateur billiard records reached a higher average than ever before in today's games at the Liederkranz hall of the national amateur championship. In the afternoon J. Ferdinand Poggenburg created a new mark of 21 6-14 at 14-2 balk line, but the mark stood for only a few hours. In the evening Calvin Demarest, the youthful player from the Chicago Athletic association, set the world amateur mark at 27 3-11, running his 300 points against Dr. Mial in eleven innings.

France Loses a Record.

The previous world record of 20 and a fraction was made only a few months ago in Paris by M. Morgier, while the American record of 18 12-16, established in 1903 by Wilson P. Foss, was equaled by Demarest last Wednesday night.

In their record work today Poggenburg passed the previous high run of the present tournament by making 101 (unfinished in his closing inning against Mortimer Rolls of Philadelphia), but Demarest surpassed the figure tonight by scoring 115 before missing.

Dr. Mial was far from disgraced in the evening game, for despite the whirlwind speed shown by his rival the doctor made an average of 17 7-10 himself, although getting only 177 points. Demarest's feat resulted in great cheering upon the part of the spectators in the Liderkranz club concert hall.

Makes Slow Beginning.

Demarest, who had been practicing for three hours during the afternoon, made a poor start after winning the bank. His first contribution of 2 was followed by 3. These stray cushion shots were not particularly good, and Dr. Mial assumed the lead on his second turn at the table with a run of 16. Demarest then coaxed the balls together, but after his eighth count they lined up on the long rail. With all the quickness of Jacob Schaefer and before Referee McLaughlin realized what he was attempting he steadied himself for a massé, and without a rest let fly with his cue at the ball. The play was so sudden the veteran referee had to run around Demarest to make sure of the count. It just failed to connect, but the crowd heartily applauded the youth's nervy attempt.

Demarest began to toy with the ivories on his fourth turn at the table in a manner which held the crowd spellbound by his method of [illegible] to ball billiards, in which he cajoled the spheres in a merry, endless game of tag around the table. Each corner appeared to be the goal for a bit of nursing, but it was only a brief glimpse at this style, then the wonderful young billiardist had the ivories dancing again.

Passes Poggenburg Run.

Demarest played quickly and with such easy grace, especially on his innumerable massé shots, that the assembled lovers of the game were constantly applauding him. He had twice led the balls on their lively chase around the green plateau, despite a puzzling freeze at the sixteenth count, which caused him to pause momentarily before solving the billiard riddle with a nipping little draw shot. Demarest counted up to 115, topping the remarkable run of Poggenburg in the afternoon, when he put his cue wrongly to the ball for a short follow shot and retired, as the ball rolled off in consequence. His chagrin was evident, for he had the balls going finely, and it was told after the match that he was out to beat the amateur world's record run of 139.

Taking pattern from his young opponent, Dr. Mial put together a run of 58 on his next turn at the table, which was a remarkable effort at methodical billiards. His system was superior to that employed by the younger player and he kept the ivories more closely bunched. In fact, he was weaving caroms into a run so softly that Referee McLaughlin caused him to give way to Demarest at the table, as he failed to get the balls out of balk in the long lane at the right hand side of the table.

Just Fails of 30 Average.

While Dr. Mial was displaying a tendency to overtake his opponent the latter suffered two poor innings. He partly retrieved himself upon his seventh session by counting 45 before missing an easy massé. From a good leave Dr. Mial began to count with painstaking care. His touch was as delicate as a feather and he played the long line caroms without drive or recourse to the cushion. At 60 he was compelled to made a spread draw, but played so gently the cue ball just missed connections. He had shortened the gap between Demarest and himself, as the totals were 176 to 145 in favor of the Chicagoan.

Demarest proved a genius with the ivory spheres during the final innings. He was never at a loss for a shot and what errors he made were rather due to overconfidence than any fault of execution or judgment as to the selection of the proper shot. He appeared destined to finish his string with an average of 30, for on his tenth run he counted 82, which was within 7 of the end. At this critical moment the ball took on a false action in a wide two cushion shot, and the average was denied Demarest, who looked to be reproaching himself for the fault.

DEMAREST—2, 3, 8, 115, 0, 3, 45, 47, 18, 52, 7. Total, 300. Average, 27 3-11. High runs, 115, 52, 47.

DR. MIAL—0, 16, 3, 1, 58, 10, 60, 10, 10, 14. Total, 177. Average, 17 7-10. High runs, 60, 58, 16.

Referee—Edward McLaughlin.

Afternoon Contest.

In the afternoon game Poggenburg opened from a promising leave on his fourteenth session. He held them close and gently nursed them along the lines, with hardly any perceptible motion. Along the fifties he lost the balls, being compelled to play a three cushion shot, a single cushion, and then a draw shot that was a marvel of execution, for he sent the cue ball the length of the table, and with it brought back the red from the far rail, so that when the balls ceased to roll all were assembled in the lower right hand corner. From that on to the close of his string he moved the globes only fractions of an inch at times. It was a rare exhibition and resulted in his completing his string with an unfinished run of 101, leaving Rolls hopelessly outplayed and overwhelmed. Score:

POGGENBURG—1, 0, 1, 27, 23, 1, 59, 25, 40, 19, 0, 2, 1, 101. Total, 300. Average, 21 6-14. High runs, 101, 59, 40.

ROLLS—2, 0, 18, 1, 2, 7, 11, 0, 9, 1, 38, 14, 1, 1. Total, 96. Average, 6 12-14. High runs, 38, 18.

CUBS FED IN LOUISVILLE.

SECRETARY WILLIAMS HANDS EACH MAN $1 FOR SUPPER.

Plate of Thin Soup and Three Olives Use Up Hub Perdue's Case Note—Moonshiner Refuses to Allow Fan to Weep on His Neck Because He Has Only One Clean Collar—Chance's Men Start for the Magnolia Belt.

BY CHARLES DRYDEN.

Louisville, Ky., March 8.—[Special.]—Chance and his two dozen pilgrims hit this borderland of the sunny south at 7 p. m. and pulled out for the magnolia belt a couple of hours later, after a successful forage for victuals. The pause for eating brought forth good results in all but one instance. Following the usual custom on the road Secretary Williams shuffled a deck of $1 bills and dealt an ace note to each hungry athlete. They were told to sup where they pleased.

Hub Perdue, who has an appetite like a piano mover, straggled into a swell dump where one plate of thin soup and three olives cleaned up his ace note before Hub knew where he was at. The Tennessee recruit left for New Orleans with hunger still grawing at his vitals. Before turning into his Pullman berth at the station Hub asked Williams at what hour in the morning he would deal a new hand of $1 bills.

Perdue Famine Stricken.

"I'll grab doughnuts and coffee in a grab and run joint to make sure," said the famine stricken athlete. The rest of the squad reported fine browsing at various resorts.

At 4 o'clock the Cubs, reinforced by Johnny Evers, pulled out of West Baden for the south. The athletes met many old friends at the springs and made stacks of new ones who grieved to see them go so soon. Bob Kenny, a rabid west side fan, wanted to weep on Perdue's neck at the depot, but Hub repulsed him. The moonshiner said he had but one clean collar left and he was saving that one to look nice in at New Orleans. A big delegation of hotel guests followed the band to the station to say good-by and get a flash at the $50 alligator hide suit cases the Cubs copped out as part of world's series spoils.

Run Into High School Bunch.

An appalling outburst of high school athletes and enthusiasm butted into our party at Orleans, a junction a few miles below West Baden. The hubbub reminded some of us of the strenuous doings on the west and south sides last October.

A basketball team of Orleans attended by ninety rooters of both sexes was about to embark for neutral grounds at Salem, Ind., twenty-two miles away. Coming from Bedford on the train the Cubs were to take was another high school team of basket ballers guarded by sixty loyal henchmen and henchmisses.

At times the excitement on the station platform reached fever heat. The girls sang war songs and the boys' rah rahed to beat the band. One small athlete wearing a tin megaphone and a large assortment of freckles tipped us off to some details. The Orleans team had been practicing two weeks in a livery stable. Strange to say, few cases of charley horse had developed.

Neutral Ground Demanded.

Over at Bedford the crack team of that town rehearsed ten days in a red box car. All hands were in the pink of condition. The rival outfits were bound for Salem to play in a feed store for the championship of southern Indiana. It was a shame to miss the game. Both teams demanded neutral ground, and the Salem feed emporium looked good to them.

We didn't hear the orders. One Orleans plunger dropped a tobacco sack half full of nickels on the depot platform, and a hush fell upon the multitude. Chance and Jack Taylor tried to get a bet down, but the plunger backed off.

On the trip to Salem the basketballers smoked sassy little cob pipes and hung out of the windows to defy the yeomanry. Our bunch hated to lose their fellow athletes.

Chance Picks His Team.

Chance has picked his team for the opening game with the Pelicans on Sunday and the selections went through a special course of training this morning on the covered bicycle track. The open field was too wet for any kind of work except batting flies to the outfield. Durbin, Taylor, and Fraser will alternate in the box, with Seabaugh and Kahoe catching. The infield is made up of Chance, first; Hofman, second; Steinfeldt, third; and Sweeney, short. Shulte plays left, Osborn center, and Randall right.

Sweeney and Randall are down to weight. Osborn expects to trim about eight pounds off himself in the south. The colt fielder is fast despite the extra weight he carries. Chance, Steinfeldt, Hofman, and Schulte look as fit as the day they quit the job last fall. The only thing that bothers them is sore muscles. Young Durbin has his sidewheel repertoire ready for the Pelicans and Seabaugh and Kahoe have agreed to stop everything except the scatter ball.

Taylor Has Surprising Curve.

For a farewell splurge Fraser and Taylor put on a burst of doings that astonished the natives. Jack tried his No. 66 roundhouse curve, which approaches the baseman from behind. He thinks the curve will surprise the Pelicans much.

Taylor also showed the natives Joe McGinnity's "Old Sal." This, a raise curve, which starts low and blows the batter's cap off.

Mr. Taylor's efforts were greeted with thunders of applause. All of Jack's stunts were duplicated by Fraser. These two are old college chums ever ready to share what the other hasn't got. Side by each they threw curves and fast balls and then sprinted four miles around the track. Once they passed a cart load of sawdust. It was standing beside the track. The veteran pitchers are in excellent condition, and Minor Brown says he is ready for business. Slagle shows the effect of sickness which deprived him of both flesh and color.

No Raise for Overall.

Manager Chance denies the story sent from Visalia, Cal., that Overall received a $600 increase in salary. The big chap asked for more dough and was turned down.

"We paid him good money last year," said Chance, "and he gets the same this season. I told him if he didn't care to play for that he would be traded to a minor league.

"Overall will join the team at New Orleans, with Sheckard and Lundgren, who have wired me to that effect."

SENATORS AT TRAINING CAMP.

Galveston, Tex., March 8.—[Special.]—Manager Cantillon and his Washington bunch reached sunshine and green grass today. The thermometer is 80° and the boys look fine. In the party were Manager Cantillon, Secretary Fowler, Trainer Jerry Eddinger, Pitchers Hughes, Kitson, Falkenberg, Patten, Smith, Wilson, and Graham, Catcher Blankenship, Infielders Cross, Perrine, Hill, and Schlafly, Hickman, and Hanley. Heydon Jones, Altizer, Goodwin, Warner, and Anderson are on their way here. Practice begins tomorrow.

Clark Griffith of the New York Americans, who is at Atlanta, wired Cantillon today that he wants Jake Stahl, the big first baseman and ex-manager of the Senators. He wanted to know if cash would buy him. Cantillon promptly replied: "Nothing doing for cash."

The inference is that a trade would be considered. The Washington manager said what he wants for Stahl is two first class men.

Lasker and Marshall Draw.

Baltimore, March 8.—The tenth game of the chess match between Dr. Emanuel Lasker and Frank J. Marshall for the championship of the world was played here this afternoon and tonight and resulted in a draw after forty-eight moves. Dr. Lasker had the white pieces and used the French defense. While it has not yet been positively decided, Dr. Lasker said tonight the next game of the series would probably be played in Chicago.

Normal Girls, 23; Hyde Park, 19.

The girls' basketball team of Normal school yesterday defeated the Hyde Park High school five in a fast game at the latter's gymnasium, 23 to 19. Each team has won a game and a third will be played on Tuesday at University High school.

Yale Wrestlers Beat Tigers.

New Haven, Conn., March 8.—[Special.]—Yale defeated Princeton in a wrestling tournament tonight, winning five of seven bouts. Two were draws. The Tigers tied the Yale bantamweights and middleweights. Yale won all others.

TEXAS LAW NABS WHITE SOX STAR.

MUST ANSWER CHARGES.

Trouble Occurs at San Antonio; Comiskey Gets to Mexican Capital on Sunday.

BY SY.

Ciudad Poforio Diaz, Mex., March 8.—[Special.]—Frank Owens' gun and ignorance of the Texas law got him into more trouble at San Antonio today. The incident furnished a lively morning for President Comiskey and the White Sox party, and narrowly missed costing the pitcher a trip to Mexico.

At best Owen spent several hours in jail and must stop off in San Antonio on the return trip to attend court and stand a touch for carrying concealed weapons. Hereafter he will wear the weapon in sight, if at all.

Owen was retelling the story of the accident which nearly cost him his life at home, and took the revolver from his pocket to show how he happened to escape with a flesh wound. This was before a group of spectators. In a minute a colored cop rushed in and arrested Frank, who was flabbergasted. His ideas of Texas evidently had been gained from pioneer stories when a man in San Antonio who did not carry a gun would have been taken for a tenderfoot, or a lunatic.

Owen Must Stand Trial.

Immediate efforts begun by Comiskey and others to secure Owens' release were unavailing until this morning when the chief of police finally consented to let the pitcher out on bail furnished by President Block of the San Antonio club under promise that Owen would be on hand at the hearing, which is set for March 20, the date the Sox play in that city. This was accomplished only in the nick of time, as Comiskey and Owen dashed to the station in a cab just before the train started.

The famous Sunset Limited was late again today, but this time the Texas law worked in Comiskey's favor. The train was made up at San Antonio, and the Sox sleepers attached and started for Eagle Pass after a tough night of being bumped and kicked around the yards at the will of the switch engines. Apparently the world's champions are not popular with the railroads in the south.

Make Connections at Spofford.

Connections were made at Spofford despite the fact the emergency train was an hour late in arriving, and the first experience with the Mexican customs officials was encountered. As no one in the party was proficient in Spanish, the interpreter was kept busy. The chief difficulty was found in convincing the officials that so many balls, bats, and uniforms were tools of trade, not merchandise for traffic, but matters finally were arranged without disturbing the harmony of the European concert or endangering the Monroe doctrine. It looked for a time as if Isbell would have to leave some of his pet bats, Altrock some of the raiment designed to catch the señoritas' eyes, and Prof. Bardell a large share of his stock of muscle medicine. Otherwise the function of passing the border line into foreign land was more ludicrous than serious.

Will Reach Capital Sunday.

The invading party left here behind schedule and with a fair prospect of reaching the destination some time Sunday. It is due in the Mexican capital at noon of that day. Possibly the extra impost will prove too heavy for the iron horses, which have no liking for weight. A delay of three hours in covering 1,000 miles will make Sunday's game impossible. In that event Comiskey will seek to recover damages from the Harriman line running from New Orleans to Spofford to reimburse the club for the heavy damages sustained by missing two of the scheduled games.

JOCKEY'S CLEVER RIDING FEATURE OF NEW ORLEANS SPORT.

Boy Makes Winter Record at City Park, While Garner, the Leading Pilot, Is Showing Poorly—First Success with Ziephen, Which Beats Black Mary, to Which Race Had Been Conceded—Lands John I. Inglis and Miss Leeds in Front.

New Orleans, La., March 8.—[Special.]—The splendid riding of Dave Nicol featured the racing at City park this afternoon, and while Nicol was making the winter record of riding four winners Garner, the leading jockey here, was in the limelight in the reverse way.

The first of Nicol's successes came in the 2 year old race when he brought the Schulte colt Ziephen, a son of King Lee and Alleviate, home in a race that was generally conceded to Bradley's Black Mary. This filly was a strong favorite and Garner had the mount. When the barrier went up Ziephen and Nicol were off in front, while Black Mary, with Garner flopping about, virtually was left at the post. Nicol found the short way for his mount and under a hustling ride to the last hundred yards had the race easily won.

Clever Work by Nicol.

Nicol had another easy win with Goldway in the sixth race, but with John L. Inglis in the fifth and with Miss Leeds in the seventh it required the utmost skill to bring these favorites to the wire in front.

Athletes of University High, after knocking at the door of fame for several seasons, won their first laurels last night in the second preliminary meet of the Cook county high schools for the indoor championship. The boys of the Midway school scored 19 points, Wendell Phillips was second with 14½, while North Division took third honors with 5¾ points. Curtis got ¾ of a point and Calumet ½ point.

It was a nip and tuck fight between University High and Wendell Phillips from start to finish. The outcome was uncertain until the last man in the relay race had completed his last few strides. Capt. Reilly of Wendell Phillips almost beat out Wampler, the distance being a matter of three or four feet. Kuhn almost won the race and meet for Wendell Phillips. He made up thirty yards and made the contest even up to the last man.

One Record Broken.

One record was broken and another tied, and the majority of the events brought out some strong features. Wampler, the University High star, ran the 220 in :25 4-5, clipping one-fifth of a second off the mark set by Taylor of Hyde Park and duplicated by Burke of Wendell Phillips. The record tied was the mark of 10 feet 4 inches, made several years ago by Morris of Englewood and Rennacker of North Division. MacMurray and Smith, both of University High, cleared the bar at this height.

North Division Boys Compete.

North Division's disqualified athletes, who composed the football team which made the disastrous trip to Seattle, were reinstated to good standing at 8 o'clock by the board of education. Capt. "Bunny" Rogers, Vigeant, the half miler, and Gunderson, the three members of the team who did not take part in the raiding of the University of Washington gymnasium, presented a strong case. The boys waited from 4 until 8 o'clock before a decision was reached and then proceeded to get their team together by telephone. They succeeded in bringing together about half the strength of the north side team.

Wendell Phillips proved the strongest in the shorter runs. Points were gathered in with the running of the fifty yard dash, when Kuhn and Capt. Reilly got first and second, nosing out Wampler, the University High star. Capt. Reilly turned the trick in the quarter mile, which he made in :57⅘.

Good Work by Jumpers.

Good work was done by the high jumpers. Scheying of North Division tallied his school's first points by tying with Smith of University High with the bar at 5 feet 6 inches. A moment later, in an exhibition jump, he cleared 5 feet 7 inches, but the points were divided. MacMurray of University High took third with 5 feet 4 inches.

One of the surprises of the meet was the defeat of "Bunny" Rogers, the North Division star, in the pole vault. He was considered the favorite after it was announced North Division would be allowed to compete. His efforts in pleading the case before the school board and in gathering his men together apparently was too much for him, and he went out at 10 feet, giving the honors to two University High men, Smith and MacMurray, both of whom cleared 10 feet 4 inches.

GOSSIP OF AMATEUR ATHLETES.

The first annual indoor track championships of the American Institute of Bank Clerks will be held in the Bartlett gymnasium on March 22. The meet is open only to bank clerks who are employed in Chicago banks. Many prominent athletes are employed in the different banks. Eleven events are on the program, including two relay races of one mile each. The class A relay is open to members employed in the Continental, Commercial, Corn Exchange, First National, Illinois Trust, and the Merchants' Loan. Class B is open to members of all the other banks.

Readers of "The Tribune" sporting columns managing athletic teams are requested to note that we are unable to print challenges and requests for contests on account of lack of space.

The Central Y. M. C. A. second basketball team will play the Northwestern college team of Naperville at the latter's gymnasium tonight. The second team was carded to play the Armour Square Crescents in the Central gym, but on account of the trip to Naperville the son class team instead will line up against the Crescents.

Entries for the second annual Cook County Bible Class league track meet, which will be held in the Bartlett gymnasium March 21, are commencing to come in. Arthur Haigh, who is managing the meet, has received entries from the Hynes class, Lexington class, and many others.

Officials of the Chicago Athletic association are considering the proposition of holding the second annual National A. A. U. indoor swimming championships some time in April. Last year the meet was held in the New York Athletic club pool and was a huge success, attracting swimmers from all over the country.

Referee Marvin Hart Ignores "Young Kid" Farmer's Claim of Foul at Hot Springs.

Hot Springs, Ark., March 8.—[Special.]—Andy Bezenah of Cincinnati won the decision over "Young Kid" Farmer of Peoria tonight in the ninth round before the Whittington Athletic club after Farmer attempted to "get away" with another of his claims of foul.

Referee Marvin Hart believed Farmer was ready to quit, and when the latter went to his corner Hart said he would give him ten seconds to fight. Farmer would not reënter the ring and Bezenah was given the decision.

GANS OR NELSON MUST BACK DOWN.

$30,000 PURSE OFFERED.

Pugilists Can Meet at Ely, Nev., July 4; Memsic Wants to Meet Batling.

[BY GEORGE SILER.]

The Joe Gans-Batling Nelson controversy has resolved itself down to a case of which will "back up." Both undoubtedly are for a return match, and "Tex" Rickard has offered $30,000 for the fight to take place at Ely, Nev., the new copper country, on July 4, but the fighters cannot agree as to the division of the money nor the weighing in time.

Gans demands 60 per cent of the money, win, lose, or draw, and 133 pounds, weigh in three hours before the fight. Nelson says he will fight for 75 per cent of the purse and weigh in at the ringside. Neither will back up an inch, but one of them will have to do so or there will be no fight. Nelson claims he is the drawing card and that Gans cannot command a $30,000 purse to fight any other man in the country, and the same it truthfully can be said holds good for "Bat," as no club would offer that amount of money to see him fight any man but the champion.

George Memsic, who fights under the name of Jimmy Burns, is after Nelson provided he fails to match with Gans. Tommy Burns, who looks after Jimmy, repeatedly has stated he thought his protégé could defeat the Dane and will match, winner take all, and wager any part of $5,000 on the result.

The probabilities are Jack Palmer, the English heavyweight, will make his initial fistic bow in this country at Los Angeles, and that Jack "Twin" Sullivan will be his opponent. It was several days ago reported that Palmer would be given a six round tryout with "Sailor" Burke, a third rater, but that, it appears, simmered out. The Englishman wanted to match with Jack O'Brien, but the Philadelphian is slated to fight Tommy Burns at Los Angeles in May, and according to contract is to report in that city no later than March 18. He would not meet Palmer unless in the pink of condition. In Sullivan the Englishman will meet a tough customer, although a middleweight, and if he beats him decisively he will be in line for a battle with the winner of the Burns-O'Brien fight.

Matchmaker Joe Coffey yesterday arranged the program for the Casino Athletic club's wrestling entertainment, which will be held at the Coliseum on Thursday night. The main bout will enlist Champion Frank Gotch and John Rooney. The semi-windup will bring together Leo Pardello and Hjalmir Lundin, and the preliminary John Wille, the light heavyweight pugilist, and William Demetral, the "Greek Demon."

Harry Gilmore Jr. has arranged for a special train to carry the local fight fans to the "Packey" McFarland-Joe Galligan ten round contest at Davenport next Tuesday night.

Johnny Reid, who for years has been mixed up in the fighting game as a promoter and manager of fighters, was in town yesterday and stated a club had been organized at Port Washington, Wis., to hold a carnival of fights on July 4, for which they would hang up $12,500. Reid has been appointed matchmaker and promised the members of the club he would arrange a card of two and probably three championship fights, with Tommy Burns and Mike Schreck as the big attraction. The purse for the last named pair, said Reid, would be $10,000.

FORWARD MOVE IN TRADE.

EXTENDED ACTIVITY IN BUSINESS IN CHICAGO DISTRICT.

New High Record for the Week Is Reported by Dun & Co.—Money Is Used More Freely in Commerce, Consumption of Commodities Shows Increase, and Gain in Marketing of Crops Is Notable—Many Visiting Buyers.

In its weekly review of Chicago trade, Dun's Review, published by R. G. Dun & Co., will say:

"In the leading developments of the week there are gratifying indications that business has entered into a more extended activity. With the heavy March settlements bank exchanges are expected to show expansion, but a new high record for the last six days is not entirely accounted for except by the larger use of money in commerce, increased consumption of commodities, and a notable gain in marketing of crops.

"Many visiting buyers make liberal purchases in the wholesale district, and bookings show increase over those of a year ago in the textiles, and there is further gain in the absorption of apparel, footwear, food products, and hardware.

"Resumption of farm work is spreading and the movement of produce is wider. The supply of commercial paper has increased and the discount rate remains firm at 6 per cent. Raw materials come forward in better supply and values remain at their high level.

Large Movement of Grain.

"The total movement of grain at this port rose to 8,914,317 bu, against 8,951,338 bu last week and 6,539,024 bu a year ago. Compared with those of last year receipts increased 32.1 per cent, and shipments, the greatest in many weeks, gained 41.9 per cent.

"Bank clearings, $271,309,356, exceed those of the corresponding week last year by 22.2 per cent.

Trade in Nation at Large.

New York, March 8.—R. G. Dun's Weekly Trade Review tomorrow will say:

"Renewed demand for Bessemer iron from the leading interest indicates that it is unable to provide for the needs of the steel mills, and the distribution of the contract among many furnaces testifies to the good condition of order books, as no single concern could make the desired delivery.

"The high money market is still postponing business in steel rails, and cancellations of orders for rolling stock are attributed to the same difficulty of raising funds.

"A steady volume of quiet buying of cotton goods maintains firm quotations. Most eastern footwear manufacturers have orders assuring activity until May. Jobbing trade is active, especially in rubber goods. Irregularity is noted in leather, weakness in some lines being offset by firmness in other varieties."

As Seen by Bradstreet's.

Bradstreet's tomorrow will say: "Trade conditions continue to improve. Dry goods, millinery, hats and caps, and, in fact, all wearing apparel are in the forefront as regards activity, an early Easter making for an early opening of spring trade. In such lines as cotton goods, some of which tend to further advances, it is not a question of procuring business, but rather one of making deliveries on orders booked months ago.

"As regards manufacturing lines, it is the old story of heavily filled order books and of capacity being worked to the utmost, despite which deliveries are backward. Collections, though satisfactory in some lines, are, on the whole, backward, the tightness of money and the enormous volume of business outstanding being the main factors."

Clearings for the Week.

Bradstreet's bank clearings report for the week ending March 7 shows an aggregate of $2,451,304,000, against $2,564,007,000 last week and $2,253,656,000 in the corresponding week last year. Canadian clearings for the week total $79,661,000, as against $68,839,000 last week and $72,336,000 in the same week last year. The following is a list of the cities:

NEW YORK CENTRAL LINES CUT EXCESS BAGGAGE RATE.

Obtain Special Permission to Afford Commercial Travelers Reduced Tariff Based on Fare Payment.

The New York Central lines have issued a tariff reducing the present excess baggage rates nearly one-half. Special permission was granted by the interstate commerce commission, which allowed the reduction to become effective at once. The present rates, which went into effect Jan. 1, are 300 per cent higher than the old rates in some instances, and were made on the ground of recent legislation preventing the railroads from giving commercial travelers better rates than was granted other classes of travel.

Under the new schedules the commercial men must pay excess charges from point to point, but the rates have been so reduced that it amounts practically to the same as previous to the present year. The minimum charge between two points is 25 cents, and when the fare is more than $12 the excess baggage charge will be 12 per cent of the first class limited passenger rate.

The attorneys for many of the western railroads are busily preparing for the storm that has been brewing in the department of justice at Washington for some time. The laws of the United States prohibit the railroads from keeping cattle in cars for a longer period than twenty-eight hours, at the end of which time they must be given exercise, water, and food. Recently the department of agriculture took up the matter and found the western roads regarded the law as a dead letter and numerous complaints were filed. One road will have to answer for seventy-two violations. The maximum fine in each case is $500.

The Western Passenger association concluded its docket yesterday, but the matter of through rates to the west through Nebraska will be taken up at the next meeting. The Nebraska lines are busy working on state tariffs, as they find in many instances the short lines between principal cities are getting all the business.

It is said the Great Northern and Northern Pacific railroads have agreed to build jointly the much talked of yards on the water front at Superior, Wis., for facilitating the handling of coal trade.

Give Benefits for Hospital.

A series of entertainments, planned several weeks ago for the benefit of the new Oak Park hospital, and subsequently postponed on account of the scarlet fever epidemic, will be given in the next few weeks in the order originally decided upon. The first will be a card party at the Colonial club of Oak Park on March 18. The others will be a dance on April 1 and a musical on April 6. Proceeds will be used to furnish a maternity ward and two free wards in the hospital.

To Install Pastor in New Charge.

Installation services for the Rev. David T. Magill of Milford, Mass., who has accepted a call to the Calvary Baptist church in Chicago, will be held in the church tomorrow at 3 p. m. The address of welcome in behalf of the other denominations of Chicago will be made by the Rev. William Chalmers Covert of the Forty-first Street Presbyterian church.

WILKIE QUITS THIEF HUNT

ADMITS $173,000 ROBBERY STILL PUZZLES SECRET SERVICE.

Chief Returns to Washington, Saying Local Men Will Continue Investigation—Teller Fitzgerald, in Role of Detective, Joins in Work of Unraveling Mystery — Boldenweck Without Advice as to Government's Plans Concerning Office.

John E. Wilkie, chief of the secret service of the United States, left yesterday forenoon for Washington without having solved the mystery of the disappearance of $173,000 from the subtreasury of Chicago.

Before he left at 5:30 o'clock over the Pennsylvania he said his departure did not mean that the government despaired of catching the thief. He said Capt. Porter of the local secret service would keep up the search and that he would be constantly advised of every development in the case.

"We have found out nothing of consequence," declared he, summing up the case. "We are no nearer a solution of the mystery than when it was first discovered. At no time have we even had so much as a clew that was worthy of any great consideration. I will leave the case in Capt. Porter's hands and hope he will be able to stir up something. I have been called back to Washington to look after the business that is piling up and requiring my attention."

Teller to Be a Detective.

George W. Fitzgerald, the assorting teller from whose cage the money was stolen, had a long talk with Assistant Treasurer Boldenweck in the afternoon, the first of any length he has had since he was relieved from duty following the disappearance of the money. He was in Mr. Boldenweck's office for more than an hour.

After he left the office Fitzgerald appeared in good spirits. He said the talk had been entirely friendly. Asked if he expected to return to work in the subtreasury right away he said not.

"I am going to coöperate with the secret service department in every possible way," he said, "in an effort to find that money. When it is discovered I will talk about returning to work. Meanwhile I am drawing full salary."

"Have you any hopes of finding the money?"

Mr. Fitzgerald wouldn't answer that question directly. He talked mysteriously of possible developments, and then he said he had promised not to discuss the case.

Says Threat Was Exaggerated.

Chief Wilkie attended the conference with Boldenweck, but neither he nor Mr. Boldenweck would talk about it. It is understood that Mr. Boldenweck wanted to know about the disclosures that Mr. Fitzgerald had threatened to make if he were not restored to duty.

Fitzgerald said there had been a good deal of exaggeration about the sensational disclosures he was going to make, and he hadn't any intention of making any—at least not just then. He said he had ideas of his own concerning precautions that might have been taken at the subtreasury which might have prevented the theft.

It practically was admitted that Fitzgerald's reinstatement in his former position depends upon the aid he may be able to give the secret service operatives. As the money disappeared from his cage he himself considers it a point of honor that he should find out who got the money.

Jury Acquits Fitzgerald.

Fitzgerald was acquitted of the charges of assault and assault with a deadly weapon, brought by Harry M. Friend, a newspaper reporter.

In the evening Mr. Boldenwick said that the only communication he had received from Washington was the letter presented to him by G. C. Bantz, deputy treasurer, when Mr. Bantz arrived to take general charge of the subtreasury. He had heard nothing whatever concerning the government's intention with reference to his bond or the continuation of his service with the government.

WOMAN EDITOR SUES LODGE.

Mary F. Kenney Wants Official Notices Given Her and New Catholic Foresters Paper Prevented.

Mary F. Kenney, editor of the Women's Catholic Forester, official organ of the Women's Catholic Order of Foresters, began action in the Circuit court yesterday to compel the organization's officers to furnish her with official notices for publication in the paper. She demands that she be given an accounting of money received by the organization for the paper and that she be given her share. She also asks that an injunctional order be granted restraining any officers of the organization from publishing any other paper which they might term the "official organ." She says the officers of the order are attempting to force her from the position of editor, and declares this is brought about by her refusal to sign a contract allowing the officials to "censor" all articles before publication.

BROKERS RESPOND TO "BUGS."

Aphis, Destroyer of Southwestern Wheat Crop, Seen and Felt in Board of Trade Pit.

Board of trade brokers were given an opportunity yesterday to inspect at first hand the "green bug" or aphis which has wrought serious damage to the wheat crop of the southwest, resulting in a sharp advance in prices, as shown by market quotations.

Samples of wheat from Oklahoma, covered by millions of the little insects, were shown in the pit. At once the crop destroyers became the center of interest.

It was noted that each broker who viewed the grain also became the center of interest for many of the "bugs." Several of the afflicted described them as being "much like fleas, only worse."

One of the Important Duties of Physicians and the Well-Informed of the World is to learn as to the relative standing and reliability of the leading manufacturers of medicinal agents, as the most eminent physicians are the most careful as to the uniform quality and perfect purity of remedies prescribed by them, and it is well known to physicians and the Well-Informed generally that the California Fig Syrup Co., by reason of its correct methods and perfect equipment and the ethical character of its product has attained to the high standing in scientific and commercial circles which is accorded to successful and reliable houses only, and, therefore, that the name of the Company has become a guarantee of the excellence of its remedy.

TRUTH AND QUALITY

appeal to the Well-Informed in every walk of life and are essential to permanent success and creditable standing, therefore we wish to call the attention of all who would enjoy good health, with its blessings, to the fact that it involves the question of right living with all the term implies. With proper knowledge of what is best each hour of recreation, of enjoyment, of contemplation and of effort may be made to contribute to that end and the use of medicines dispensed with generally to great advantage, but as in many instances a simple, wholesome remedy may be invaluable if taken at the proper time, the California Fig Syrup Co. feels that it is alike important to present truthfully the subject and to supply the one perfect laxative remedy which has won the appoval of physicians and the world-wide acceptance of the Well-Informed because of the excellence of the combination, known to all, and the original method of manufacture, which is known to the California Fig Syrup Co. only.

This valuable remedy has been long and favorably known under the name of—Syrup of Figs—and has attained to world-wide acceptance as the most excellent of family laxatives, and as its pure laxative principles, obtained from Senna, are well known to physicians and the Well-Informed of the world to be the best of natural laxatives, we have adopted the more elaborate name of—Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna—as more fully descriptive of the remedy, but doubtless it will always be called for by the shorter name of Syrup of Figs—and to get its beneficial effects always note, when purchasing, the full name of the Company—California Fig Syrup Co.—plainly printed on the front of every package, whether you simply call for—Syrup of Figs—or by the full name—Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna—as—Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna—is the one laxative remedy manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. and the same heretofore known by the name—Syrup of Figs—which has given satisfaction to millions. The genuine is for sale by all leading druggists throughout the United States in original packages of one size only, the regular price of which is fifty cents per bottle.

Every bottle is sold under the general guarantee of the Company, filed with the Secretary of Agriculture, at Washington, D. C., that the remedy is not adulterated or misbranded within the meaning of the Food and Drugs Act, June 30th, 1906.

A Hot Cake Proves the Flavor

Spread a hot cake with MEADOW-GOLD BUTTER and it will be good enough without syrup. There is nothing like a hot cake to bring out the true flavor of butter and there is no other butter with a flavor so fine as MEADOW-GOLD BUTTER. If you could see the way it's made at the creamery—what great care is taken—how scrupulously exact the makers are in every step—you would understand why there's nothing in the food line quite so good and pure as MEADOW-GOLD BUTTER.

MEADOW-GOLD BUTTER is made only from pasteurized cream, and as soon as made is placed in the odor-proof, germ-proof package in which you buy it.

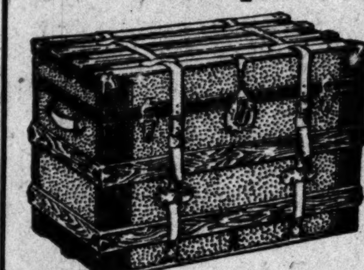

It is impossible for a disease germ to get into MEADOW-GOLD BUTTER.

Your grocer keeps MEADOW-GOLD BUTTER in this package—ask him for it and see for yourself how good it is. Same price as common butter.

MAYER LOTS TO CORN BANK

ADAMS STREET HOLDING GOES TO NEW PROPRIETOR.

Front of 65 Feet Reaches Nearly Double Present Holding of Purchaser — Proposed New Building Will Now Cover Both Sites and Be One of Largest in Downtown District—State Street Premises, North of Jackson Boulevard, Sold.

Negotiations are practically concluded by which the Corn Exchange National bank will acquire the Mayer property at 163-167 Adams, just in the rear of the bank's present holding at the northwest corner of Adams and La Salle streets.

The property fronts 65 feet, with a depth of 188 feet, running through to the alley just south of the Temple, and its purchase will give the bank a holding of 188 feet on La Salle, with a depth of 140 feet on Adams, being nearly double the size of its present holding, which is 75 feet on Adams street, and constituting one of the largest single holdings in the central business district.

As a result, the building plans of the bank have been enlarged, as the proposed new building, upon which preliminary work is to begin May 1, will cover both properties and will be one of the largest structures in the city. It will be sixteen stories high and its cost will probably approximate $2,500,000.

Under Long Term Lease.

The property is to be acquired under a long term ground lease, which is expected to be signed today. The annual rent, it is said, will be $22,500, which is 4 per cent on $562,500, which is at the rate of $8,654 a front foot and $46 a square foot. The Mayer estate is said to have refused an offer of $21,000 annual ground rent about a year ago.

Negotiations with the bank have been on for some time, the bank realizing the value of the holding in adequately rounding out its La Salle street frontage. Brokers in central business property have been expecting to see this property fall into the hands of the bank.

Another big deal in central business property which has about reached completion involves the premises, 229-231 State street, just north of Jackson boulevard, which was leased more than two years ago by Paul Brauer, the restaurateur, from the Equitable Trust company for ninety-nine years.

Mr. Brauer paid $25,000 for the four story building on the property and obligated himself to pay an annual rent of $20,000 for the first ten years, $22,500 for the succeeding ten, and $25,000 for the remainder of the term.

The present deal involves the sale of the building by Mr. Brauer and a sublease by him of the ground at a bonus, it is said, of $12,500 a year, which would make the annual rent $32,500 for the remainder of the first ten years, $35,000 for the second ten, and $37,500 for the remainder of the term. The identity of the lessee or lessees is not known, although it is reported they are Stumer, Rosenthal & Eckstein. The property fronts 36 feet with a depth of 144 feet.

Sale at 90 La Salle.

The fee of the property at 90 La Salle street has been sold by the estate of Henry J. Willing to James A. Murphy for $66,666. As the property is under a ninety-nine year lease from 1890 at an annual rent of $3,000 the sale is on a 4½ per cent basis.

John C. Smith has sold to the Sindesmos Hellinikes Kinotitos of Chicago, a Greek religious society, 26x100 feet at the southeast corner of Macallister place and Loomis street for $40,000.

The Illinois Humane society, the Illinois Manual Training school, St. Luke's Free hospital, and the Chicago Baptist hospital have sold to Alfred Barstow the Oakland National Bank building at the southeast corner of Cottage Grove avenue and Thirty-ninth street, 40x105 feet, with three story building, for $32,000. Southard and Trainor made the deal.

H. O. Stone & Co. have leased the one story building to be erected by the Coca Cola company at 1320 Wabash avenue to the Pain Pyrotechnic company for a term at a yearly rent of $3,000.

IN FOREIGN MONEY MARKETS.

LONDON, March 8.—Money was in fair demand and supply today. Discounts were firmer.

Prices on the stock exchange still were weak, with no prospect of an improvement till the position in New York is better and the monetary outlook is clearer. The fact that gold was going out to South America assisted in the depression.

Americans fluctuated erratically. Offers of only a few shares were sufficient to cause the drop of a point early in the day, but later the market showed more resistance. New York advices in the afternoon came fairly steady and caused a moderate recovery. The market finished steadier, with Southern railroad the feature.

PARIS, March 8.—Prices on the bourse today opened heavy on the New York advices but improved toward the close.

German Murdered in Native Land Believed to Have Been Prospector in Colorado.

After years of hardship while prospecting in Colorado, George Latsch found a fortune and returned to his native home in Prussia, only to be killed by assassins on his arrival.

This is the solution given Dr. W. Wever, imperial German consul general in Chicago, of the mystery surrounding the death of an unknown man found last December in the woods near Dülmen, Westphalia, Prussia. His clothes bore the name of a Chicago tailor.

John Steinmetz of Helena, Mont., informed Dr. Wever that two years before he had met a man answering to the dead man's description in Colorado. His name was George Latsch. He was prospecting with his brother Joseph. Latsch subsequently struck gold and said he would return to his native land.

Tattoo marks on the arms of Latsch corresponded with those on the body found in Germany. On the left arm were swords crossed with the words "Vengence is sweet" written in German. Dr. Wever said these marks pointed to death at the hands of a secret society.

"BARGAIN DAY" IN STOCKS

General Tone Weak, Though, with Some Securities Establishing New Low Records—Harriman's Pessimism Leads to Raid on U. S. Steel—Union Pacific Falls on Chief's Predictions — Reading Retains Its Firmness.

[BY A SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.]

NEW YORK, March 8.—[Special.]—Prices drooped again on the stock market today and new low records were established in some cases. Altogether it was "bargain Friday" on 'change, for, except around the opening, when banking and other big financial interests got into the market, the buying was mostly on small margins by those who saw good profits at the low prices.

The bears proved in the later market that they had not exhausted their ammunition, although this did not prevent a growth of opinion that the period of active liquidation was approaching its term. Sentiment was much less easy. The belief was more general that the liquidation would run its course without disaster or panic. The conviction remains that losses have fallen generally on those who could shoulder the burden without ruinous consequences.

Yesterday's weak closing paved the way for a floor of selling orders with which the market was swamped at the opening. Gloomy sentiment was accentuated by the discouraging views on the industrial outlook expressed this morning by E. H. Harriman in one of various interviews. His assertion that if orders on hand with the United States Steel corporation were not subject to cancellation their completion would develop the lack of demand was the occasion for a special drive against the securities of the corporation.

Union Pacific also responded to the pessimistic utterances of its president, which were aided by the coming off of the 5 per cent dividend. The persistent absorption of Reading and the support of it were a factor in keeping the bears uneasy and in inducing extensive covering.

There was good accumulation also in the Morgan stocks, which broke violently yesterday. Southern railway preferred rebounded violently when it became known that the dividend rate was maintained. The decline was resumed with a renewed attack on United States Steel.

The drop in prices at the last was much the same as that of yesterday. The closing tone was decidedly weak. The indicated loss in cash by the banks for the week pointed to some subsidence of the flow of currency to the interior.

Bonds were weak. Total sales, par value, $1,736,000. United States bonds were unchanged on call.

Money on call firm, 4¾@5½ per cent; ruling rate, 5¼ per cent; closing bid, 4¾ per cent; offered at 5 per cent. Time loans stronger; 60 days and 90 days, 5¾@6 per cent; six months, 5¾ per cent. Prime mercantile paper, 5¾@6 per cent. DEVASTATION SOUTHWEST BASIS OF SHARP RISE IN VALUES.

Market, Depressed at Start by Record Breaking Exports from Argentina, Quickly Boosted on Flood of Damage Reports from Texas and Oklahoma—Domestic Movement Heavy—Corn Withstands Pressure—Oats at New High Level.

Confirmed reports of serious and more general depredations by the "green bug" in the southwest far offset bearish influences in the wheat market yesterday. Developments in the pit were exciting, the trade being broad and active, with strong indications of a full fledged crop scare being present. Prices moved within a wide range, being weakest at the start, when news was highly favorable to bearish endeavor. It was not long after the opening, however, before the damage reports came flood like from Texas and Oklahoma, and there was a rush to the buying side. Vigorous efforts were made to check the upturn, which was rapid and sharp, but they were only temporarily successful. The final quotations, which were within a shade of the session's top, showed net gains of ⅞c for May, ¾@⅞c for July, and ¾@⅞c for September, and were 1¼@1⅜c over the day's lowest marks.

Corn helped materially by the strength in wheat, closed a little firmer, establishing a new high level on the crop, showed further gains at the finish. Provisions moved within narrow bounds, being little changed at the last bell.

Record Exports from Argentina.

The first few minutes of trading in the wheat market witnessed sufficient pressure from scattered longs and confident shorts to shove prices off about ⅛c from the previous final quotations. Selling was prompted largely by the unexpectedly heavy weekly exports from the Argentine—4,624,000 bu—the largest shipments that that country ever has made in one week. The previous high record was made in March, 1905, when 4,464,000 bu represented the total weekly exports. In the corresponding period last year the Argentine shipped 4,392,000 bu. Despite this big showing, Liverpool closed unchanged to a bare shade easier. Receipts of wheat at Duluth and Minneapolis aggregated 477 cars, compared to 425 cars the similar day in 1906, the total primary arrivals being 669,000 bu, or 212,000 bu in excess of last year's showing. Weather conditions generally were favorable to moving operations west and northwest. Bears harped on the big increase in stocks of wheat at the leading northwestern points; Duluth and Minneapolis showed a combined gain of about 1,500,000 bu for the week, against an increase of 1,111,000 bu the corresponding period last year. Seaboard clearances were light at 98,000 bu.

Some reports from Texas indicated that the "green bug" had wrought total destruction to the growing wheat plant, and its operations in Oklahoma were said by many to have reached a most serious stage. Some farmers in Texas and Oklahoma were said to have been discouraged into plowing up their wheat fields. Aside from the private mail and wire advices, the Modern Miller and other recognized authorities lent color to the reports of damage. Samples of infected Oklahoma wheat were on exhibition on the local trading floor, the blades being covered with uncountable "bugs," most of which were full of life and apparently still hungry. Michigan, Ohio, and Indiana also continued to send in more reports of damage from weather conditions, the advices being of a more positive character than those heretofore received.

Millers Northwest After Wheat.

There was not much actually done in an export way, but New York wired that foreigners were showing interest. The cash demand northwest was said to be brisker, millers being more active at the tables. Locally the cash market showed strength, all cars being quickly absorbed. It was said that within the last few days 250,000 bu of wheat had been sold here to New York export houses, practically all of the grain being of the hard winter variety. A large part of the arrivals of durum at Duluth were reported already sold for export. According to Bradstreet's, the week's clearances, wheat and flour, aggregated 2,251,000 bu, against 2,857,000 bu last week and 2,564,000 bu last year.

The buying which lifted wheat values was for scattered bulls and oversold shorts, including some of the heaviest recent sellers. On the hardest spots the northwest was accounted a sharp seller, and good quantities came from longs who had profits at hand. Much of the demand came from commission houses, some of which said their orders were from traders in the southwest. The recent improvement in the investment demand has had much to do toward taming the aggressiveness of short sellers. May wheat was off to 76¼@76⅜c early, rising quickly to 77⅜c and closing at 77⅝c. July ranged from 77⅜c to 78⅝c, finishing at 78½c, and September moved between 77⅝c and 78¾c, the final price being 78⅝@78¾c.

Support Offsets Pressure in Corn.

Considerable nervousness characterized early operations in the corn market. There were suggestions of a fight between the leading bull house and one of the most prominent professionals, the former lending good support against the latter's pronounced pressure at times. The opening was a shade easier, largely because of the weaker start in wheat, but it was not long before prices were lifted to a slight advance. As the session wore on trading became lighter and less interesting. Local receipts were 271 cars, of which a car graded contract, against 319 cars expected, shipments hence being 350,000 bu. Liverpool closed ⅛d lower, some selling there being prompted by private advices increasing the Argentine corn yield to larger proportions than recently officially reported.

The week's exports from Argentina were 106,000 bu, against 203,000 bu last year. There was a fair demand for cash corn, which was ¼@½c higher. The week's clearances aggregated 2,631,000 bu, compared to 2,394,000 bu a year ago. Primary receipts—876,000 bu—were 504,000 bu larger than those of a year ago. Local estimated receipts for today were 345 cars. Final prices showed gains of ⅛c for all months.

Oats at New High Mark.

New high prices on the crop were touched in the oats market, May rising to 43c and July to 38⅛c. Much nervousness was displayed by shorts over the reports of damage done to oats in Texas by the "green bug," and their covering was largely responsible for the sharp upturn in values, particularly in the July. The harder spots found longs, including, according to general belief, the big leader, takers of profits, their selling causing a reaction from the top. Final prices were 42¾c for May, 37⅞@38c for July, and 33c for September, net advances of ⅛@¼c, ¼@⅜c for July, and ⅛c for September, respectively. Local receipts were light at 106 cars, the estimate for today being 145 cars. Shipments here were 261,000 bu. Good sales were reported at the sample tables at ¼@½c advance.

Little Change in Hog Products.

There was not much doing after the start in the provision market, which moved in a narrow field. Floor traders were fair buyers, packers supplying the requirements. Local hog receipts fell under the expectation, but the western run—56,700—was 1,900 larger than that of a year ago. Shipments of meats and lard hence showed larger than those of last year. Final prices, 5@10c higher for pork, unchanged to 2½c up for lard, and unchanged to 5c firmer for ribs.

INTERESTING TRADE GOSSIP ON 'CHANGE.

More liberal sales of cash wheat are said to have been made by elevator interests here to interior millers recently than have been reported, and it was claimed yesterday that some fair sized sales had been made to the east in the last few days. It would be extremely likely if such were the case, as the wheat is undoubtedly here for the purpose of being sold, but it is understood that the sales do not indicate a particularly good demand, but, on the other hand, more of disposition on the part of elevator interests here to loosen up on their holdings and make room for other grain. Moreover, there seems to be a willingness to let some of the wheat go rather than try to carry it through the summer. It is practically certain, however, that little, if any, of the wheat sold has been No. 2 red. The big owners of this grade of wheat control the great bulk of the stock in local houses, and aside from a few scattered sales to millers, they have not sold any large lots recently or at any other time. A vessel was chartered a few days ago for opening of navigation shipment and it has been assumed that it was for wheat entirely. But this assumption has never been verified. The steamer chartered is a compartment boat, and will be loaded with any kind of grain which is deemed expedient. The demand for wheat from domestic sources is not urgent, and receipts are running large for the time of year. At present prices for No. 2 red export bids for this variety of wheat are about 4c out of line, according to local exporters, while bids for other wheat are considerably too low.

Outside cash wheat markets showed a little firmer tone, although relative prices were not much changed. Elevators took the bulk of the spring wheat offerings at Minneapolis at 1¾@2c over May for No. 1 northern and May price for No. 2. Receipts, while still running slightly larger than a year ago, are falling off slightly from a week or so ago, and there are evidences that the railroads are again paying more attention to other classes of merchandise. In the southwest the demand was moderate, but prices were steady relatively. New York reported foreigners taking more interest in the market, but export sales were small, and the smaller clearances indicate that sales are running considerably lighter. A keen demand for cash oats is manifested in every direction, sample markets keeping pace with the advance in futures, which touched the highest point on the crop. Prices in the sample crowd were ¼@½c higher for both corn and oats. The demand for corn was not particularly good and sales were small. Peoria wired that St. Louis is still the highest western market for both corn and oats. Dealers throughout the east are buying in a hand to mouth way. Consequently there is no accumulation of stocks anywhere. Local sales were 35,000 bu wheat, 45,000 bu corn, and 250,000 bu oats. The seaboard reported sales of 64,000 bu wheat and 40,000 bu corn.

Cudahy brokers, Logan-Bryan, Bartlett-Frazier, Paddleford, and Kidston were good early buyers of wheat, with Ware-Leland and pit professionals leading the selling. Pringle sold moderately early. Later in the session offerings were scarce and shorts became excited bidders. The advance was met by selling by outside longs, who bought on the recent decline. The Rosenbaum Grain company took the hedges off from 500,000 to 1,000,000 bu wheat late in the day. Wrenn was the big late seller, disposing of upward of 1,000,000 bu. Love sold a little July. Bartlett-Frazier, Elmore, and Northern Grain were on the buying side of corn. Pringle, Ware, Leland, and Shearson-Hammill were on the selling side. In oats there was good buying by the Northern Grain company, Bartlett-Frazier, Wagner, and Barrell. Edwards also bought early. The principal selling was by Knight-McDougal. Schwarz bought lard and ribs. The Cudahy Packing company was a good seller of ribs.

Accumulative evidence of damage by green bugs in Texas, Oklahoma, Indian territory, and even in some sections of southern Kansas was abundant, and the trade was at last compelled to take notice. A leading cash grain house which operates extensively throughout the southwest was a big buyer of wheat, taking off hedges, and it was understood that it was based on reports from the southwest. It is admitted that the present damage could be ignored practically as far as the total wheat crop is concerned, but apprehension of more serious danger later on is making traders nervous, to say the least. John Inglis is on his way to Texas to investigate the damage reports. He wired Wrenn: "Northwestern Missouri fine. Fields are green with brown tinge." Estimates of damage done the Texas crop vary, the guesses ranging from 25 per cent to 95 per cent.

In spite of the heavy rains, which it was thought would delay shipments of wheat from Argentina, that country came to the front this week with the largest exports in the history of the trade. The previous high record was made in March, 1905, when the exports footed up 4,464,000 bu. The total shipments since Jan. 1 now exceed those of the corresponding period last year by 3,660,000 bu. It is expected that shipments from this source will average heavy for a number of weeks. Shipments, with comparisons, follow:

	Last week.	Prev. week.	Last year.
Wheat	4,624,000	3,496,000	4,392,000
Corn	106,000	73,000	203,000
Flax	1,432,000	1,712,000	528,000

The Modern Miller: "Reports have been received that green bug is in wheat fields of Oklahoma and Indian Territory, and there are complaints of damage, but only to a slight extent. Recent rains, it is stated, have checked the depredations of the bugs. It is conceded that the Texas crop will be a failure. In Michigan and northern Ohio and Indiana the condition of the crop has deteriorated. Elsewhere the condition is satisfactory."

Wheat stocks in the northwest increased heavily again this week, Minneapolis stocks gaining 925,000 bu, while Duluth supplies three days were unusually large—984,000 bu. This is a considerably larger gain than for the corresponding week a year ago. Unless the stocks of wheat at Buffalo decrease largely this week, it is expected that there will be another good sized increase in the visible supply next Monday.

Broomhall cabled that according to an official report of India the acreage under wheat in the Punjab has been increased to 9,334,000 acres. Crop prospects good. The acreage under wheat last year in the Punjab amounted to 8,572,000 acres, with a yield of 3,510,300 tons. The total acreage under wheat in India last season amounted to 26,226,200 acres with an outturn of 8,560,340 tons.

Exports of wheat, flour, and provisions from the United States and Canada for the week, and since July 1, 1906, with comparisons, were:

	Wheat and flour.	Corn.
This week	2,251,000	2,631,000
Last week	2,857,000	3,360,000
Last year	2,564,000	2,394,000
Since July 1	123,925,000	45,315,000
Same time year ago	97,034,000	86,816,000

Liverpool arrivals of wheat during the last three days were unusually large—984,000 bu. Argentine wheat is now arriving and it is believed that stocks there will show a considerable increase during the next few weeks.

Rye Prices Advance.

Rye prices were firm and higher, most grades being up ½@1c. This market was influenced by the strength in other grains and especially in barley. No. 2, free on board, sold at 68c; No. 3, 61@64c; No. 4, 60c. March was 64½c bid; May, 67½c bid and 68c asked.

Barley was active and higher, prices being the highest on the crop. The small offerings and urgent demand from all sources are making a strong market. There were big sales of barley to arrive, the aggregate sales being heavier than in a long while, 245,000 bu being reported. Feed was quoted 60@65c; malting, 67@73c; screenings, 42@57c. Receipts were 17 cars.

Flaxseed was ½c off in sympathy with the decline in the northwest. No. 1 northwestern was quoted at $1.22½, and No. 1, $1.15½. Receipts were 1 car here, 41 cars at Minneapolis, and 31 cars at Duluth.

Timothy seed was easier. March was quoted $4.50@4.60; country lots, $3.25@4.40. Clover was $14.00 for March and $10.00 to $13.40 for cash lots.

IN THE FINANCIAL WORLD.

STEEL COMMON HOLDING UP REMARKABLY WELL.

Fall May Be Expected in Case Dividend Rate Is Reduced—Chicago Edison Practically Completes Sale of Three Year Notes — Swift & Co. Shares Steady on Local Exchange —National Biscuit More Active and Price Declines.

In the present market the manner in which United States Steel common has held up is noteworthy. It is a matter about which there may be two opinions as to whether the stock can continue to do so in a generally weak and sloppy market. There cannot be any doubt that the business of the company is destined to slow up. On the other hand, the general public does not know what the directors will do in the matter of an increase of the dividend. An increase would necessarily stay the price, whereas if there be no increase, lower prices seem certain.

If there is any public in the stock market it is in United States Steel common. The price around 40 is relatively low, the return at 2 per cent is good, and there is $500,000,000 of the stock distributed. Once it begins to break it will be in a vulnerable position.

But, as indicated, everything will depend upon the directors. They are not unused to the ways of the stock market and should they determine instead of increasing the rate to reduce or discontinue it, then there will be more profit for the insiders in letting the stock go down than in holding up the dividend. If the business of the company shows any decrease sufficient to suggest that the dividend be passed, it can be assumed pretty safely that it will be discontinued.

Chicago Edison Notes.

The Chicago Edison company has all but completed the sale of $2,500,000 three year 5 per cent notes to a syndicate, the members of which include the National City bank, the Illinois Trust and Savings bank, A. B. Leach & Co., and N. W. Halsey & Co.

The total authorized issue of notes is $5,000,000, and the purchasers have the option of taking the remaining $2,500,000. The notes are to be sold on a 6 per cent basis. This is not quite so good a price as it was hoped to realize. Presumably also a commission will be paid the syndicate.

Bank Statement Forecast.

Known movements of money for the week indicate an apparent loss by the New York banks of $1,104,400. They lost to the interior $263,400, and to the subtreasury $1,104,400.

Acme Harvesting Machine.

There was sold on the local exchange at auction yesterday twenty-five shares of Acme Harvesting Machine Co. stock at $20 a share. The sale was made at the request of Bartlett-Frazier.

The last previous sale of the stock, within a fortnight, was at $32 a share, the sale also being at auction.

Another Advance in Copper.

All grades of copper were advanced yesterday from ⅛ to ¼ cent. Lake copper was up ¼c, being quoted at 25¼ bid and 25⅜ asked. Electrolytic was quoted at 25 bid and 25¼ asked.

Financial Notes.

Earnings of the Chicago Pneumatic Tool company for January were at the rate of 11 per cent a year on the company's capital stock.

The prospectus of the new Japanese 5 per cent loan for £23,000,000 has been issued. One-half of the amount will be offered in London and the remainder in New York at 99½. Holders of the 6 per cent bonds are offered an equal amount of the present loan plus £6 10s cash, with a half yearly coupon payable Sept. 12, 1907.

North American Biscuit.

At the annual meeting of the Northern American Biscuit company, which concern is the largest competitor of the National Biscuit company, the stockholders reëlected the retiring directors and the board in turn named the former officials. J. L. Loose was reëlected president, and J. H. Wiles secretary and treasurer.

Chicago Stocks.

In the local stock market Swift & Co. shares were steady. Kansas City Railway and Light common sold off on small transactions. Apparently there is no immediate prospect of a dividend, though the money to pay one is in the treasury. National Biscuit common was more active than usual, and also sold off. Boxboard preferred was firm.

NEVADA-UTAH

Today I have been importuned from all over the lot to say the word while the Nevada-Utah situation is yet at white heat. Wall street in particular has attempted to rush me, but——

My latest canvass of the larger cities of the country shows me that there are orders for probably a million and a half shares awaiting my decision. A Cleveland paper says that there are orders for 80,000 in the hands of brokers there; a San Francisco paper says that city wants 100,000—all of which makes for extreme caution.

Under no circumstances, and not until I have satisfied myself that Nevada-Utah is actually worth it, will I assume the responsibility of telling the public to get aboard this stock when I know that my giving the word will make many of them pay for it 30, 40, or 50 per share. It may be all smooth and easy for those who, in defiance of my warnings, have loaded up at 6, 7, or 8 with the intention of selling on rise to the thousands of investors—my following, the public—when the word is given to shout "Let her go," but their game is not mine.

If the public were only waiting for me to say "Nevada-Utah is worth 7 or 8 per share," my task would be a light one, now that I have my reports, but to say what will be interpreted marketwise to mean it is worth 30, 40, or 50, I must consult and investigate most thoroughly. Under no circumstances will I do otherwise. It looks now as if I would have things sufficiently cleared to give my decision in my Monday's advertisement.

A departure in the form of entertaining will be found in the song recital to be given next Tuesday afternoon in the foyer of Orchestra hall when eight women will act as hostesses to some 300 guests. The hostesses are Mrs. Cyrus Bentley, Mrs. Bryan Lathrop, Mr. R. Hall McCormick, Mrs. Watson Blair, Mrs. Hugh T. Birch, Mrs. Frederic A. Delano, Mrs. John A. Spoor, and Mrs. Russell Tyson. The hour will be 4 o'clock and the program will be given by Mr. Myron W. Whitney Jr., who is the guest this week of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Tyson.

Mrs. John De Koven, 402 Dearborn avenue, will open her house today for the meeting of the Causeries du Samedi. Dr. Alice Brugnot, who has delivered a number of interesting lectures during the winter to the members, will address them today on "La lutte pour la vie."

Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank, 407 North State street, will give a luncheon Monday for Mrs. L. Hamilton McCormick. Mr. and Mrs. McCormick will spend the week end with Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus McCormick in Lake Forest, and will leave next Wednesday for New York preparatory to sailing for Europe a few days later.

Mr. and Mrs. William Denison Morris, 1928 Deming place, gave a dinner last evening for twelve guests in honor of Capt. Nesbitt of Fort Thomas, Ky.

Mrs. Frederick George Whiting, 3154 Lake Park avenue, will give a luncheon, followed by bridge, today in honor of her niece, Mrs. Richard J. Barr of Joliet.

Mrs. Levy Mayer will give a luncheon and musical on Saturday, March 23, at the South Shore Country club, to which 175 guests have been invited. Mrs. Mayer will be assisted by Mrs. George W. Harvey, Mrs. Louis H. Durr, Mrs. Fred Mandel, Mrs. Oscar G. Foreman, and Mrs. D. Mayer. The program will be given by Mr. Cecil Fanning, baritone, and Mr. H. D. Purpin, pianist.

Mr. and Mrs. Max Broh of Spokane, Wash., announce the engagement of their daughter Sadye to Mr. Clarence A. Livingston of Chicago. At home Sunday, March 24, at Mr. Livingston's residence, 481 East Forty-fifth street. Miss Broh will leave for her home in Spokane on April 1.

Mrs. Seymour J. Thurber, 1014 Pratt avenue, Rogers Park, will entertain twelve guests at luncheon next Thursday.

DOMESTIC SCIENCE

CONDUCTED BY THE SCHOOL OF DOMESTIC ARTS AND SCIENCE OF CHICAGO

THE novelty table at the housekeepers' exhibit, to be held at the Heyworth building on March 14, under the auspices of the School of Domestic Arts and Science, will have many attractive features. Miss Cornelia Williams, Mrs. Winter, Mrs. Edwin F. Gillette, Mrs. Counselman, Miss Felton, Miss Gardiner, and several others are all assisting at this booth. A large variety is planned. Mrs. Gillette will arrange flowers in the way in which the Japanese excel—a few arranged as nearly as nature does it as may be—as contrasted with the solid masses so long in vogue with us.

The practical side of the household will be looked after first of all in the "Household Account Book," arranged and published by the School of Domestic Arts and Science.

This book is planned not alone for the daily cash expenditures but for the charge accounts as well, so that the housekeeper can tell on any day her exact financial standing—what she has on hand, what she has spent, what she owes. This book is a great aid in attaining that peace which Ellen H. Richards describes as finding its source in "being able to live comfortably in the presence of your account book." How many domestic disasters might be avoided in this way!

Mrs. James B. Barnet's last book of recipes will be on sale for the purpose of supplying a model equipment for the School of Domestic Arts and Science. It has many good suggestions and recipes for the housekeeper looking for new things, and a list of "what to serve with what."

The card system adapted to the household will be in readiness also. It is the most convenient way to collect special recipes and to keep a great deal of information.

A collection of various paper conveniences in the household may surprise some women who do not know such things are to be had—all sorts of labels for all sorts of things.

A little Quaker bag has traveled all the way from Philadelphia which accomplishes cleaning wonders and lightens the burdens of keeping clean in this dirty city. In short, it is the effort of the various committees in this affair to find and bring forward anything that is useful that may not be widely known.

One of the interesting developments of the work is the many suggestions which come from unexpected quarters. Yesterday an interested housewife asked permission to exhibit a dish rack she has devised and finds labor saving. It is said that the early Gothic buildings grew from day to day under the hand of the builder and that to this fact we are indebted for many charming details in the work impossible in later methods. And so it is with many valuable suggestions in our every day housekeeping world—they come from the mind of the woman whose hand is doing the actual work and who sees a better and an easier way. Any housewife who has suggestions which are new will help her working sister in passing on her idea through the medium of the housekeepers' exhibit.
